THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK

THE GRADUATES' RECEPTION

DEAREST MADGE:

Speaking of summery frocks, we saw the most fascinating array of pretty girls got up in the newest of new costumes at the graduation exercises of St. Mary's. Ann and I were the guests of Helen Donovan, who was a picture of dainty loveliness in her dress of sheer white French nainsook. The bodice was made in surplice fashion, one side laid in two-inch folds over the shoulders, and the other of three narrow ruffles with a plain band at the neck line.

These crossed in front and were held in by a narrow girde of satin ribbon. A little yoke of Irish lace filled in the V. The plain skirt was gathered slightly at the waist line and finished at the hem with three narrow ruffles headed by three puffs. You may be sure I will copy this little frock with its touch of quaintness.

Her chum's gown was of creamy marquisette and princess lace. The "baby" neck was outlined with a puff of lace shirred into a straight band of material, over which was a bit of lace that passed the girde in front, forming a short apron tunic. The short sleeves showed the puffing of lace, held in close at the elbow.

A graceful tunic drapery was caught up on either side of the front with clusters of pink rosebuds, and she carried a sheaf bouquet of pink roses on her arm.

One other graduate gown I must describe to you. It was of Paris muslin laid in tiny tucks, which formed a panel front from the low-cut bodice to the eighteen-inch hem. Here a bib-and-apron effect was obtained by cut-out embroidery, pointed at each end.

A band of this headed the hem. Deep folded-back cuffs and a charming little collar were made of the tucked muslin and edged with a narrow embroidered edge.

Ann's gown, one she had brought directly from Paris, showed the fashionable combination of taffeta and voile in a lovely shade of violet.

The dress itself was made up on white silk and showed a lapped tunic drapery on the skirt, which was caught directly in the back with a large silk-covered button. Around the skirt's hem was a wide box-pleated quilling of taffeta. This also was stitched to the hem of the taffeta coat, and again around the three-quarter-length sleeves. A deep collar of embroidered linen was worn with the coat.

Her hat of black straw had a tall crown, with a crown band and bow of taffeta two shades deeper in tone. Just at the left of the front was placed a fancy black feather, and her parasol was of violet-and-black striped silk.

Sea-green satin taffeta and black satin dotted with green made up a lovely costume suitable to wear in the afternoon. The plain bodice and sleeves were cut in one, opening over a chemise of white mull trimmed with a narrow silk tulle.

A square collar of the dotted silk joined a square of plain black in front. This was trimmed with three buttons on each side.

Long, close-fitting sleeves had their lower portion of dotted silk, which formed an extremely deep cuff, extending up on the under side above the elbow. A frill of lace inserted at the wrist was turned up the outer seam several inches. An original touch was a broad side panel of the dotted silk, cut in one with a deep hem.

A burnt-straw hat trimmed with a high puffing of green and a green taffeta parasol that exactly matched the material in the dress completed this chic little costume.

Which will you have, sister mine? All are lovely and all copyable.

Let me hear from you soon.

With affection,

Your sister,

ELEANOR.

TEXAS GIRL'S ART STIRS PARIS

First French President General Has Brilliant Record Behind Him.

PARIS, June 1.—Is the American painter who signs pictures Baynon Copeland a man or a woman? This was the question that till lately was exercising art critics and others.

Letters came from America addressed to Mr. Baynon Copeland, asking him to send pictures to exhibitions of American pictures in Chicago, Philadelphia and Indianapolis. At a recent exhibition at Birmingham English critics wrote that America was well represented by Mr. Baynon Copeland. French critics also wrote to Mr. Baynon Copeland asking for permission to see his pictures.

But now it transpires that Baynon Copeland is a Miss, and a very young Miss at that. She is the daughter of Guild Anderson Copeland of Boston and grand-niece of John W. Foster, former secretary of state. Moreover she is a direct descendant of the famous Englishman, John Alden.

Miss Copeland was born in El Paso, Texas, twenty-two years ago. She is tall and willowy; a brunette with a strong artistic temperament and large luminous flashing eyes. Her first art studies were done under the direction of Kenyon Cox of New York, whose memory is still green in the school of fine arts here. While studying with Mr. Cox Miss Copeland won a scholarship.

PASSES EXAMINATION.

Then coming to Paris she passed the entrance examination to the Beaux Arts. This is very difficult, especially for foreigners, as the examination is carried on in the French language. While many Americans of the sterner sex study at the Beaux Arts, Miss Copeland was the first American girl to pass the matriculation examination. And because she was the first, the French girls played all sorts of tricks upon her. But her studies at the Beaux Arts, under Prof. Humbert, have been very successful.

John Shannon, the eminent American portrait painter, never takes pupils, yet during a term Miss Copeland spent in London, he was attracted by her and gave her the benefit of his admirable criticism. Her work bears a striking resemblance to that of Richard Miller of St. Louis, who is a juror for the selection of pictures in Paris for American exhibitions. By a curious coincidence, Miss Copeland and Richard Miller, each working independently, painted two pictures exactly alike. The poses were similar; so were the drawing and the composition. Some people said they saw Miller's brush strokes in the girl's pictures, so in order to disprove this, she has painted pictures quite distant from Miller. Included is a portrait of a sister of Chief Justice John Marshall of Australia, who made sure that Miller should not even see it.

Miss Copeland has been exhibiting in the Salon of the French Artists for the past three years. This year her picture called "Behind the Fan," which was voted upon for honors next week. The strong points of this picture are color, drawing and composition. Young as she is, Miss Copeland has painted many portraits. Among these are a portrait of her mother, those of the Misses Bill, daughters of Mrs. Winona Davis of New York and Washington.

LYAUTEY LIKED.

The first French President General in Morocco is a man who has seen much service. General Lyautey made a brilliant record as a cavalry officer during the war, and he has been minister in the French colonies. In Indo-China, nearly twenty years ago, he was attached to Gen. Gallieni, under whom he continued to serve in various capacities. After the war he was sent to the French colonies, and subsequently acted as temporary Brigadier-General in Algeria, he was appointed to the command of the Oaza division, and in 1908, he returned to France as minister in the Algero-Moroccan frontier. His conduct of the campaign against the Beni Snassen and his handling of frontier problems during his three years' tenure of this difficult post have won him the admiration of Gen. D'Audoubert, whose operations at Casablanca in 1907 remain equally memorable. It is said to have expressed the view that no better man than Gen. Lyautey could possibly be found to represent France at the conference on "La role social de l'officier." "La role colonial de l'Armee," and similar topics, is regarded as a future convention.

FASHION GETS MEN.

There is a new craze for men here that is supposed to hail from the East. It is the wearing of tiny trousers or buds in your shirt front and in your waistcoat. Instead of the usual studs and buttons, and it has been suggested in various fashion journals, and seems to be catching on among the fast set of the metropolis.

Little Prince Edward was rather a disappointment to the Parisians. He is a very young man, and he is not very tall. He is wearing the late King Edward's uniform and is very well liked. He is supposed to be a very good fellow, and he is very popular among the French people.

MADEIRA SHOW CLOTHES.

MADEIRA, G. Am. June 1.—The annual general meeting of the Madeira Chamber of Commerce was held here today. The meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce building, and was attended by a large number of the leading business men of the island.

MRS. GEORGE CORNWALLIS WEST

WHO THEY ARE

In anticipation of Wales getting

Home Rule a Welsh National Museum is to be erected at Cardiff, a design of which is given here. The height of the dome will be 98 feet, and the work was begun on the site in September last. The director of the National Museum is Dr. Hoyle, formerly Curator of the Manchester Museum. The building is to be of Portland stone, and has been designed by Smith and Brewer.

Lady Diana Manners is pictured as the "Princess Infanta," by Sir Philip Burne-Jones. One of the most interesting exhibits at this year's academy. The painting is one of the many Academy exhibits. Here is Miss Eva Moore at home. This favorite actress, who is to appear in a three-act farce comedy, "Looking for Trouble," at the Aldwych theatre, London, shortly, has a charming home at Maidenhead. The photograph, taken during a recent week-end, shows Miss Moore and Jill in the garden.

Mrs. George Cornwallis West is one of the Shakespearean exhibitors which will open at Earl's Court. Mrs. George Cornwallis West was formerly Lady Randolph Churchill, and is mother of Winston Churchill. She is a very interesting person, and her life is full of interest. She is a very good actress, and she has been in many plays. She is a very popular person, and she is very well liked.

REGENT QUADRANT TO DRAW OUT TALENT

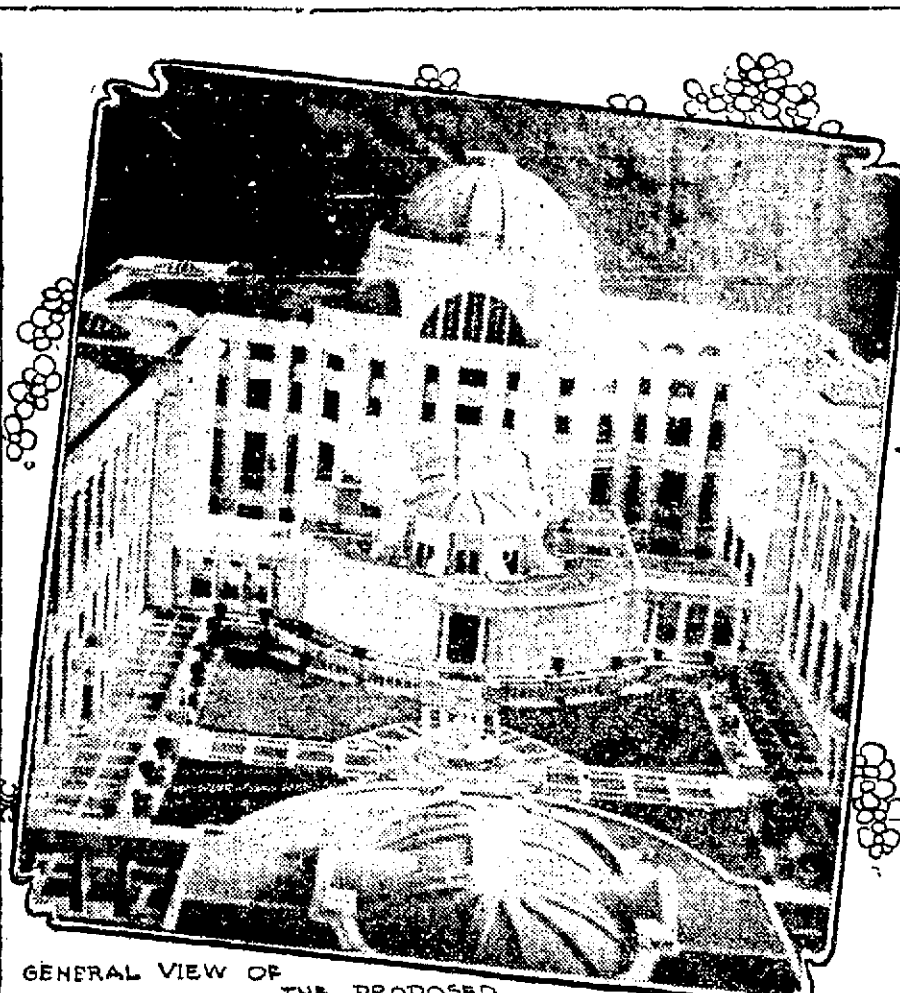

LONDON, June 1.—All the architects in England, great and small, have been invited to tender designs for the rebuilding of the Regent quadrant in harmony with the Piccadilly hotel, quadrants.

This offer comes from the builder and a price of twenty-five guineas will be paid to the author of the design placed first by the assessors, and a further twenty-five guineas will be divided among the unsuccessful competitors. All the designs will be exhibited in the galleries of the architectural societies for at least one week. The traders of Regent street are offering opposition to the form of architecture which it is proposed to employ, as they consider the heavy stone facades which it involves are not suitable for shop fronts and trading purposes. The intention of this competition is to procure a design which, while affording plenty of window space for the display of goods, will at the same time harmonize with the building design of the Piccadilly hotel. The building committee is of the opinion that the problem is a difficult one, but is not insoluble. Architects are not inappreciable of catering for a wide and suitable way of displaying goods in an attractive form in shop fronts, and they have no doubt that before long a satisfactory design will be obtained.

TO ENTER SOCIETY.

Lady Chesham, who was Miss Elizabeth French, will take a very prominent place in London society now that her husband is to be vice-chancellor of the London county council, and she is not particularly looking forward to taking up her new role.

Lady Chesham has never been very popular with her compatriots in London, owing to her habit of forgetting the names and faces of all but the most illustrious Americans in town. She is, however, an admirable wife and mother, and is bringing up her sons in a very strict but common sense manner.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE PROPOSED WELSH NATIONAL MUSEUM.

MISS EVA MOORE

PRINCE HUMBERT IS BOOK-WORM OF ROYALTY

ROME, June 1.—Queen Helena is already making ready to carry her family off north for the summer, as the little ones feel the heat of Rome very much. They are sent up with all kinds of nurses and governesses, as Her Majesty and the King stop on in Rome until Parliament closes, which is sometimes well into the summer when the heat has become really oppressive.

The queen is glad this year for another reason to get them away, as her son, Prince Humbert, is an extraordinarily studious child and at 7 can scarcely be torn away from his books. When other children of his age would be playing and making as much noise as possible, he sits quietly and reads. He has a book in his hand almost all the time. On any and all occasions he has to be forced into the open air, and even there he will lie on the grass under a tree and read if allowed to do so.

The other day the Minister of Costa Rica was received by the queen, and knowing how fond he is of children and the royal little ones in particular, they were called into the room to see him. Humbert at once bounded up to him and dragged him to his window, saying, "I wonder whose automobile that is down there; it must belong to a foreigner, as it bears the number 98 and there are only sixty-nine provinces in Italy, each of which has its own number." There are not many boys of 7, even Italians, who know how many provinces there are.

COLLECTION INTERESTS.

The Crown Prince is extraordinarily interested in his father's collection of coins and knows them almost by heart. His greatest joy is in taking where excavations are going on, so that he may hunt for a coin which his father does not possess. One day he really picked up two or three, his joy being intense. All the way home in the automobile he held them tight in his hands, but, alas, they proved to be of little value. One of his favorite games is excavating, the garden at the Quirinal being full of holes in which he pretends to find untold treasures. One game is encouraged as it takes him away from his books. He can read in three languages, Italian, English and German, but being a patriotic young person, he actually does most of his reading in English, as children's books in Italian are as yet in their infancy, and those that are considered proper for him he already knows almost by heart. "Alice in Wonderland" is one of his favorites. "Water Babies" another, while it is no uncommon thing to hear "Mother Goose" rhymes sung at the top of a little voice in the corridors of the royal palace or in the garden.

RARE SPOONS OWNED BY ENGLAND'S QUEEN

LONDON, June 1.—The unique spoons that Queen Mary brought home with her from India makes her collection almost complete, nearly every country being represented by one or more specimens.

Some of the spoons which the queen bought in India are ancient and exquisitely jeweled. The queen's set of spoons is much more than a collection of spoons, it is a collection of art treasures. The spoons are of various shapes and sizes, and they are all very beautiful. The queen is very fond of her spoons, and she is very proud of them.

BEAUCHAMP BILL BRANDED A SOP TO BRITISH PUBLIC

Popular Anger Over Acquisition of Art Works Has Answer in Measure

LONDON, June 1.—The Beauchamp bill "for the protection of ancient monuments of British art," as the treasures transported by American millionaire bidders were described in this measure, was really only a sop to the passions of popular indignation aroused by the continued progress of the art processions from England to the United States. The wounded pride of British dignity was particularly touched by a statement made to the British art-lovers from the lips of a distinguished American artist, who recently toured the United States and visited the great galleries in the principal American cities. He seemed to be of opinion that within a very few years American art-lovers would have done more to build up an art Mecca than John Bull has succeeded in doing through centuries and centuries of art acquisition, by conquest and by purchase.

PLAN GARDEN VILLAGE.

The building of a garden village was commenced recently at Knobworth, the estate of Lord Lytton, when the first sod was cut by Mrs. Cecil Harmsworth.

One thousand acres have been planned by Edwin Lutyens, and the development of the work is to be entrusted to "Garden Villages, Ltd.," of which Lord Lytton is chairman. The Garden Villages Tenants' Society will erect the cottages around the village green. They are to have good gardens and will consist of three bedrooms and one bathroom apiece. The rent will be from 5 s 6 d and 6 s 6 d a week.

The principle of copartnership was referred to by the chairman of the Tenants' Society, who quoted the words of Ebenezer Howard, the pioneer of the garden city movement, when he said that the great necessity in such schemes was co-operation of the landlord and his tenants, an illustration of which was given in that system under which profits went to the reduction of rent.

Lord Lytton brought the ceremony to a close by a speech in which he said that in the garden city idea was found the great solution of a part at least of the greatest social problem, a question which needed as much consideration in the country as in the towns.

THEY ALSO WORRY.

Our United States courts are not alone in offering food for criticism on the ground of confusion of jurisdiction. From Cairo, Egypt, comes a series of complaints against the Mixed Tribunal and the Consular Courts, both claim the right to preside over several political cases now pending. The Judicial Adviser has submitted the matter in dispute to the Egyptian government, suggesting the establishment of a superior commission to decide between the two classes of courts wherever and whenever rival claims of jurisdiction are set up. This arrangement seems to satisfy neither side of the conflict, and it is likely to come up in the House of Commons as part of the proposal to make sweeping changes in the entire imperial judicial system. The attention of Lord Loreburn was directed to the desirability of making some sort of imperial territorial jurisdiction, both civil and criminal, when Justice Lorton was here some time ago getting pointers for the judicial reforms which President Taft has been preparing for the United States.

THEY ARE THRIFTY.

Next year Mary Curzon, eldest daughter of the late Lady Curzon, will be 17, and the finishing touches are now being put to her education in expectation of her social debut. The bringing up of Mary and her two sisters, Cynthia and Naldora, has been supervised by Mrs. Joseph Leiter, their grandmother, and the countess of Suffolk, their aunt, their father being occupied with public affairs.

Mrs. Curzon, however, made one stipulation—that they should be taught housekeeping, cooking and needlework in all its branches. The little girls, therefore, have been initiated into all home work, and the two eldest ones are now good cooks. The girls have been taught fancy work, "ancient and modern," even tapestry work. The Misses Curzon, who one day will be three of the richest girls in England, know how to darn socks, prepare a table linen, and to cut out and make garments.

All three speak French and German. Mary Curzon is wonderfully like her American mother.

CHURCH OBJECTS.

While "Shakespeare's England" invigorates the thousands in London, directed by the Rev. Headmaster of Eton, the church is no place for Shakespearean celebrations. Dr. Lytton said there is no connection between the poet's plays and Christianity though he admitted Shakespeare's dominating sense of the mystery encompassing all human life, and the steady effect of such a sense in the midst of the trivialities of ordinary existence. The principal points of criticism raised in connection with the poet's plays were (1) "the absence of allusion to the Bible," (2) "the emphasis laid on impersonal influences in the great tragedies," and (3) "the poet's indifference to the setting of his plots, whether they were put in pre-Christian times or later." But the principal object of his intervention in the play was found in "the total omission of the recovery of lost souls," and of any recognition that "the trans-

STRIKE ENDS EXISTENCE.

It was the coal strike which killed the London Evening Times, started by Charles Watney in the forlorn hope of reviving matinee Torism in the city of Ary and the serious injury done by his financial backers made a plucky fight, but the times were decidedly inopportune for the Evening Times. The publishers' estimate anticipated a loss of $300,000 during the first three years. The strike which broke the back of the principal backers, Capt. Morrison and Sir Samuel Scott, two militant Tory members of the Commons. Mr. Watney is one of London's most brilliant managing editors and he has up to the fact that he has much of his technical knowledge from Sam J. Pryor and other American newspaper men whom Alfred Harmsworth (Lord Northcliffe) brought to England to give British newspapers the sort of sensational and popular "pot-boilers" on the other side of the Atlantic. It was for several years foreign editor of the Daily Mail, is a robust athlete and a popular clubman.

KING GEORGE AT HOME ON THE SEA

Weymouth Incident Not First Time He Had Been in Command.

LONDON, June 1.—When King George hoisted his Union flag over the Neptune in the Weymouth Bay, it was not by any means the first time that he was in actual command of a British warship. One of the penalties of being a king is that every body seems to take it for granted that your majesty will not permit you to get seriously down to work. This, of course, is nonsense, as anyone in close intimacy with the actual official life of monarchs knows. In fact, the job of being king is no secure today, especially when you have to satisfy the exacting wants of a nation determined to get the utmost value for the amount subscribed in the civil list. This does not mean to suggest that the English people are at all niggardly in their attitude towards the royal family. Nothing of the kind; but the wave of republicanism has strengthened so much in recent years that the more ardent the monarchist, the more loyal the British Tory, the more exacting do these become in their demands upon the king's talent and the king's energy. George V has shown he is well equipped to play his difficult part. And when he occupied the quarter-deck of the Neptune, he was in every sense at home. In 1891, with the lineal rank of a commander, he held the down full-blown captain's berth as the capable skipper of the cruiser Melampus. He took this fine old fighter through the maneuvers of that year and was voted by old sea dogs of the navy the true successor of William IV as England's sailor prince. While he did not go to Aldershot with the same technical and practical preparation, he fulfilled the duty of inspecting England's army field corps with the same seriousness and the same success. George V is much more than the nation's figurehead. He is a thorough-going Britisher in every thing he does, and if he does make even his pleasures seriously, why, as the witty Frenchman said, "that is the characteristic way with the English."

REVOLUTIONISTS

W

When the seamen on the Brazilian war vessel lying in the harbor of Rio Janeiro revolted in the latter part of November, the government from shore, and authorized in that insurrection for two weeks, the only man the general public whose name came to the quartermaster. All that was said of him was that he was more or less a professional revolutionist and that he had been a hero of the revolution of 1894. This porhaps does not seem like an exhaustive information, yet it is enough to put Candido in the ranks of a class of immortals who have been the idols since the time when men first began the tribes and settlements.

Only a few weeks ago Capt. George E. Boynton died in New York City, and the world was apprised of the fact that the greatest professional revolutionist of the latter half of the nineteenth century had passed away. Governments may rejoice in the fact, especially un- stable, iniquitous governments, but in the secret heart of every man the world over with a love of adventure and a respect for the man who champions liberty the stories of such men as Boynton and Candido are treasured as the tales worth rehearsing and adoring. This may be because men love adventure, or it may be because they love freedom; at any rate the revolution is a fascinating character.

Revolution the Greatest of Games.

War is a great game, but revolution is a greater. Politics is a great game, likewise; but revolution is a still greater one. In war and politics, defeat may be honorable and the vanquished honored, but in revolution defeat is ignominy and for the vanquished there is no defense wall and a volley of musketry. Therefore the professional revolutionist has the greatest chance of the side of the earth. It is the greatest gamemaster on any rank, the mercenary, he is not the soldier of fortune, —No. No professional revolutionist ever acquired wealth and most of them died in the cause of liberation. The chances for material poverty, hardship and death. Certainly the satisfaction of being an ally and arbiter in the strangest game on the face of a revolution overruled and rheumatized farmer. Bolivar and he died an American's greatest revolutionist. Bolivar was Latin him in comfort in his premature decline. Tadeusz Lukso fought until the time of his death to locate any Polish uprising in the American revolution and find it would be a difficult matter to locate any and struggle.

true professional revolutionist never fights on the struggling side. He does not always fight on the justice of the revolt. He is a man with his blood; the revolt, then. He is a man with fortunes may at times have more to do with his for the balance a revolutionary group than cold oppression and in time all firmly established seats where one class rules and another is ruled the fields for his endeavor.

professional revolutionist must be distinguished patriot, though most of them start as distinguished of all he must be distinguished from patriots, soldier of fortune who will fight anywhere attacking thrilling adventure. For the pro-revolutionist is a class unto himself and as a unlike all others. The pro-revolutionist were Garibaldi, Kosciuszko, and such and such men as Jose Candido, Bolivar, George and Luis Christmas. They are men in whom there is a hero's blaze, and every man's soul is stirred by their various trials and dangers and sympathies as if as nothing to the list of discontent, exile, and obscurity.

On Jan. 19 of this year, began his career in the civil war. He has never been taken prisoner, but during his fighting years, struggled for something like forty-seven years, and few dangers, hardships, and crises he has not passed.

War His Training School.

His father was a prominent surgeon in such and complacent could have accord with his temperament; but he ran away and joined the Illinois share of hard saber to saber fighting. Such a fascination to saber fighting. Impossible to have dragged him out the rank of major he had returned in solution down he was hopeless. In the work of Cuba came as a Manuel de Cespedes. Killing part of a blockade runner and a stores of the New York author-amer than was not to his taste. Every- that when the battles he had seen at away he rushed over to France the Franco-Prussian war to France as a smuggler of weapons. Once a first consignment into Bordeaux satly to his disappointment.

In every South American revolution. He was in the revolt against Balmaceda in Chile in '81, and later fought Bazas in Santo Domingo and Hipocito in Haiti. In Venezuela he helped to overturn the tyranny of Casarais. On several occasions he took a hand in New York by the United States took a hand in the island's ruling the nation into international conflicts by his maneuvers, and on one occasion they deliberately seriously about trying him for piracy to set him out of the way.

All this strife and conflict never increased Boynton's fortune by so much as a penny. Much of it was done without a salary of any sort and in many cases he gave up his private fortune to boost the cause of some professional revolutionary war interest. And the end and reward were at the service of any man whose hands were stained with blood, whose hands were stained with blood, whose hands were stained with blood, and whose hands were stained with blood.

Revolutionists of Recent Years.

John Moisant, the unfortunate aeroplanist, who recently killed by a fall from his machine, was at one time a professional revolutionist in Central America. Lee Christman, the New Orleans engineer who failed to hold a job because he was color blind, conducted a revolution in Nicaragua and tried to found a separate state in Lower California. Eyadéma, now Maj. Gen. Funston of the United States army, started his military career as Hotchkiss gunner for the Cuban revolutionists and strangely enough put an end to the active rebellion in the Philippines by capturing Aguinaldo.

Among the most notorious and persistent of modern revolutionists is Ahmed Ben Mohammed El-Raisuli, a cousin of the sultan of Morocco, of oriental cunningships, and a bandit preponderant in North Africa. Raisuli is now 42 years old, and for nearly half his life he has defied the government under which he was born and every other government as well, with a vast horde of trained fighters under his immediate command, and thousands of ever active and religiously faithful agents in every town in North Africa.

Personally Raisuli is typical of the intellectual rebel. He is of the noblest blood in Morocco. He is tall, handsome, and fair, and in his youth received the best education his country affords. As a young man he avenged an insult to his sister and was chained to a stone wall in debt and misery for four years, which was not conducive to sweetness of disposition. When he finally moved in and to the hills and became a marauder and cattle thief.

 His popularity grew when he opened the caravan route into the interior which the Sultan had closed, and encouraged foreign traffic. He maintained order down to the gates of Fex and his rule extended to the Mediterranean. Raisuli is proud and vindictive, but rational and a just tyrant and promotes commerce and the welfare and so far as his career is concerned the foreign intercourse with his people. He is a born revolutionist though by necessity his activities have been confined to his native hills.
 The Greatest
 Doubtless Giuseppe Garibaldi, the Italian liberator who was born at Nice July 4, 1807. He joined Mazzini's "Young Italy" movement while a seiler in the Italian navy in 1834 and from that time almost to the day of his death he was engaged in the work of liberation. His activities are chronicled in the work of Mazzini. Made records of almost every event in the history of Rome. When he was not actually in the service of Mazzini, he was needed, and lending revolutions where they sympathized.

Call of Oppressed Always Answered.
He fought for every state in Italy, in Brazil, in Montevideo, in Hungary, in Sicily, and in France. He worked for the liberation of Denmark and in the declining years when he was so weak and old, he was that he could not stand, he was so weak and old, he was 1894 and there was good reason for it. In 1894 the revolutionists were in possession of fourteen battleships, four torpedo boats, and four submarines, and in fact, a complete navy. They lay in the harbor and shelled the forts, but eventually failed to take the city and overthrow the government. One of the men in that engagement was Jono Candido, a tall, bulky mariner whose level head and heroism won him quite a name among his fellow sailors.

• This last year the punishment of tars by flogging and other antiquated methods called forth a protest from the whole naval force, and while forth a protest from Candido all the ships in the harbor and abused and flogged. Several others were killed, but the majority were put ashore, and the old hero was for the time sent to the city located when they heard of the # Making Odd Moments Count.

"Learn to Let Go All Pressure and Strain of Body and Limbs. When Seated. Learn to Relax Mind and Body if Only for a Few Minutes." SAYS

Lillian Russell

By LILLIAN RUSSELL

(Copyright 1912 By Lillian Russell)

We all have time to relax and we all have time to exercise in the ordinary working and busy hours of the day. We have only to make up our minds to improve each of those odd moments and hours.

If the women and girls who go to work in the early hours of the morning would begin to think right the moment they arise from their beds they would be right during the entire day and be so much happier for it.

To keep one's temper and good manners seems to be more difficult in the morning than at any other time during the day. The soap will fall and slide away out of our reach. The buttonhook will get mislaid, the hooks will come off the waist, and a hundred other things will happen to irritate, especially when we are in a hurry. If we have the courage to laugh instead of giving way to temper we will recover such losses quicker than we will by fussing about them.

People have many more opportunities to take exercise during the day than they realize—for instance, just the walking up and down stairs, if looked upon as an exercise, will be an exercise. Walking from one room to another, or walking just a few blocks, will act as an exercise if taken as such. Thinking makes it so.

Reaching up to shelves, whether for a book, or a box, or for anything at all, will exercise the arms and shoulders and lengthen the waist if such duties are thought of as exercises. Thought makes the motive of movement, as it makes the motive of rest. The rule works both ways; as daily duties may be made beneficial exercises, so also may daily duties be made restful.

If when taking a seat in a car, going to or from either places of work or amusement, one would sit comfortably, let go all pressure and strain of body and limb, and just give the mind a rest, for even a few moments, not thinking of who is in the car or what they have on, not looking out of the window to see what is passing, not thinking of any of the work to come nor the work that has been done, draw a few deep, long breaths, relaxing hands and feet at the same time, one can restore the equilibrium in that short time and rest body and mind to a surprising extent.

People Crave Entertainment.

Dr. Langmaid of Boston, a great throat specialist, told me that if people would take their railroad trips as restful relaxations they would be benefited by them thoroughly.

The trouble with most people is that they want to be entertained whenever they have a leisure hour or two. They cannot sit still and take absolute rest when they have the chance; they must do something—talk, read, play cards, or tax their minds in some way—whereas every occasion they have to sit down alone should be used as a rest.

When walking be determined to walk correctly. Learn to relax while walking. A graceful walk is natural to many, especially those who are not self-conscious; others may acquire it by practice. Theories with regard to its accomplishment are numerous and varying. Naturally they are also somewhat contradictory, since the movements of the graceful women of all countries differ as widely as do their types of beauty; and every author and artist has his favorite type, which he pronounces the only perfect one.

A composite type results in the recommendation of a swing with most of the action dependent upon the thighs, the feet swinging from the relaxed knees into natural and graceful positions.

There are almost as many walks as there are individuals. It is temperamental, as much an indicator of the habits, character, and emotions as the voice. The perfect walk must be straight, each step a foot apart—your own foot, not the ordinary foot measure.

Bobbing up and down, pitching, rolling, strutting must be avoided as gymnastic crimes. The great work of the movement falls to the lot of the thigh, the vital division of the leg. This is the strongest portion of the frame. The foot should be lifted but slightly, and although in its natural state it is "fashioned to grasp the ground," yet when clothed in the coverings invented by man often, unfortunately, the heel must first touch the ground. Remember, heavily striking the heel in walking is not only detrimental to health from the succession of shocks given the system and brain but is considered a noisy vulgarity and is as well productive of extreme ungracefulness.

Want of Thought Causes Awkwardness.

Emerson struck for the whole world the keynote to gracefulness when he said: "Give me a thought and my hands and legs and voice and face will go right. And we are awkward for want of thought." Learn to direct your thoughts from yourself and dwell upon the worthy ones of others. You will then forget awkward limbs, which will soon prove, as the same writer says, that nature is the best posture maker. Do not follow fashionable fads in locomotion, for none of them ever has or ever will be an exponent of grace. Let lofty thoughts inspire the pose and nature will take care of the action.

Grace in repose is more difficult of attainment than grace in action. In the latter there are necessarily varying attitudes. A person who constantly changes her position while sitting loses all that dignity of repose which is so closely allied with grace. She makes a hopeless striving after the latter and renders uncomfortable all observers.

A rigid upright position, as if one were momentarily expecting to encounter a calamity, is one of the frequent sitting postures in which every possible tendency to grace is totally obliterated. It is strained, uncomfortable, and unnatural and should be avoided. Its opposite, however, when the edge of the chair seat is made the balancing point for extended limbs and reclining shoulders, is not only indicative of bad breeding but is reprehensible beyond question, no matter how comfortable the sitter, who is usually a man, may be.

Occupy the whole seat of an ordinary chair and lean upon its back so far as you may without detracting from an easy, refined, and graceful position. It must be admitted that modern furniture is not universally comfortable, and curves that would be conducive to ease are often sacrificed for lines pleasing to the eye.

It is a fact that the features of which every sitter may take advantage in maintaining a graceful pose.

Soft Voice Great Charm.

A voice sweet, resonant, expressive, is one of the greatest charms that may fall to the lot of or be acquired by any one. A voice which has not been disciplined or cultivated is like an untamed savage on whom tranquility no reliance can be placed. It follows every mood and often betrays the intensity of the latter, occasioning harsh and loud when its possessor is only slightly irritated or staid and hoarse when she is only ordinarily merry. When you have learned to subdue your voice tendencies in this direction, then begin the development of the attractive qualities. If you are not an actress, you may, aided by a few hints, train your voice to a pleasing modulation without professional assistance.

Speech is as musical as song, and its compass is normally the same. The dominant note is always near the middle of the compass and is the one on which the person can "speak and sing with the best effect, with the greatest ease and for the greatest length of time." The first step, therefore, is to aim to control the dominant note. But this must not be developed to an unpleasant resonance.

"There are two kinds of loud voices—the vocally loud, which is the vulgar voice, and the dynamically loud, which is the powerful voice. A voice, however powerful it may be, should be inferior to the power which animates it."

"Accent is the modulation of the soul."

"If you would move others, put your heart in the place of your larynx; let your voice become a mysterious hand to caress the hearer."

In these quotations may be found the whole theory which if followed will render a voice pleasing long after youth has passed and the years are crowding along with all their ravaging inroads.

The possessor of a valuable article—a gem, a fine engraving, or some priceless painting—guards and protects his treasure with jealous care from the rough touches of time or vandals. She who would protect her beauty, the most prized of all the endowments of nature, must be even more vigilant still, so many and insidious are the attacks made upon it by time, conditions of mind, temperament, and the tendencies of the disposition.

Remember: Odd moments are blessed opportunities for self-protection.

We all have time to relax.

People have more opportunity to take exercise during the day than they realize.

We all have time to exercise if we will but make the effort.

Miss Lillian Russell will answer inquiries from beauty seekers and send her recipes to anyone who will write her in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped envelope for a reply.

G. A. R. MUSE IN SIGHTLESS POET

E. Bisbee Taylor, Veteran of Civil War, Is Author of Memorial Poem.

The following poem was recited at the Memorial Day exercises at Evergreen cemetery by the author, E. Bisbee Taylor, a blind veteran who served all through the Civil War and now carries a mangle ball in his thigh which he received at the battle of Cedar Mountain. The origin of his blindness was exposure and partial sunstroke during the war.

Echoes of war half a century gone,
When battles were fought and victories won,
When patriots, contending in deadly strife,
Freed a fettered race, saved a nation's life—
Stir to memory awaken to life
Thoughts of the wall and the woe in that tragic scene
And uplift us this day at Evergreen.

The flag they defended floats here, on high,
By sea breezes kissed, most curiously;
The cannon dark, stern, stand guard silently
Over the green mounds where our heroes lie.
And arched over all the soft azure sky,
Fond tribute we pay mid a most fitting scene
This Memorial Day at Evergreen.

Like a pleasure which with sadness is tinged,
Like soft, sombre clouds that the sunbeams have fringed,
Like fond memories that come during twilight's soft hours,
Is our feelings this day as we scatter
Over the graves of these loved ones of ours,
O'er the green mounds where so calm and serene
They sleep their last sleep at fair Evergreen.

'Tis noble to suffer, that others may thrive,
Ah, 'tis grander to die that others may live.
For the flag you revere, and the Country you love,
Hark! The whispering of wings mid the flowers as they move!
A still voice is saying, "The Angels approve!
They're hovering near smiling, blessing the scene
This Memorial Day at Evergreen."

Blest be Old Glory, waving over us now
As thrilled with these memories we reverently bow,
Blest be our Country where all men are free,
And the Patriots who died for you and for me,
Who made our flag peerless on land and on sea,
Most blest be this gathering—long cherish the scene
This sacred day at Evergreen.

BOARDING HOUSE RULES GOT THIS ONE THE COIN

Word comes from Chicago to the effect that a famous boarding-house keeper of that city has retired from business after getting a comfortable nest-egg, and there are printed these rules by which the good woman achieved her success. She herself supplies the rules.

Some of them follow:
Give everybody plenty to eat.
Make the food plain and good.
Make the table and house homelike.
Don't run too much to style. Men rather have a thick, juicy breakfast than cut glass and fancy silver.

Make your boarders behave themselves, but give them plenty of liberty.
In other words, be an easy boss. My boys always told me their troubles and sought my advice.

This ought to work well in keeping a boarding house. But one wonders if there are any such boarding houses, and if the same rules applied by every woman who presides over an establishment would not put the divorce courts out of business.

If the word mother or wife were substituted for "boarding-house keeper," would it not be evident that the rules we have given would insure cheer and prosperity anywhere?

It is a kind and happy woman, whatever her station may be, who can say, "My boys always told me their troubles and sought my advice."

TEXAS TICKLES 'AD' MEN; THOUSAND-MILE SURPRISE

Fred L. Hall Returns From Dallas, Praising Lone Star State

Bubbling over with enthusiasm and replete with stories of Texas hospitality, Fred L. Hall, advertising manager of THE TRIBUNE, who was a delegate from the Oakland Advertising Association to the National Association of Advertising Clubs, which recently convened in Dallas, Texas, returned home yesterday after a three weeks' trip through the Lone Star state. Mr. Hall is enthusiastic on the subject of Texas and appreciative as he is of the advantages of his native state, California, he still maintains that there are many things in the South that could well be emulated by California to its advantage.

In a short talk with THE TRIBUNE'S advertising manager concerning his Texas trip the point that Mr. Hall wanted to impress most forcibly was the hospitality of the people of this big Southern empire. The advertising men who assembled in Dallas were never before shown such remarkable consideration.

NO TIME FOR BUSINESS.

"Why," said "us," measure the convention itself was a side issue. There was so much planned for our social entertainment in Dallas that in many instances the serious questions and discussions of the program as outlined were given slight courtesy indeed.

"But with it all the big heartedness of the good people of the South will never be forgotten by the two thousand or more advertising men who attended. At the conclusion of the regular sessions of the convention in Dallas those of the attendants who desired were invited as guests on a thousand-mile trip through Texas, visiting the cities of Fort Worth, Waco, San Antonio, Galveston and Houston. At each of these thriving Texas cities the town was literally thrown wide open for our pleasure and entertainment. Committees met our trains each morning where we were treated to hotels, etc., automobiles were at our command, and in fact, everything that could be conceived to advance the pleasure of the visiting ad men was done.

"TEXAS A SURPRISE.
"Texas proved a surprise to us all," said Hall, "aside from the purely social features of the three weeks' trip, Houston is a busy, thriving city which will unquestionably rank high in the commercial centers of the United States."

"At Galveston they are planning an added prosperity upon the completion of the Panama canal. The new causeway at Galveston connecting this famous seaport with the mainland has just been opened to traffic and is a source of considerable gratification on the part of the residents of that portion of Texas. In fact, all through Texas there are evidences of the greatest material prosperity.

"Dallas, a city of 100,000 population, possesses office buildings, skyscrapers and new hotels that we of Oakland have not yet dreamed of. "Waco, a city of 30,000, points with pride to its twenty-three story office building, Houston, fifty miles inland, with its hustling spirit, is bringing deep water to its center with the completion of the Houston ship canal which will allow deep water vessels to dock at the foot of its main streets.

"And so on through all Texas, at least that portion of it visited by the ad men, shows every indication of material prosperity. The treatment accorded the advertising men was of such a high order that—well, we will all go to Texas any old time, for one can not meet with a heartier or more sincere welcome anywhere.

"The journey, of course, not to secure the 1913 convention for San Francisco, but in the wisdom of the powers that be in the National Association of Advertising Men it was decreed that San Francisco should withdraw from the contest, which she did with honor to herself."

HOARD WEALTH; NOW LIVE IN LUXURY

KENT, June 1.—After scrupulously hoarding every penny he and his wife could make for twenty years, "Charlie" Tumura, a Japanese, and Mrs. Tumura, included in their first extravagance, amounting to a cool $800; and next week will bid their fellow-Nipponese farewell as they depart for their native land to spend the remainder of their days in leisure.

The $800 was spent by the Tumuras in banqueting their Japanese acquaintances throughout the entire White River Valley; and those who attended the sumptuous affair stated afterwards that it was some spread. Both American and Japanese dishes were served in three long courses, while in an adjoining room a specially engaged orchestra discoursed appropriate music.

Tables were laid for two hundred guests coming from all parts of the valley. The Japanese quarter of Kent was fittingly beautified by a decorator from Seattle, while a caterer from the same city had full charge of the menu. The banquet was pronounced the best this city has ever seen.

"Charlie" Tumura and his wife have worked at most everything since their first came here a score of years ago; and by wise investment their nestegg grew into five figures and they became known as the richest Japanese in the valley. Both looked forward to the day when they could return independently rich, but it was not until "Charlie" received a cable from home that his mother was near death that he finally decided to go back.

DOCTOR OFF ON A STRANGE WAGER

NEW YORK, June 1.—Dr. Jorke Mikkelson, of the Norwegian Lutheran Dorcas Hospital of Chicago, left New York yesterday in the steamer of the North American Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II. He reached Hoboken with $100, bought his ticket and then spent all except $2.65 in preparation for the trip. Dr. Mikkelson's trip is the result of a bet. Under the conditions he must visit Copenhagen, London, Paris and Berlin, enter a medical institute at Vienna and return with a certificate that he has passed the final examination. He must also do what he spends he must keep account of. If he is successful two physicians at his hospital in Chicago will pay him as much as he earns and spends and $100 each besides.

PEACH CROP GOOD.

EXETER, June 1.—From Manager Einstein of the Hunt Bros. cannery, it is learned that arrangements are being completed for a big run this summer. The peach crop promises to be a good one and that will be the main product used this summer, as the cannery was not able to get under way for the apricots this season.

ATHEARN PREACHES RAILROAD IDEAL

Commonwealth Club Hears of 'New Relation' to the Public.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—"The New Relation of the Railroad to the People" was the subject of an address before the Commonwealth Club by Fred G. Athearn today. Athearn said:

"An address on the new relation of the railroad to the people produces an 'old relation.' The term 'old relation' covers literally and figuratively a multitude of sins. I shall not, however, attempt to go into an explanation of that term. It is always pleasant to turn our eyes toward the future, and furthermore, I feel quite certain that the interpretation of the term, 'old relation,' can be safely left to your imagination without too severe limitation. Suffice it to say that there remains now only the shadow of the 'old relation'—a shadow that is rapidly fading in the light of awakening conscience, justice and fair dealing.

"By this light the new relation is discernible, and it is seen to be personality within, and as a constituent part of it, the legally created fiction, the impersonal corporation.

"The corporation is a happy legal convenience for giving ready, effective and consistent expression to co-operative endeavor. But in common with most human devices, as it developed there grew concurrently with it a new danger to society. This danger was the elimination of personality, the submerging, as it were, of the sense of personal responsibility.

"In my opinion, the thing that has been the root of a very large proportion of corporation evils has been the elimination of personality in corporation management. Legislatures may work uneasiness, laws may be passed ad infinitum, but as long as there is a failure to recognize that railroads and other corporations, after all, are composed of individuals who have duties and rights that are as commanding and as sacred as those of the people, we shall continue to have maladjustment and social friction.

"There has grown up a sharp distinction between the individual operators of a business and the business itself. As the unit has grown larger and larger, this gulf has grown broader and broader, until we have the spectacle of a large corporation becoming a sort of a delinquency apart from any of its owners or any of its operators.

"Beginning with the savings account, which the clerk dare not spend for fear his life plans may go awry, and leading up to the vast rights of way and equipment of a railroad, the dominant force that controls is that strange, outside influence, the needs of this selfish business. Personality is lost in the sea of impersonality.

"Evil acts are committed in the name of the organization which no single individual would have committed on his own name. The public has shared in this attitude and has like bowed down before and battled against the fictitiously created impersonal corporation instead of the real, personal, constituent members.

"As well might the police rail against the mob when a riot occurs, in the name of the crowd men will do overt acts which psychologists well point out would never be committed under normal conditions. Yet arrests are made of individuals for this is the only efficient means of control. It is a new death at a crowd and attempt to throw the whole group into jail would defeat the purpose.

As has been aptly said, 'It's no use to destroy the machine if it's the chauffeur you want.' To make separate men feel that they themselves are to be held accountable and held to punish is a sufficient lesson to restore law and order. In short, that justice may obtain in society, justice must obtain between the individual members of society. To accomplish this end every transaction must, in its final analysis, rest upon persons and be subject to personal accountability."

1000 AUTOMOBILES IN CIVIC PARADE

San Jose Brings to Close Campaign for 'City Beautiful' With Demonstration.

SAN JOSE, June 1.—The "City Beautiful" campaign, conducted by the Chamber of Commerce, and which has extended over a period of two months, was brought to a close today by an automobile parade in which more than a thousand citizens of San Jose participated. The campaign was declared a success and it was the opinion of the judges that the city presents a far more beautiful appearance than it did several weeks ago.

Gardens have been planted in vacant lots throughout the city and unsightly buildings have been torn down.

Following the inspection parade, public speaking was held in the St. James park. James D. Phelan of San Francisco, as well as several prominent San Joseans, including Mayor Davidson, spoke of the city beautiful.

FLEET CRUISE WAS TO 'SHOW' JAPAN

Admission Concerning World
Voyage in 1909 Made for First Time.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Admission was made by a high official in Washington today that the famous around-the-world cruise by the battleship fleet, completed in 1909, was in reality a naval demonstration against Japan. It was directly due to an attempt by Ambassador Aoki to browbeat Elihu Root, then Secretary of State. The motive underlying the cruise is given here for the first time.

"In 1907, when the Japanese immigration situation was acute, Aoki made daily calls at the Department of State," said the International News Service informant.

"In his conversations with Mr. Root the ambassador even went so far as to threaten the United States with the consequences if it did not yield and grant an open door to Japan to the United States. Aoki's policy was to browbeat Secretary Root into conceding the principle of the menacing attitude assumed by Japan."

"President Roosevelt immediately summoned the master mind of the navy. 'How many battleships can you get ready without delay?' he snapped. 'The ready of the first class type ready for any emergency,' came the reply. 'Get them ready,' instructed Mr. Roosevelt. 'The next day the fleet was ready and within a week it received orders to move out.'"

"By the time these sixteen battleships steamed out of Hampton Roads the attitude of Japan had undergone a change. It no longer talked of consequences. The immigration question was quickly and amicably settled by an agreement that the United States would make no objection to the arrival of Japanese merchants, scholars, tourists or students in the United States, but Japan engaged on her side to prevent absolutely the emigration to the United States of Japanese coolies or laborers."

"Oscar Strauss, then in Roosevelt's cabinet, visited Japan and to his tact and diplomacy the happy settlement of all the questions in dispute was due. Japan had neither forgotten or forgiven that naval demonstration. She knows exactly what it meant. If Congress fails to provide for two battleships Japan will not be intimidated the next time. She is making ready for just such emergency. The Democrats in Congress are the most active allies of Japan in preparing for American humiliation."

MARRIED AFTER FORTY YEARS' SEPARATION

Cape Charles, Va., June 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Crothers, a bridal couple, left here for New York to spend their honeymoon. The bride is 65 years old and the bridegroom is 67.

The couple were sweethearts in their youth in damson, Va., but parted after a quarrel forty years ago. Crothers left Adamston for the west, became a mine prospector in Nevada, and after years of hard work accumulated a fortune. Mrs. Crothers, who was then Miss Elliott, also left her home, telling her friends she was going to visit a relative living out of town. Nothing was heard of the young woman for several years, until she quietly returned to the home of her parents.

During all the years of their separation not one line of correspondence passed between the estranged couple, and said was unusual of the other's whereabouts.

Mr. Crothers paid a visit to his home town a few weeks ago and learned that his sweet heart of years ago had never married. A meeting was arranged, their friendship was renewed, and the love of former youth revived. They called on the Rev. Joseph F. Harris of the Methodist church of Adamston, where both had attended Sunday school in their childhood days, and were married. They will reside in Nevada.

ELKS PLAN MINSTREL MELANGE DAYS OF EMERSON RECALLED

MISS CLARA ALEXANDER, WHO WILL ASSIST AT THE ELKS ENTERTAINMENT FOR BENEFIT OF PORTLAND FUND.

Miss Clara Alexander, Gifted Delineator of Southern Darkey, on Big Bill

Elks of the three lodges on this side of the bay are busy preparing for a big show which will be held at the Macdonough Theater on Friday and Saturday evenings of next week. All of the best talent of Alameda, Berkeley and Oakland lodges of the antlered herd will participate in the performances, and the various stunts to be given are being rehearsed nightly.

One of the big features will be the old-time minstrel melange, which will form the closing number of the show. Minstrelsy as it was depicted in the days of Charley Reed and Billy Emerson will form the basis of this part of the program. Such soloists as E. J. Finney, Lowell Redfield, Arthur Morgenstern and Arthur Leydecker will render the ballads and Will H. Bray, Howard Herrmann, Fred Wilson and Tommy Branch will be the end men. Dr. C. L. Fiedale will be the middle man, and from the time that he says "Gentlemen, be seated," until the close of the patriotic finale, there will be a medley of the good old ballads and minstrel songs such as were popular about 30 years ago.

A chorus of 30 trained voices will supplement the soloists. Will H. Bray, one of the oldest Elks in the country and a member of New York Lodge, No. 1, will direct this number, and Homer Sweeney of Berkeley Lodge will be the musical conductor. While several of the more important numbers of the vaudeville program will be supplied by Elks, the bill is by no means confined to them, and one of the brilliant outside acts will be supplied by Miss Clara Alexander. This gifted delineator of the Southern darkey, though a native born American, has been in England for several years, and is in this vicinity on a visit to relatives. The Elks secured her services for the show and she will repeat her London successes here.

Miss Alexander was a much-sought after drawing-room entertainer in the world's metropolises and has also appeared in the leading vaudeville theaters here. In speaking of her work, the London Star has this to say: "Miss Clara Alexander has given the 'coon' a definite place in poetry—not the irresponsible slobber in sugar-stick knickerbockers, but the real dreamy, romantic negro, who has a grim love for the morbid in religion and song, and whose folk-melodies have a haunting refrain that is only caught by one who has lived among them. Miss Alexander is not the ordinary 'coon' singer. She has studied the Southern negro in his work and in his play, and she has come to England with a full knowledge of his poetry, his romance and his folklore. She gives a clearer insight into 'coon' life and character, his humors and his sorrows, than has before been possible on the stage."

GIRLS RUSH FOR JOBS AS USHERS

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—Since Sara Louise Homans, usher at the Metropolitan opera house here, eloped with William H. Kemble Yarrow on April 25 no less than 112 girls—tall, short, blond and brunette, but all beautiful, according to their letters—have made application by mail for places as ushers.

On the day following the Yarrow Homans wedding nearly forty letters were received at the office of the Metropolitan opera house. The next day a dozen more arrived. Each day brought more. Some were written on scented paper and others on business stationery, showing that in the heads of many stenographers and stenographers with modest prices existed to make the long day at the typewriter shorter and more pleasant.

Half of the letters were accompanied by photographs, and not a few of the applicants await at great length on their vocal talents and true artistic appreciation of art and artists.

WITHOUT LIQUOR LICENSE.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Thomas Christ, a vegetable dealer of Nineteenth and Vermont streets, was forced to pay a fine of $100 in the police court today when he was convicted of selling liquor without a license.

MINERS' FAMILIES ARE EVICTED

Twenty-five Hundred Men, Women and Children Camp in Open Air.

PITTSBURGH, June 1.—Twenty-five hundred men, women and children—miners and their families—were evicted today by the Great Lakes Coal company, and camped in the hills behind Kaylor, an Allegheny valley mining town, 70 miles from Pittsburgh. Surrounded by their household goods, these poor homeless people are making the best of open air bivouacs and with the grim dotted by fires, were tonight discussing the strike that had ended in their being put out of their homes. The corporation owning the mines and the homes at Kaylor, served notice early this week that unless the striking miners signed the wage scale the company proposed and which the miners say is lower than that paid by any "organized mine" the houses would have to be vacated. The evictions took place this morning, a company of state constabulary being on hand to enforce the order.

A delegation of Socialists has gone from Pittsburgh to Kaylor to bring the children of the evicted miners to this city for safe keeping.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., June 1.—Serious rioting between 1500 striking miners and private detectives of the coal operators is imminent at Muckrock, near here, and Governor Glasscock has been called upon for troops to preserve order.

The request for troops followed the ambushing of a dozen of the operators' guards who were fired on by the miners, who have refused to go to work under the wage scale agreed on at a conference.

The miners are armed with old Springfield army rifles, which the operators assert, have been shipped here in case of riot.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING WHILE MILKING COW

BLAINSTOWN, N. J., June 1.—Striking in the barn of the Van Horn farm, in Pottersville, a milkmaid, Mrs. Catharine M. Carr, 65 years old, was instantly killed by lightning. The woman had been milking her cow, when a sudden flash of lightning struck her on the head, and she fell dead. She was at the cow's feet when the lightning struck.

GIRL BEATS GOAT BY AID OF PLANK

Wins Back Yard Fight in the Third Round; Billy Takes the Count.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Esther Delaney, young champion and champion yesterday fought and won a three-round battle with William Goat.

The contest was staged in an improvised ring, a back yard on the Northwest Side. Miss Delaney is a census taker for the board of education, and never fought anybody before this contest. When she accepted her credentials as census taker, however, she undertook to be anything from a coddler of babies to a white man's hope.

"The fight was won in the second round, although the hollow-headed ruminant did not take the count until the third was nearly over."

CHILDREN ARE SPECTATORS.

The ring was filled with goat when Miss Delaney entered. On the fence was a cluster of children who cheered on the battle. The entrance of Miss Delaney in the discharge of her duty gave the signal for the fight to begin. A detailed account follows the decision was won.

Round 1—Goat stood on hind legs and pawed the air, then with the speed of an avalanche rushed for the census taker. In a whirl of dust he passed the place where she had been. A bit of quick action had been her last but not her last way. Round closed with W. Goat gasping for breath.

PLANK SAVES THE DAY.

Round 2—Goat forces fighting. Miss Delaney forgot that Marquis of Queensberry ever lived and picked up a three-inch plank. As goat rushed she led with terrific force at goat's head, landing squarely. Goat falls for count of seven. Both retire to corners for breath.

Round 3—Goat rushes, forcing census taker to fence. She sidesteps. Sparring for advantage, she brings down plank on goat's head with cyclonic force. Goat shudders and drops for count. Lady bows to assume and "kick" and goes on her way with the goat's goat.

CHICAGO TO HAVE CUPID FIRST AID

Hope Room Agency Scheme to Bring Suitors for Working Girls.

CHICAGO, June 1.—The working girl's chances for getting married are increased materially by a system of "first aid" to women which will be urged before the Women's club next July.

The plan described is to establish a downtown agency at which girls may apply for direct aid in the home of the city. The plan is to be able to receive the "gentlemen friends," and that the "gentlemen friends" attracted to the agency will be able to find a girl who is in need of a husband. What that duty is to be left to any blind man—it is to "pop the question" at the altar.

WILL CHANGE GENDER FIGURES.

Operation of the plan, which was first proposed at a meeting of the welfare exhibit at the Chicago Exposition, will be to change the figures with regard to unmarried youth when the next census is taken. The census of 1910 showed 64,625 males between the ages of 16 and 21 and 88,731 females. Most of these were unmarried.

STARTED WITH HOME PLAN.

"The plan was first urged," said Miss Nicholson, "to enable working girls to find good homes instead of in the large rooming houses, and to give them chance to entertain their male friends as they would."

"It is probable that the committee will take the matter up with the Women's City club just as soon as plans are completed. As we look at the matter now the settlements will list the good homes in their neighborhood, which will accept of roomers, and their recommendation will make up the first list. Later there will be a second list."

Miss Collins declared that plans were in a nebulous state as yet and that the entire matter would be taken up at the next meeting of the board of directors.

FROZEN BODIES ARE MYSTERY OF TITANIC

NEW YORK, June 1.—The bodies of Titanic passengers picked up by the Minia are said to show that the victims did not drown, but froze to death. It was true of all the bodies that were picked up by the Mackay-Bennett. The passengers had on life preservers, which seem to have been sufficient to keep them afloat. They battled in the icy water until the cold overcame them. Presumably many of them were alive for a considerable time, the time during which a healthy man swimming vigorously would be able to bear a temperature several degrees above freezing.

But how long they lived, how did it happen that none of these bodies were seen by any of the big ships which reached the place of the disaster soon after the Titanic sank? With life preservers on, which prevented the lungs from filling with water the bodies picked up by the Minia and others were probably never seen. Yet the Carpathia reported that she examined the wreckage of the Titanic carefully in cruising over the scene and found no one afloat, either alive or dead. The captain of the Mount Temple testified that he reached the scene of the wreck soon after the Carpathia and saw no one in the water, either dead or alive. The captain of the Californian testified that he reached the place of sinking at 8:30 o'clock on the following morning and spent two and one-half hours searching and saw no bodies.

Some of those who died as they were picked up by the Minia died lifeboats. Some of them may have been alive when the big vessels came to the rescue. Their fate adds poignancy to the tragedy. Why no one of the many who probably never sank was found until days after the accident is one of the mysteries.

TWO CHURCHILLS, REPLY TO E. D. M.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: Will you kindly tell me if there are two men of the name of Winston Churchill, one American, one English. Both are authors. The American has been known for his historical novels, including "Richard Carleton," "The Crisis" and "The Celebrity." The English Churchill is best known as a political writer. He is also half American, his father being the former statesman, Lord Randolph Churchill, and his mother the former Lady Randolph, now Mrs. George Randolph, of New York. And, perhaps, his mother was the American, Mrs. Jennie Churchill, sister of former District Attorney William Brewster, of New York city.

New York Man Wins Hand of Mildred Monzo

MISS MILDRED MONZO.

Miss Mildred Monzo, a young society bud of the Italian colony, announced her engagement to Ettore De Rosa of New York City at a very pretty gathering at her home on Saturday evening.

Many pleasant affairs are being arranged to be tendered in honor of the young couple previous to the wedding, which will take place in July.

After the ceremony the couple will depart for New York, where they will make their home.

MONKEY IS FINED FOR BLOCKADING SIDEWALK

ST. LOUIS, June 1.—Jocko, an educated monkey, was fined $1 and costs, aggregating $5.85, in Magistrate Baugh's court in East St. Louis Monday for blockading the sidewalk at Collinsville and Missouri avenues Saturday afternoon.

Jocko's master, John Carrell, was grinding out organ music and Jocko was making monkeyshines on the sidewalk when Policeman Bly came along. A crowd had gathered and traffic was interfered with. Carrell was arrested and charged with blockading the street.

When the case was heard it was found that Carrell had been standing in the street, but Jocko had been on the sidewalk and it was there the blockade occurred. Baugh wanted "the monkey" brought into court but Carrell demurred. Jocko then was fined, but Baugh stated that Carrell would be expected to pay. Carrell paid out of Jocko's earnings.

SULPHURRO BATHS AID

'Common Sense' Features Apparent to All Those Who Read Booklet; Free on Request.

(BY F. W. STRANG.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 1.—I am truly amazed at the widespread use of Sulphurro in Vancouver, Victoria and other Western cities of the Dominion. Cures of this new Sulphurro medicine in the most serious cases of Rheumatism, blood, skin, stomach and other disorders are fully as surprising as in the cities farther down the coast.

The people of British Columbia, being close to Seattle, the home of Sulphurro, heard of Mr. M. C. Stewart's Liquid Compound of Sulphurro from many other localities, and from friend to friend the word has passed with marvellous rapidity that the new medicine brings back health and strength by common-sense methods—the kind that Mother Nature uses.

Thus Sulphurro's fame has spread without any systematic publicity on the part of the newspapers, until almost every one I met north of the International line knows of its powers, and is recommending it to others.

Sulphurro Common-Sense Remedy. Many seem to think that there is something about the miraculous in the cure of Sulphurro, but I am explaining to all that such is not the case. Sulphurro is a blood purifier and regulator of the system, the actual of which has not yet been found. Regulate the system, force been found. Regulate the system, internal workings, purify the blood, put the stomach in the right condition, and disease has no chance. This is why such a large number of ailments yield before Sulphurro. It makes the blood rich and pure and cleanses the entire system. This does away with years disappear through the kindly work of nature. Disease germs leave the system, and the sufferer is restored to perfect health.

Sulphurro Bath Essential. Especially is Mr. Stewart recommending the bath as an essential part of the treatment. The Sulphurro bath is the most delightful form of ablation, and by means of it sulphur is absorbed into the system through the pores of the skin. Thus it not only improves the skin and keeps the pores open and free, but it quickly restores the blood to its normal health-giving state.

Cures in severe cases of Rheumatism are especially notable here. Sulphurro is proving a benefit to humanity through its relief to rheumatic sufferers. The poisons which cause rheumatism usually defy all treatment, but sulphur rendered into liquid form (Sulphurro) drives them out of the system. Usually only a few weeks are needed to cure a case of rheumatism, although mild cases often respond in a few days' treatment. But I want to emphasize this.

There never was a case of Rheumatism which did not yield to Sulphurro when the directions in the Booklet were carefully followed.

Here let me say that the Sulphurro Booklet, which can be had free upon request, is the most valuable piece of literature issued in many years. The average sufferer will find there the means of his or her deliverance. Read it, and you cannot help but be impressed with the "common-sense" of it.

Sulphurro Cures Prominent Persons. The druggists of Victoria and Vancouver are experiencing a large demand for Sulphurro. Some of the cures they report are among the most prominent residents of both cities. Two of Victoria's leading druggists think so much of Sulphurro that they have given away many bottles to their close friends, certain of its accomplishing cures—and it has not disappointed them once.

Sulphurro is on sale in practically every drug store from Alaska to the Mexican line (price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle) and its friends are spreading its fame to the four corners of the globe. Sulphurro is made only one place, the C. M. C. Stewart Sulphurro Co., 71 Columbia Street, Seattle, Wash., and each bottle bears a facsimile of Mr. Stewart's signature.

ASKS POLICE TO FIND RUNAWAY HUSBAND

Mrs. H. M. Baker, 316 Harrison street, has asked the aid of the local authorities to find her husband, a former foreman of electrical workers of the Southern Pacific railway, who she claims, has deserted her. According to his wife, he left her destitute when he went away on April 15.

Baker took some of his clothes on his departure, telling his wife he was going away for a short time and to run accounts in his absence which he would settle on his return. Since that time she has heard nothing from him, but believes he may have gone to his former home in Sureside, near Detroit, Michigan. The Bakers were married in Washington on April 14, 1906, and have been residents of Oakland for some time.

CHILDREN'S DAY SERMON.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Services tomorrow at the First Christian church, Duboce avenue and Noe street, will be as follows: At 10 o'clock, Sunday school; 11 o'clock, sermon by the pastor, Rev. F. W. Emerson, on "Finding Diamonds," a children's day sermon to parents. At 7:45 p. m. will be given the children's day concert, "Darkness and Light."

CONCERTO CLUB IN PLEASING PROGRAM

The Concerto Club of Oakland gave a very interesting musical program at the studio of Miss Virginia de Fremery on Fairmount avenue Wednesday evening.

The following program was rendered: Overture, "Meditation" (Mendelssohn); Symphony No. 1 (Schumann); Symphony No. 6 (Pathétique) (Tchaikovsky). Two vocal duets were contributed by the Messers Merchant, "Oh, That We Two Were Maying" (Alice Mary Smith) and "The Ranchero" (Edgar Belmont Smith), which received favorable comment.

The members of the club are: Miss Edna C. Ford, president; Miss Mary M. Allen, Miss Irene Rutherford, Mrs. A. B. West, Miss Eleanor Drusell, Miss Ida L. Brooks, Miss Camille King, Miss Margaret Bakewell.

FIRST CANTALOUPE. IMPERIAL, June 1.—The first cantaloupes of a crop expected to reach 2500 carloads have gone for ward, and this industry will be at the height of activity in a few days.

OWE DEBT OF DEEP GRATITUDE TO BUD HAVENS

AN FRANCISCO, June 1.—“Well, I live in New York, but I must put San Francisco ahead of it as the first city in the country.”

It was the son of Senator Foraker of Ohio who was speaking. He had been in this city as a representative of the Guggenheims in a deal of considerable importance. The men about town had taken care of him. He had been introduced at the clubs; had been given banquets; had been taken to the coast, the beach—and elsewhere.

All this time he hadn't been able to pay a cent. He urged his money everywhere, but nobody paid any attention to it. He began to fret over the fact. He said the thing seemed too one-sided.

At last, they came to a parting night when they had reached the Cliff House.

“Here's where I talk!” said Foraker. “This supper is on me!”

Suiting himself to his mood he pulled out a fifty-dollar bill and put the match-box on it in the center of the table. The supper came and the glasses clinked. Bill Fairbanks, in his cool and undetectable fashion, settled the supper account. Foraker had just begun to utter a word of indignant protest, when he quit and fell back laughing.

Ellis Parrish had just set fire to the fifty-dollar bill.

Never Make a Martyr

The old San Franciscan settled back in his club chair, put down the paper, pulled off his glasses and said:

“It's the same old mistake!”

“Now what?” asked one who had been schooled to expect something.

“Why, this San Diego business. Let 'em talk—let 'em talk their heads off. Then nobody will be hurt but them. We did the same thing in San Francisco back in the Kearney times. If nobody had troubled Kearney he would have been forgotten in two months. As it is, the sandlot days are bothering us yet.”

“We were fools enough to arrest Kearney and some of his loud-voiced crew. They at once became martyrs to the cause of free speech. People who would have been quiescent for years roused themselves. There was rioting and a little blood-letting.”

“Now San Diego is doing the same fool thing. The only sane way to treat those I. W. W.'s is to let them talk and talk and talk. Frederick the Great had the right idea. Seeing a crowd around a placard one day he rode up and found it was a bitter denunciation of himself. He merely told his orderly to tack the placard a little lower so the people could read it more readily. Said he:

“We understand each other perfectly—my people and I. They say what they please; I do what I please.”

Taking on a Big Burden

I picked up a card in the street this week and it read:

A Meeting on “Clean Journalism”
Will Be Held at Scottish Rite Hall on Friday, June 7, 1912, at 8 p. m.,
Under the Auspices of the Christian Science Monitor Committee
Admittance Free—No Collection

That looks a bit as if the Christian Scientists had taken up that fine old job so often attempted by so many other creeds and cults, the reformation of the press. Well, it seems quite a task.

Haven't the Christian Scientists got about enough on their hands? I notice the courts deciding that a regular physician must sign death certificates and that the word of the “healer” as to death is not good under the law. I read that United States Senator Works is battling hard in Washington to stop the medical trust from putting the science healers out of business entirely.

Well, isn't that enough of a fight? Most of the papers have been kind to the Scientists. Hadn't those same Scientists better let well enough alone and not tackle that monumental work of reforming the press. Suppose the press should take the matter seriously and turn a back on the Scientists? When the beam is out of an eye the mote can easily be detected in the eye of our neighbor.

Our Political Exclusives

Many of the Roosevelt delegates from California to the Chicago convention object to the presence of newspaper men on the special train that will bear them to Chicago. The newspaper men who will attend the convention from San Francisco rather hope they will not be invited to go on that special train.

The traveling on these special trains is a good deal of a bore. There is no news value on the journey. A national committeeman is selected and it is decided who will represent the State on the principal convention committees. All that is merely perfunctory “copy” and can be dropped off by a porter at any eating station.

But where the progressives are foolish in barring the press representatives is that they are overturning an old-time precedent. It has become the fashion to let the newspapers of the coast and their representatives on the delegates' train. If that fashion is overturned there will be an unmerciful joshing of the political exclusives who are afraid of the press. And that's just all the whole kettle of tainted fish amounts to. The new people in politics always think there is some mystery that requires concealment. There isn't any such thing.

Never Touched Him

They were discussing the warm weather and of course the stories of superior caloric were afoot. As men told of how the thermometer climbed, one man from the interior said:

“You can't talk to me of the heat in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys. The mountains are where you get the real heat. Why, I've known it to be 124 in the shade for ten hours in Redding—up in Shasta county.”

“Gee, that's some heat,” admitted everybody.

“Yes, and I didn't feel it at all.”

“What?”

“Nope—not at all!”

“Why, are you a salamander?”

“No, I was in San Francisco at the time.”

Not a Recommendable Cure

This tale of the heat started a discussion on how much liquor a man could consume and still be entire master of himself. Of course the stories of prowess were many and wonderful. The tellers of the tales always came off wonderfully with the capacity of Gargantua seeming like a kindergarten effort to get into the drinking contest.

No man in the group would admit that he had ever really been under the influence, until at last Bob Cordes spoke up:

“I must confess that once the imprisoned headache of the peasant girls of France had me down and hog tied.”

“How was that?”

“Well, I had a serious cold and started in to cure it in the same old way. I cured and cured with everybody who came along. Then I can very fairly remember ordering an egg sandwich. But when I awakened the next morning and found that egg sandwich on my chest for a porous plaster—well, I knew two things, and one was that my cold was much better.”

More Sociability Than Society

Next Thursday night a lot of fun-loving men are going to give Bud Havens a dinner at the Cliff House. It is a dinner in complimentary return for his notable dance at the St. Francis last week.

People will be talking about that dance for months to come. In after years men will hark back and say:

“Were you at that dance Bud Havens gave that night?”

But one of the men who is getting up the complimentary dinner gave an unique reason for it, saying:

“We want to give this dinner to a man who invited his friends without any regard to social distinctions. He just got together everybody he liked and asked them to have a grand good time. They had it. But one social climbing mamma who chaperoned her daughter looked in, then looked up at the laughing host and said:

“Mr. Havens, it is a brilliant party—but Mamie, you come right home with mamma!”

Now a Matter of Scenery

Next week we have Margaret Illington in Charlie Kenyon's successful play, “Kindling,” and with the star comes Ed Bowes, who married her and was widely written of as a Tacoma millionaire.

The fact is, Bowes wasn't anything like a millionaire. He was a clerk in the office of Shainwald & Buckbee at the time of the fire and had begun to make some money.

“This cleans me,” said Tom Jennings on the day of the earthquake.

“It cleans me, too,” put in Bowes; “but I wasn't anything like as dirty as you were!”

After the fires Bowes made some good turns for his firm of Breunor & Co. and then went to Tacoma for John Spring and his associates. But he never was anything like a millionaire.

He always had a great liking for clothes and had a wondrous wardrobe in the days when he was secretary of both The Family and the Corinthian Club.

“Does he still wear the Hammerstein get-up?” asked an old clubmate of Kenyon.

“Oh, it's gone beyond that,” was the reply. “It has now become a new symphony in sartorial scenery each day.”

True Rather Than Picturesque

The popularity of the Cliff House as a night resort is one of the marvels of the shifting fancy of the San Francisco public. For a long time the place was about as popular as a neglected cemetery. Now it is “the” resort of the beach life and is getting more and more popular night after night. You have to wait for a table for dinner and the dancing hall is ever more crowded than the dining-room.

And the seals, that had been away from the famous rocks are back there in their old numbers. All sorts of theories have been advanced for their return, it being admitted that they were driven away by the burning of the old Cliff House.

“Why, it's all very simple,” said Roy Carruthers, the new manager who has made the resort so popular. “The seals live on fish. When the old house was burned there was no refuse to dump into the ocean and the fish didn't find their usual food. When the new house was built and few people came to it, there was little refuse for the fish—and few fish, few seals.”

“Now that the crowds come here again there is a lot of garbage for the fish; many fish come for the garbage; many sealions come for the fish. It isn't a romantic theory for the return of those seals, but I think it's the true one. Anyhow, there are the seals, and we are doing the business.”

Oakland Writers Making Good

Back in New York there is a considerable colony of former Oakland newspaper men and women who are making good in the metropolis following the writing game. Tom Springer and his wife, Fleta Campbell Springer, are both profitably engaged in magazine writing, I am told, as is also Robert Ritchie, formerly a Herald reporter. “Bob” Parker, who was on the Oakland staff of the Chronicle, is now an assistant editor on a popular magazine.

Elmer Harris, a Berkeley boy, has been successful with his play, “Thy Neighbor's Wife,” which Frohman recently produced. Joe Noel, who has written a number of musical compositions and the musical comedy, “Marriage Not,” recently made a hit at Maxine Elliott's theater with the platter production. Edward Gage, whose father lives in Market street, has also been successful with his compositions.

Blocked His Rival's Game

When the United States army transport Buford sailed for the trouble zone in Mexico last month, it was the ambition of a well-known newspaper to have a representative board who could flash the news of events as they occurred during the trip and after the ship arrived at its destination. The paper sent New York agents to interview the Washington authorities, but they were met with flat refusal. Not only that, but the State Department wired to the Buford's commander to keep all newspaper reporters away from the transport at all hazards.

However, the newspaper was determined to get a man aboard to make the trip. On the staff was a reporter who had had considerable experience at sea and who had also served in the Far East as a war correspondent and magazine writer. He was given the detail and told to get aboard the transport. He made all preparations, supplying himself with a small camera and other reporter's paraphernalia. Then he scouted around the transport dock, watching for an opportunity. Finally one day, shortly before the ship was to sail, he learned that the captain wanted a quartermaster on short notice. He hied himself to a nearby waterfront saloon and garbed himself in a suit of second-hand clothing and made himself up for the part. He applied for the job and got away with it. Just as he was going aboard to take his quarters it happened that a rival waterfront reporter saw and recognized him. Knowing the situation, he set to work to spoil the game. He denounced the quartermaster before the captain, but the new quartermaster said that he had “never seen than man before and there must be some mistake.” He convinced the captain and the rival reporter was politely told to “beat it.”

The ship sailed and the rival reporter returned to his office. There he imparted the awful information that their competitor had a man aboard the Buford. The wires to Washington were set busy and kept busy for several days. In the meantime the Buford reached San Diego and had proceeded two days along its course when a wireless reached it ordering the captain to place the new quartermaster master in the brig. He was searched, and the camera, together with copious notes, found in his possession, so the story goes. Then the transport turned about and without ado landed him alone a few miles from nowhere on the Californian coast, from which place he made his way back to civilization.

Awful Shock to Berkeley Culture

Culturines and high-brows occasionally make sad mistakes and inadvertently get their dates somewhat mixed, which was well illustrated not long ago at a gathering of “the cultured set” in Berkeley. The following story is being whispered about in the University city, the principal's name, a lady well known in the bay section, however, being mercifully kept quiet, much to her relief:

A European violinist was playing some early Italian compositions at an at-home and had just rendered one of Corelli's celebrated jigs, of which artists of the classic school are so fond, and frequently showing their artistry with, when the lady in question inquired of her nearest neighbor the composer's name. Being told, she looked puzzled for a moment, paused, and then said: “When did Marie Corelli die? It's strange I didn't hear of her death, and I didn't know she wrote jigs.”

The story brings to mind another incident of a somewhat like nature:

A wealthy San Francisco woman had commissioned a celebrated violin teacher to choose an instrument for her daughter, who was studying with him. After months of negotiations and frequent interchange of letters with connoisseurs in European cities, a fine Amati violin was secured and in due time arrived at the home of the lady. About a week later, when her daughter was taking her lesson, the mother was asked what she thought of the instrument. To the astonishment of the teacher, she made the following reply: “Oh, yes, it's a wonderful violin, but, you know, it doesn't match the furniture of the music room—it's such a disappointment. The piano does.”

Well, He Was a Gem

Several teachers were narrating the other day some of the experiences they have had with the bright youngsters under their charge. One teacher whose sphere of duty is in the Latin quarter has a large class in a primary grade. Among her pupils are many chubby-faced children of Italian parentage. You can imagine her surprise recently when she asked a series of questions bearing on the history of America and found her class stumped when she asked them who Columbus was. Again and again she asked what the great discoverer had done, but there was no reply. She well knew that some of the children's parents had come from Genoa, the birthplace of Columbus, so she said:

“Why, children, of course you know who Columbus was; now, who was he?”

Finally one little lad way in the back of the room held up his hand, exclaiming, “I know, teacher.”

“Well,” she said, “who was he?”

“The Gem of the Ocean.”

Then they all sang “Columbir, the Gem of the Ocean.”

So the Gum Went Home

In this same class, which is most cosmopolitan as to genealogy, the gum-chewing habit suddenly developed to an alarming extent, and the teacher went distracted in her endeavor to suppress it. The chief offender was Amanda, whose ancestors once roamed the depths of darkest Africa.

One day the teacher notice that Amanda's jaws were in vigorous action.

“Amanda, throw that gum away!” was the stern command.

“Oh, Miss Eleanor, I jess can't do that all.”

“But you must. Now throw that gum out of the window.”

“Oh, Miss Eleanor, I jess can't, cause dis here gum ain't mine. Dis am my mother's, and she done lend it to me for today.”

Well, Amanda took the gum home that afternoon.

Oakland Maid and Timid Youth

Smiles are hovering about the lips of friends of a certain Oakland society maid these days, all on account of a happening in which Mrs. Grundy, that patron saintess of impropriety, and the fair city of Berkeley are connected. We all know that the city of high-brows is ever attempting to preserve all of immaculate conception of morals and would, forsooth, dictate to us unregenerate creatures what we should and should not do, but this latest effort as a censor should make even the culturines feel the absurdity of their position.

It seems that the Oakland maid was visiting friends at one of Berkeley's hotels for a few days. The other evening, one of the recent hot ones, these

PEEK-A-BOOS NOT FAVORED IN SOUTH

Telegraph Operators in Los Angeles Have No Fear of Eastern Order.

LOS ANGELES, June 1.—That the peek-a-boo waltz, which has been the object of severe criticism in the New York offices of the Western Union Telegraph Company, has not met with favor at the hands of the Los Angeles working girls is the opinion of G. A. Lawrence, manager of the local office of the Western Union.

An order was recently issued by T. A. McCammon, district traffic superintendent, that the girls employed in the New York office of the telegraph company should wear high-necked and long-sleeved dresses with sleeves extending below the elbows. Quite a stir resulted throughout the country for fear that the order would be general.

"New York is the center of the great telegraph systems of this country and a majority of the operators there are girls," stated Lawrence yesterday. "The operators employed in this office have without exception are men. We have not even discussed the possibility of issuing such an order here as it is by no means necessary among the girl clerks."

45,000 FLAGS TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Spokane Will Observe Holiday With Patriotic and Public Exercises.

SPOKANE, Wash. June 1.—The Spokane Flag Association has completed arrangements to distribute 45,000 American flags with the full number of stars June 14 when patriotic and public exercises will join in parades and public exercises. Contracts also have been awarded for decorating the principal business thoroughfares with American flags and bunting. Nine bands of music, including the regimental band of the National Guard, will be on duty at the celebration. The Twenty-fifth Infantry, U. S. A., is quartered here and engaged to participate.

Lieutenant Colonel Charles W. Penrose, commandant, will turn out eight companies of soldiers and in addition there will be two companies of the National Guard of Washington and a machine gun company in command of Major Benson Wright and fifteen troops of Boy Scouts under R. A. Overhiser. Patriotic addresses will be delivered by public men and ministers of the Gospel in various parts of the city. The demonstration will be on a larger scale than ever and is planned as a direct rebuke to the Industrial Workers of the World.

CHICAGO CHINESE FEAR 'JIN-DEVIL'

Oriental Hasten to Request Police to Drive Evil Spirit Away.

CHICAGO, June 1.—"Jin-Devil" haunts Chinatown, most cases "em out" shout-ed one of three nervous Chinese who sought and found Howard Ely, Chinese inspector, last night.

All the Chinese were thoroughly frightened, and after some time the inspector learned that May, the 5-year-old daughter of Chin Hwa Hsi, a merchant had had a couple of days after the family had moved into a new tenement. Chin's neighbors declared the death was due to the workings of a Jin-devil because of the removal. They were afraid the evil spirit would attack other Chinese on the street.

Ely said he would lose no time in ordering the Jin-devil to move.

REAR-ADMIRAL IS TO GO ON RETIRED LIST

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Rear Admiral Sidney A. Staunton will be placed on the retired list on account of age June 7. He now is the naval member of the special commission which is visiting European capitals to secure representations of the foreign armies and navies at the approaching Panama-Pacific exposition. Admiral Staunton is a native of New York and was an officer of the flagship New York in the battle of Santiago. His retirement will result in the promotion of Captain Robert M. Doyle, commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, to be rear admiral, Commander V. O. Chase to be captain, Lieutenant Commander Yates Stirling to be commander and Lieutenant Sinclair Cannon to be lieutenant commander.

MAIL CARRIERS TO PROTECT FORESTS

Rural and Star Route Men to Co-operate With the Rangers.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—More than a million miles of roadway territory in comparatively sparsely settled sections of the country will be covered daily by the forest fire protective force of 55,000 men, as a result of an order issued today by Postmaster General Hitchcock. These men are the rural and star route mail carriers, who are directed to co-operate with the forest rangers and state fire wardens.

Last year forest fires destroyed $50,000,000 worth of property. The agricultural department has been anxious to increase the efficiency of its forest fire prevention service and Postmaster General Hitchcock offered his department's assistance.

There are 42,000 rural and 13,000 star route mail carriers. Their daily routes take them through sparsely inhabited parts of the country, in many sections through the wilderness itself. The aggregate length of the daily routes is about 1,200,000 miles and the carriers have every opportunity to note closely the country through which they pass.

By the terms of Mr. Hitchcock's order, the duty of the carriers on observing a fire, or any indications of a fire, will be to notify the nearest forest ranger or fire warden. Postmasters in or near national forest reserves are instructed to report forest fires.

ADORN FRONT OF STORE WITH SHOES

Friends of Druggist Take Satisfaction In Decorating Place of Business.

LOS ANGELES, June 1.—Eddie Schmalzried, who conducts a drug store at Thirty-second and Main streets, could tell the number of his friends by the number of old boots that are nailed to the front of his place of business. And after he had counted the boots he would have to read the messages tacked here and there to feel the pulse of his following. But he has been out of town since the votive offering arrived.

He was getting married. He called Miss Etta Rice on the phone early in the morning and told her that he had decided to kick over the bucket traces within the next hour or so. The bride-to-be was consented.

In the meantime, and for several weeks previous, Eddie's friends had been waiting patiently for an invitation to the wedding. When they found that there would be no celebration, each and every one of them ransacked various piles of old clothes and decorated the drug store. All the time-honored legends, such as "His gone, but not forgotten," "No more early mornings," and so forth, were very apparent to passers by all day.

The decorations will probably remain until the couple get to San Francisco.

ASSAILANT OF WOMAN ATTEMPTS TO ESCAPE

KANSAS CITY, June 1.—William J. Condory of San Francisco, arrested in Pasadena several months ago for attacking Mrs. Jack Cudaby of Kansas City, and who later was taken in charge by the police here, attempted to escape from the municipal farm. He was caught before he had left the grounds.

Condory appeared here a few days after Mrs. Cudaby returned from the coast and was being treated at the general hospital when Mrs. Cudaby called on the police and asked them to arrest him. She said she feared he had followed her to attempt to harm her. Since then Condory has been held for investigation.

CROP OUTLOOK BETTER

LEWISTON, June 1.—Within the past ten days the wheat crop in the Lewiston country has a 50 per cent better outlook than previous. Late season rains which broke records for many years have benefited this season between twenty and thirty days. Today the prospects are excellent and the stand of the wheat is the best recorded.

Porter Lodge Secures Talent From St. Mary's College

An evening at home will be given by Porter Lodge No. 272, I. O. O. F., in their new hall on Grove street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth, next Wednesday evening. The committee in charge, composed of C. Holman, chairman, J. Machato and J. Kochendorfer, have arranged one of the best programs for the evening's entertainment. Porter Lodge has had for a long time. There will be a high class orchestra to furnish the music for the dance. J. Machato will fill the capacity of floor manager, and J. Kochendorfer has supervised the entertainment.

Through the courtesy of Prof. Otto

Rittler the committee has secured all the talent from St. Mary's college for the evening. The program is as follows: Overture, drill and setting-up exercises; first academic class of St. Mary's College, violin solo, F. O'Connor recitation, J. Curtis, solo, A. Newberger, boxing, Sweeney vs. Perkins, novelty juggling, Ben. Durning, St. Mary's College quartette, Fleming, Horan, Sennhardt, Wood, club passing contest, Captain Rittler's Speed Boys vs. Captain Ciel's Philippine Scouts, dancing.

There will be no charge for the entertainment, and young and old are welcomed to enjoy the hospitality of the committee in honor of "ladies' night."

ARMY TRANSPORT OFF FOR ALASKA

Eight Hundred Soldiers Sail on Sheridan for Two-Year Assignment.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—From every point of vantage on the ship's decks and rigging more than 600 soldiers today waved San Francisco a sorrowful farewell when, promptly at noon, the army transport Sheridan left the transport dock at Fort Mason, carrying the Thirtieth Infantry on its long journey to Alaska, where the regiment is to be stationed for the next two years.

When the last lines had been cast off and the big troopship slowly began to gain momentum the men lined the rail and clamored into the rigging. Cheers and cries of "Good luck" and "We'll be back," mingled with the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," played by the regimental band, and when the vessel disappeared around a headland and under full speed started for the open Pacific, the cheers of the men could be heard faintly.

The Thirtieth Infantry is relieving the Sixteenth infantry at sixteenth scattered in a remote section of Alaska. The returning regiment is to be brought to San Francisco on the Sheridan.

As different Alaskan ports are touched, various companies under command of their commanders made command and proceed to their stations. A few of the companies will be obliged to depend upon dogteams for mail and provisions during a portion of the year.

The Thirtieth Infantry came from the Philippines two years ago after a campaign in the tropics. The first stop will be made at Seattle, where supplies will be taken aboard when the ship will proceed to Fort Seward, thence on to the various Alaskan ports.

When the troops left the Presidio yesterday afternoon and marched to the transport dock they passed between long lines of artillery and cavalrymen who, at "present arms," gave their friends the traditional army farewell.

During their stay in San Francisco the men and their officers made many friends who will welcome the return of the regiment. This feeling, says the soldier with the visions of snow, isolation and few social activities, is mutual.

COAST STEAMERS ARE DISABLED AT SEA

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Word was received of the breaking down of two coasters, the steamer San Jose of the Pacific Mail fleet, which left here May 29 for Panama and way ports, and the Carmel, which left here May 27 for Aberdeen. Both vessels were offered assistance, but in each case the offer for help was declined, which is taken as an indication that the disability of both ships was not serious, but only temporary.

AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—At the Grace M. E. Church Twenty-first and D, will preach the baccalaureate sermon of the Deacons' Training school tomorrow morning. In the evening, memorial service will be held under the auspices of the Methodist Brotherhood with an address by the pastor, and special music under the direction of Robert H. H. Church.

"KEEPING THE FAITH."—Rev. Charles L. Miel will deliver the sixth in his series of sermons, "Concerning the Faith," tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at Grace Pro-Cathedral, Sacramento and Grace streets. His subject will be "Keeping the Faith."

VOLCANO BOWL IS NOW 'CRATER LAKE'

Oregon National Park Boasts Unique Wonder in Limpid Water.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Unique among the natural wonders of America is the lake in Crater Lake National Park in Oregon, which is described in a publication entitled "Geological History of Crater Lake," just issued by the Department of the Interior. The traveler who, from the rocky rim of the lake looks across its limpid waters to the cliffs beyond, stands where once the molten lava of Mount Mazama boiled and seethed in its efforts to find an outlet, for Crater Lake is all that remains of a great volcano that ages ago reared its lofty summit high above the crust of the Cascade range.

Before the Cascade range existed the region now included in the State of Oregon was a great lava plateau that extended from the Rocky Mountains to the present Coast Range. Gradually mountain-making forces became operative, the surface of the plateau was arched and the great mountain system which is now known as the Cascade Range. With the hardening of the crust the centers of eruptions became fewer until they were confined to a few high mountains that were built up by the flows of molten lava. In this way were created Hood, Rainier and Mazama, from whose sides and lofty summits streams of lava poured across a desolate land. Hood and Rainier still lift their snowy caps to the clouds and fling a defiant challenge to the mountaineer to scale their steep, ice-covered slopes. Mazama alone is gone, engulfed in the earth from which it came. In what is left of its caldera lies Crater Lake.

Mount Mazama in its prime rose to a height of over 14,000 feet above the sea. Mount Scott, which towers above Crater Lake on the east, was only a minor cone on the slope of the great mountain. The portion of the mountain that has been destroyed was equal in size to Mount Washington in New Hampshire and had a volume of 17 cubic miles.

From the crest of the rim surrounding the lake the traveler beholds 20 miles of unbroken cliffs which range from 600 to nearly 2000 feet in height. The clear waters of the lake reflect the vivid colors of the surrounding walls and whether in the soft glow of early morning, in the glare of the noonday sun, or in the rosy hues of the dying day, the view is one of awe-inspiring grandeur and beauty.

GIVEN TWO YEARS FOR HAVING $5000 IN LOOT

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., June 1.—John Bozyk, the illiterate who was convicted of having in his possession $5000 of loot stolen from the Westminster branch of the Bank of Montreal last September, was sentenced to two years in prison. Bozyk's defense was that the money was given to him by a newboy who found it on a sidewalk. In passing sentence Judge Clement said that it was incredible that Bozyk did not know he had no right to the money, several hundred dollars of which he had stolen from a gambling house.

TO SELL FRANCHISE FOR POWER PLANT

SAN LUIS OBISPO, June 1.—The supporters have passed a resolution of intention to offer for sale at public auction the franchise for which an application has been made to the California Water and Electric Company to install a power house and such other equipment as may be necessary to properly conduct the business of furnishing water and electricity for power etc. The bids will be sold to the highest bidder on July 1.

TRAVELER TELLS OF WAR HORRORS

Declares That the Women in Mexico Are Shamed and Severely Beaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Three men suffering from various ailments arrived here this morning on the transport Buford from Mexico and one of them had something to say about the horrors of the revolution. All three were removed to the Central Emergency hospital and gave their names as Edward W. Walker, O. L. Ralsch and Walter McNulty.

Walker, a negro 17 years of age, who has been at Mazatlan since 1909, declares that many women were slashed and beaten by the rebels, that the soldiers of the army of the insurgents were without food for as long as two days at a time and that on one occasion the federal troops destroyed two box cars laden with provisions for the rebel army. The loss of this supply caused great hardship and increased the provocation for outrages of a murderous nature.

MODESTO RANCHERS HURT IN RUNAWAY

MODESTO, June 1.—L. W. Copple and W. M. Foage, ranchers, suffered serious injuries when the team which they were driving became frightened at a passing freight train and ran away on Needham avenue. Copple was thrown from the seat of the wagon to the tongue between the horses and when the team ran into a telegraph pole his right leg was so mangled that amputation below the knee was necessary. Foage jumped from the wagon when the team started to run and suffered a broken ankle. The two men were carried to the Modesto sanatorium and treated by Dr. J. C. Robertson.

CRABS WALK SEVENTY MILES TO REACH HOME

LONDON, June 1.—The story of the remarkable "homing" instincts of Norfolk and Yorkshire crabs, some of which walked 70 miles to their old home after being transferred to other parts of the coast, was related the other day at the meeting of the Eastern Sea Fisheries Board.

For the experiments the inspector for the east coast, H. Donnison, used nearly 2000 edible crabs. Each when put back into the sea had a numbered label attached to it, and the size, sex, place where originally caught and where liberated were noted. Rewards were then offered to fishermen who recaptured them.

The crabs released on the grounds where they were caught practically remained where they were, but crabs transferred from a distance headed for home. Yorkshire crabs set free on the Lincolnshire coast made for the north, and Norfolk crabs made for the south. With reference to the Yorkshire crabs, some were recaptured at distances up to 13 miles, making for the old home.

Others were recaptured on their old grounds, having walked from 12 to 35 miles (direct distance), while seven went beyond, the greatest distance covered being 75 miles (direct measurement). The actual distance covered must have been much greater, as the Humber had to be crossed.

TO REPAIR CRUISER

SEATTLE, June 1.—The Puget Sound navy yard has been authorized to make $55,000 worth of steam engineering repairs to the United States cruiser Colorado.

WILL MAKE STUDY OF ICEBERG PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, June 1.—An exhaustive study of the iceberg problem with a view to finding a practical method for determining the proximity of icebergs to ships will be continued by three officers of the United States bureau of standards, who will leave Philadelphia on the scout cruiser Chester next Sunday.

The officials will take with them a large number of delicate instruments for measuring the temperature and other conditions in the water in the vicinity of icebergs.

BUTTE CITRUS MEN HAVE BANNER SEASON

OROVILLE, June 1.—All of the bestness done during the season of 1911 and 1912 by the Butte County Citrus Association is being closed up. A final statement will be made to the members in a few days. The past season was undoubtedly the banner one in the history of the citrus industry in Butte county. Grades of navel oranges averaged $1.15 per box net of the grower. This is the largest price ever received for a season's output.

MORE TULE LAND BOUGHT

SUISUN, June 1.—Arthur Jones of San Francisco has purchased from N. Garnett of Dixon 4000 acres of the land in the eastern part of this county, the consideration being $90,000. It is the intention of the owner to reclaim the land for cultivation and place it upon the market in small tracts.

An Example for Wealthy Oaklanders.

In Massachusetts it is considered a disgrace for a rich man to die and leave nothing to Harvard University. That is the spirit that has made Harvard one of the great universities of the world, the greatest on the American continent. "Do something for Harvard," is the constant exhortation of Massachusetts to her sons, and an educational institution famous the world over has sprung up in consequence.

"Do something for Oakland" should be the animating motto of the inhabitants of this city. Oakland has many rich men, but one will look in vain for monuments to their public spirit. Each one should do something to adorn the city and to impress his memory on the recollection of a grateful posterity.

In looking over a recent issue of the Galveston Tribune we were struck by the numerous benefactions of her leading citizens. One of them, Henry Rosenberg, gave the city $600,000 to erect and endow a public library and lecture hall; he also gave the money to erect a building for the Y. W. C. A. and a home for old ladies. George Ball, a banker, built a high school which bears his name. Another banker, John Sealey, built a public hospital and gave it to the city. Galveston owes her leading grammar school to the generosity of a deceased merchant. Still another merchant gave the money to erect a home for orphans. A long list of minor benefactions was mentioned in the same issue of our Galveston contemporary.

What a splendid showing of public spirit, of civic pride, of practical benevolence! Oakland has nothing to compare with it. Yet Galveston is comparatively a small place. Its population probably does not exceed 40,000, although it has an immense sea trade. But so long as the city stands the memory of Henry Rosenberg, George Ball, John Sealey, Theodore Lasker and Bernard Adone will be held in honor and reverence. They helped to build up the city commercially and to rebuild it after it was destroyed by a tropical hurricane in 1900, and the schools, hospitals and asylums they erected stand as memorials to their nobleness of mind and openness of hand. Their examples ought to be followed in Oakland.

Colonel Harris Weinstock has a great deal of consideration for the "rights" of idle and lawless disturbers of the peace, but he appears to have very little for the "rights" of industrious people who are minding their own business and trying to preserve peace and order. He is straining at gnats and swallowing camels at a gulp. Apparently he thinks lawbreakers have a monopoly of rights.

Foolish Extra Session Talk.

The people of San Diego are getting hysterical. They have appealed to Governor Johnson to call an extra session of the Legislature to pass new and more drastic laws for the suppression of riot and disorder. We hope the Governor will do nothing of the kind. It is true San Diego is undergoing a trying and abnormal experience, but there is no sense in asking the whole State to take a hand in this contest between legitimate citizens of the city and the vagrant, idle and lawless elements that have invaded the town with intent to override the local ordinances. It is like calling out the army to stop a cross-roads row.

An extra session of the Legislature would cost a lot of money and would probably be abortive of good result. It is quite certain that the present Legislature would refuse to enact the measures the San Diegans want. After indulging in a lot of flapping and prattling apropos of nothing in particular, it would probably adjourn without doing anything.

It is quite certain that no action would be taken that Governor Johnson did not recommend, and the utterances of Colonel Harris Weinstock clearly indicate that the Governor is not in favor of doing anything that the people of San Diego want done for the I. W. W. do not want done. The I. W. W. would be permanently quartered on San Diego if it is left to the Governor to drive them out.

But the people of San Diego are talking and acting foolishly. They should keep their heads and not give way to distempered fancies. They blundered in dealing with the I. W. W. in the first place and made a bad matter worse. Now they are trying to draw the whole State into the mess. The people of the State refuse to be drawn into it. Let the San Diegans enforce the law, keeping within it themselves, and keep cool, and pretty soon the I. W. W. will be tired out or starved out.

The talk of an extra session is foolishness. It does no good. It cannot relieve the situation. Nothing is gained by going into hysterics.

There was a general falling off in bank clearings during the past week, but the clearings of the Oakland banks show a substantial increase. There was a decrease in every other city in California. The increase in Oakland proves that business conditions in this city are good and that the financial conditions are stable. Building operations continue with unabated vigor. Rapid growth in population is evidenced by the great number of new residences being erected.

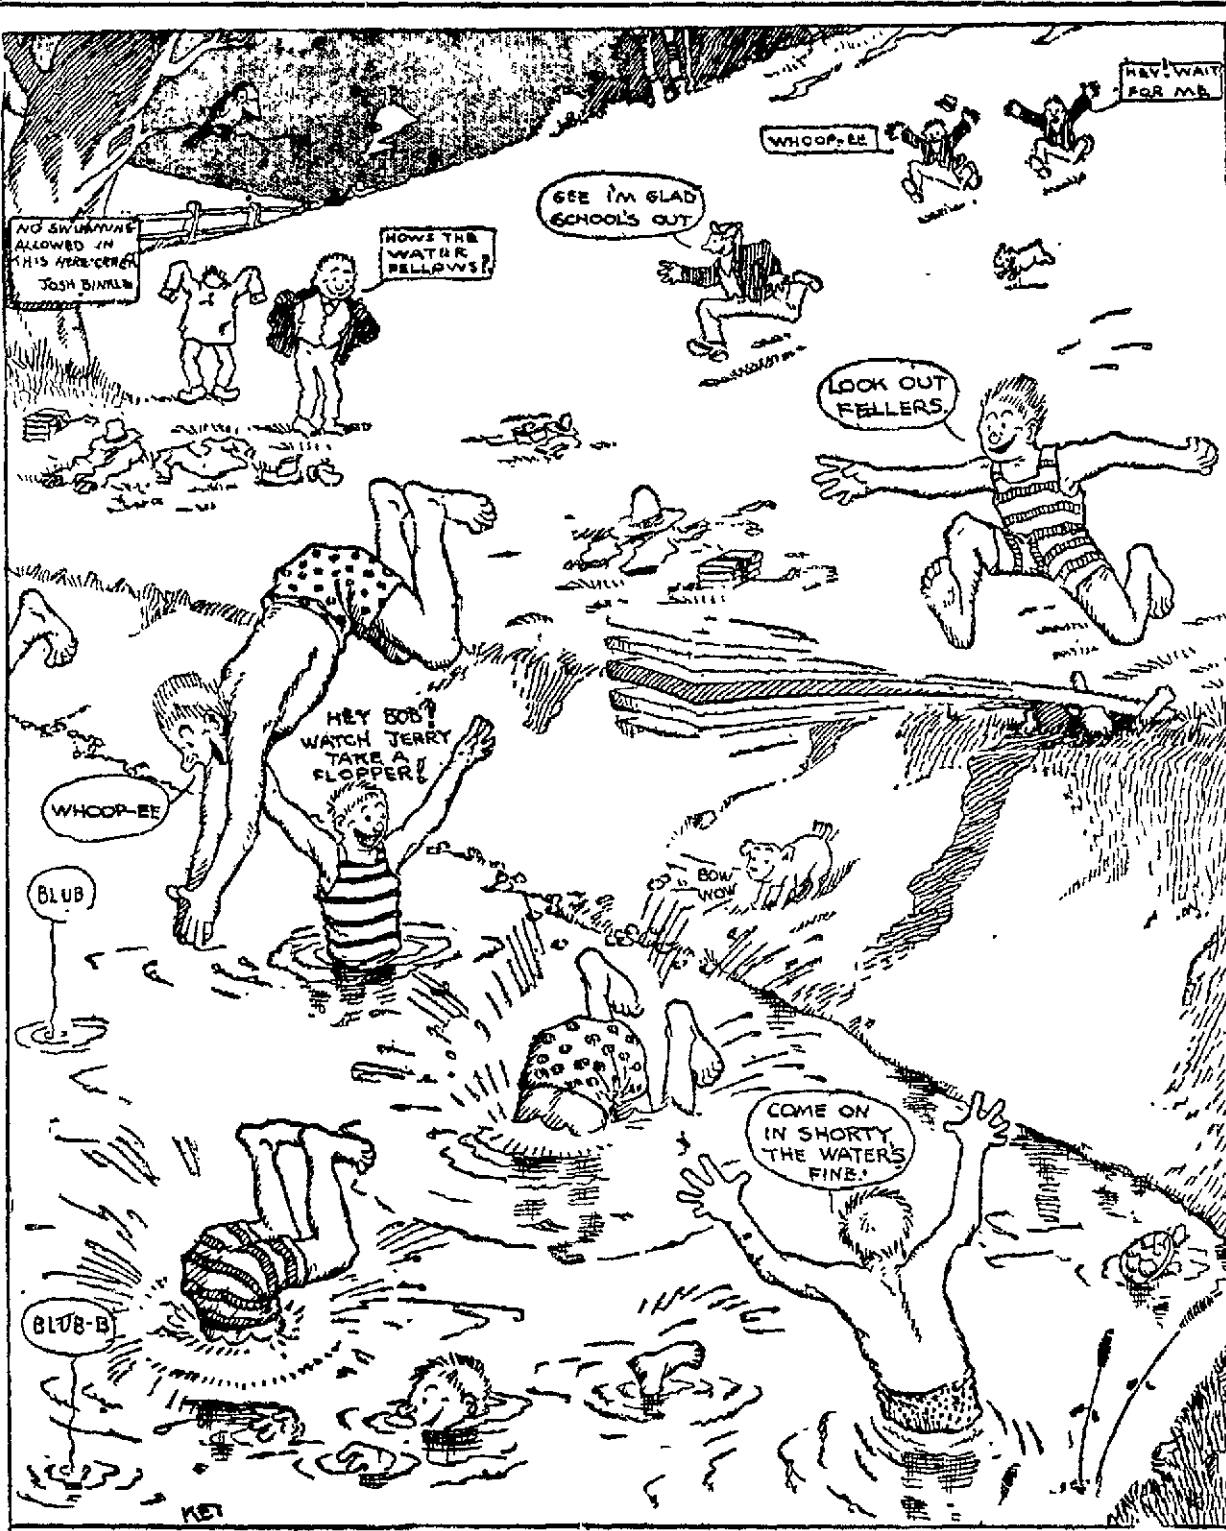

A Sacramento man has written to the Bee suggesting that the government furnish one-legged men with artificial legs. Why not? Should the government not furnish false teeth and false hair as well as artificial legs? Indeed, there is no limit to the governmental philanthropy in this direction. It might furnish such reformers as Chester Rowell and A. J. Pillsbury with such artificial consciences and Franklin D. Roosevelt with brains that would enable him to think straight. Even Meyer Lissner might be equipped with false modesty. He has none of any kind at present.

It is to be noted that it is Mr. Bryan's enemies who are most eager to run him for President again. The good faith of men who have for years pronounced Bryan as impossible, and yet now have him as the "logical" candidate, is open to question. He is a man who has been known to change his mind.

Heathen Scorn of a Missionary.

The Richmond-Record-Herald is unjust to Hon. Sumner Crosby of Alameda who desires to represent the Contra Costa Marin district in the State Senate. These remarks show a decided lack of appreciation for Mr. Crosby's efforts to give the people of Contra Costa county proper representation in the State Senate.

"Seems to us like Sumner Crosby ought to get through with one term of office before he runs for another. He is at present a member of the Legislature from Alameda county, and if an extra session is called to deal with the San Diego I. W. W. case, as is talked of, he would have to go and represent that county, yet he is a candidate for the State Senate from Contra Costa county at the same time. Only a hog gets all four feet in the trough at once."

Mr. Sumner Crosby is no hog. He is a patriot and a missionary of reform. He is not seeking honors, but is offering himself as a sacrifice on the altar of his country, which he is trying to save from a man named Jones. Do the good people of Contra Costa want to have the name of Jones hurled at them in derision and contempt. We throw not. Hence we expect them to throw up their hats and cheer for Crosby and his carpet-bag. In this instance the carpet-bag is an emblem of purity, a symbol of political regeneration.

Realizing that the people of Contra Costa and Marin counties are lacking in legislative material of the requisite calibre and integrity, he has offered to supply the deficiency himself. He has gone to Contra Costa to do the people inhabiting that benighted section a favor. They have no man among their number fitted to represent them in the upper branch of the Legislature, and he has undertaken to represent them. He is a good Samaritan, and it is base ingratitude to intimate that he is a hog trying to get all four feet in the trough. He only wants to go to the State Senate, and incidentally to prevent the district from being disgraced by Ralph Jones, who has demonstrated his unfitness to be State Senator by residing in Contra Costa county. Mr. Crosby is an evangelist of the New Deal. He will promise not to stay in the county if the people will only elect him to the State Senate.

Perhaps the chairmanship dispute might be compromised by letting the Colonel preside over the Chicago convention and electing his campaign manager, Senator Dixon, secretary. It would be an innovation, to be sure, but so is the third term. Roosevelt is himself an innovation.

How to deal with the housefly problem is suggested by the way the mosquito nuisance was abated. After a time, it was discovered that the mosquito could not be eliminated by screening doors and windows and draping beds with netting. Then the breeding places of the pestiferous insect were attacked. Ponds and marshes were drained and stagnant water treated with oil. This form of attack proved fatal to the mosquito. Likewise the housefly nuisance can be abated by abolishing the fly hatcheries. When he has no place to breed the fly will disappear. He spawns in filth, and filth is unhealthy, being prolific of stench and disease. So, in abating the fly hatcheries the danger of zymotic disease is lessened and domestic surroundings made more wholesome.

Rachelor Musings

Some men get more tired doing their job than others doing theirs. Up to 30 a girl wants to pick a man for a husband; after that she is willing to be picked.

When a man proposes to a girl and she tells him to ask her father, she means she already has done it.

JEWELLED BOOKS

There is a legend to the effect that the famous "Golden Fleece" was nothing more than a book covered in sheepskin teaching the transmutation of the baser metals into pure gold.

The Roman scrolls were adorned with bosses of gold or gems, and their leaves, having been smoothed with pumice, were scented with cedar oil. The Byzantine Emperors were great patrons of literature and greatly affected superior bookbindings. The "Byzantine" or "Arabian" book covers, were famous for their magnificence, they were of gold, silver, copper, gilt, set with jewels, and these massive tomes were carried in imperial processions.

"The Silver Book" of Ulpian, bishop of Moesia, a translation of the Gospel, was rebuked by St. Jerome.

"Your books are covered with precious gems," said he, "while Christ died naked before the gate of His temple."

It is interesting in this connection to note a similar observation credited to Sadi, the Persian poet, concerning the Mohammedan scriptures. "The Koran," he wrote, "was given to return the conduct of men, and men have thought only of embellishing its pages."

The books produced in the early centuries of the middle ages were of remarkable beauty inwardly and outwardly. Religious manuscripts were enriched by illuminations within, while their covers were of silver, gold or enamel encrusted with gems. They were bestowed as splendid gifts by bishops and Princes on monastic houses and churches, where they were laid on the altar or chained to a desk, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Such chained books were named "catenati." A rough outer covering protected them. This was of dark skin, or sealskin, and later of "cherry-velvet," a kind of leather, or "sandalwood." These precious books were also placed in caskets, in shrines or "caspoes." In Ireland they were laid in bachelors, otherwise named "polaires" or "tagha ubur," the Celtic bookbinding possessing a peculiar beauty of its own.

There were secular bookbinders in the middle ages who formed themselves into guilds of craftsmen, but the monks alone united the arts of composition, calligraphy, illumination, bookbinding, setting of jewels, enameling and work on leather, silver and gold. The monasteries of Kaniworth and Scharnberg, situated in the "polaire" or "tagha ubur," the Celtic bookbinding possessing a peculiar beauty of its own.

The European Princes were great booklovers, and some of their collections are famous, though now dispersed far and wide, sometimes reappearing as treasures cast up on the shores of time in some museum or library. Charlemagne was a patron of bookbinding, surrounding himself with Italian workmen in this line. The Queen of the Lombards, presented a magnificent Gospel overlaid with gold, silver and jewels in the Cathedral of Monza.

ATTACKING THE HEN

Muckraking has become such a standard industry in this country that no person or animal or bird can feel that life is complete without having been, at some time or other, the victim of a muckraking attack. The cows out in the stockyards in Chicago have been attacked on the ground that they are the product of a degenerate race. The sparrows have been abused because they are considered destructive little pests. And at last that great American bird, the hen, has become the victim of particularly venomous muckraking assaults.

In a pamphlet issued by the Department of Agriculture it appears that the average egg production per hen is still under 70 eggs per annum. The farmers now are complaining that the hen is not doing her duty by the nation, and that the cost of food is so high that the keeping of hens is becoming unprofitable. A direct slap at the hens, and apparently as part of a plot to make the glorious American bird unpopular with her compatriots, the farmers are urging that the price of eggs be raised everywhere so that more profit can be obtained on the farm.

At the Connecticut Agricultural College there is now in progress a year-long egg-laying contest that is exciting great interest among the farmers. White Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds, Orpingtons and other hens are running a head-to-neck race to see which tribe can lay the most eggs per annum. In a way, the reputation of all hens depends on the outcome of this contest. It is hoped to prove that a hen, properly trained and of industrious habits, can lay 200 eggs a year, but the fear is expressed that the present average of 70 per annum will not be raised.

There may be those who believe that the hen is a reactionary bird, taking life easy while all the rest of America is marching on the double-quick. We prefer to think that the hen is misunderstood. It is not the hen that is wrong in being a little laze. It is the rest of the United States that is wrong in being so fast.—Washington Post.

This Man "Took A Chance"

Now He's Glad That He Did

San Francisco, Cal.

Dear Doctor Terry: I thought I would drop you a line or two to express my satisfaction with the Terysthesia as it was used in the work on some of my teeth which I have just filled in your office.

I admit I was very skeptical about this "dental" idea, and when I settled down into the operating chair to have two nerves extracted I certainly expected to see my feet go caving through the window in front of me. You see, the last time I was in a dentist's chair, which was several years ago, I had an aching tooth treated and treated and treated some more in an attempt to kill the nerve preparatory to removing it so that the tooth could be filled. When the dentist went after that nerve with his little buzzer and needle-like fish-hook affair and yanked it out the nerve was not dead yet by a long shot. What that dentist did to me would prove a government nuisance, and what I would have said could I have gotten my jaws to working would not look good here, but "the fact is it may." I declared there and then, "No more dentist's chair for mine." I concluded I would rather lose every tooth in my mouth than go through such an experience again.

You can realize the feelings with which I climbed into your dental chair and consequently the dubious and skeptical attitude toward the Terysthesia, but I had let my teeth go until I had to have them attended to or suffer the agonies of toothaches. So I determined to take a chance with Terysthesia. I surely am glad I did.

You may imagine my surprise (and relief) when I saw those two little red nerves dangling before my eyes from the end of the hook as they were taken out, one after the other in so short a time and with absolutely no pain nor uncomfortable sensation, not even the series of treatments which I had supposed necessary for killing the nerve before taking it out were needed.

And maybe I wasn't ready to turn loose a bunch of human fireworks when I saw that little buzzer coming toward me; and when I found out it was being used with absolutely no pain nor discomfort I felt like a 30 cent with the 3 knocked off for getting so excited. That buzzer always used to "get my goat." It surely was a pleasure to "laugh up my sleeves" at it when I found the Terysthesia kept it and all the other instruments from hurting. Some fine dope, that "Terysthesia." I don't mean, though, that it is a "dope." I have a kittenish heart against action that would surely have balked at there been any "dope" in the Terysthesia.

It is certain that I shall not let my teeth go again as I did before until they go so bad because I have now where to go and have Terysthesia used so that I won't feel as though I had flirted with a box of dynamite when I got out of the dentist's chair.

You are at liberty to use this letter as you wish, for it will be the means of convincing anyone who may be skeptical, as I was at first, about the satisfactory results obtainable with Terysthesia, and thus save them a lot of nerve-racking pain. I will consider this letter well worth writing.

Your enthusiastic patient,

C. J. SAN FRANCISCO.

1041 Leavenworth St., San Francisco.

The above letter needs no elaboration. It tells the whole story of my wonderful Terysthesia method.

You may not believe me when I say that I actually have the means of eliminating pain in all dental operations. I don't think you can take my word for it, nor the testimony of any other person. The proof of painless dentistry is the performance thereof. Just come in and let me show you how I prepare, fill, crown and extract sensitive teeth without causing the patient one bit of discomfort.

I also want you to know that I can remove missing teeth by my Rex Alveolar method, without using plates or bridge-work. No matter how few or how many teeth you have lost, so long as you possess two natural teeth in either jaw you should not fail to investigate this method.

It won't cost you a cent to have a talk with me. Call and get my estimate on any dental work you require. Examination free.

Hours: 9:30 to 5:30; Sundays, 10 to 12.

OHIO VOTERS FACE ENORMOUS BALLOT

Forty-two Amendments Are Up for Verdict at Special Election.

COLUMBUS, O., June 1.—Forty-two constitutional amendments to be voted for ratification at a special election on September 30 is the completed work of the Ohio constitutional convention, which adjourned today.

The most radical change is the limiting of the power of the supreme court. In the same proposal the name of the court is changed to the court of appeals and the appellate court is made the court of last resort in most cases.

A proposal was passed providing for a preferential vote for United States senators. However, the legislature will not be required to hold to the result of the preferential vote.

The convention provided for a regular biennial session and limited the number of retail saloons, one to 500 population.

The delegates refused to pass the "recall" bill, but passed a bill for the prompt removal of public officials, including the judiciary, upon complaint and hearings.

Another proposal gives the legislature power to pass a law requiring a vote of only three-fourths of a house to remove a member in civil cases.

After a campaign of days, during which women crowded the galleries of the convention hall, and tons of literature were distributed over the state, the convention voted to remove the word "male" from the bill of rights in the present constitution.

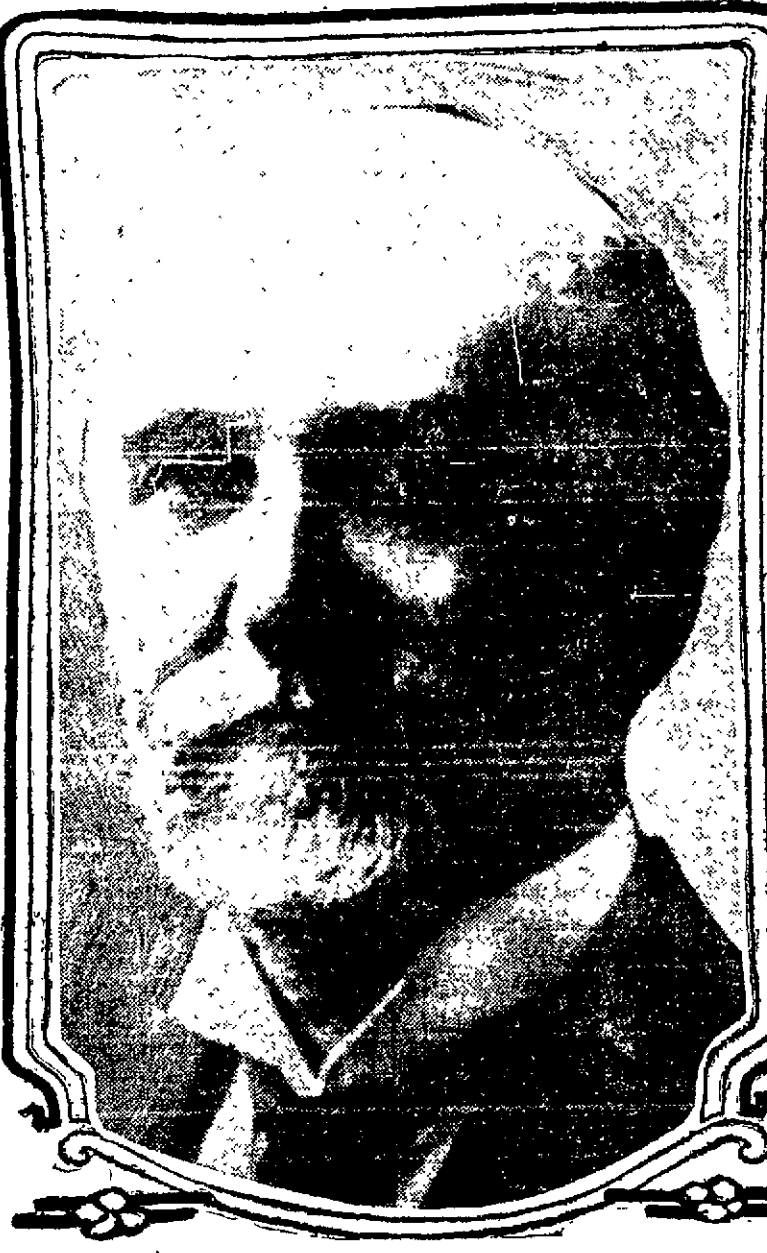

Initiatives and referendums passed by the convention provides for the direct initiative upon constitutional amendments on petition of 10 per cent of the voters and indirect initiative upon legislative questions upon 5 per cent.

The referendum on local constitutional and legislative questions is provided for on petition of 5 per cent of the voters. The proposal substitutes the 10 per cent for death as the extreme penalty.

Ends Hunt for Rich Girl

Often the hunt for a rich wife ends when the man meets a woman that uses Terysthesia. Her nerves tell her in a bright brain and even better her peach-blossom complexion and ruby lips result from her nervousness; her bright eyes from her healthy nerves; her firm, firm muscles, all telling of the health and strength Electric Titters give women, and the freedom from indigestion, heartache, headache, fainting and many other troubles. Everywhere they are women's favorite remedy. If you are a "new" man, see at Oakland office.

Cooper Suggested as T. R. Mate to Please Wisconsin

CONGRESSMAN HENRY ALLEN COOPER, WHO MAY BE NOMINATED FOR VICE-PRESIDENT IF ROOSEVELT IS NAMED FOR PRESIDENT.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Vice-Presidential candidates are coming to the front. It is not often that a man mentioned for this honor comes anywhere near nomination.

Usually the Vice-Presidential nomination is decided on after the Presidential candidate is named. Sometimes the man chosen is a disappointed candidate for head of the ticket.

Sometimes, as in the case of Roosevelt, 12 years ago, it is the man the politicians want to get rid of who receives this concession.

As in Sherman's case, it is a man who is expected to embarrass the head of the ticket. Sherman was named by some secret opponents of Taft, who thought Sherman would hamper the ticket. The first candidate for second place on the ticket with Roosevelt, if he is nominated, is Congressman Henry Allen Cooper. He is from Wisconsin and his choice might reconcile the disgruntled La Follette men.

MERCHANT BODIES' CONGRESS MEETS

Tremendous Interest Being Taken in Forthcoming Session.

BOSTON, June 1.—At the meeting of the permanent committee of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, to be held in Brussels on June 28, the American committee on program for the Fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce to be held in Boston, Mass., September 24 to 28, will make its report, representing suggestions of topics for discussion at the Fifth Congress in addition to the following eight topics provisionally adopted at the meeting in Paris last July:

1. The establishment of a permanent International Court of Arbitral Justice composed of judges representing the different judicial systems of the world and capable of insuring continuity of jurisdiction and arbitration.

2. Unification of legislation with regard to cheques.

3. International postal reforms.

4. Commercial statistics. Immediate institution of an international office.

5. International maritime union. Completion of a program.

6. Regular international exhibitions.

7. An international agreement between banks of issue.

8. A suggestion looking to the preparation of a resolution intended for the suppression of measures taken against foreign merchants on account of their religion.

After communication with government and international organizations and leading citizens, the American committee selected from the replies received the following additional topics:

9. The desirability of strengthening international cooperation for the unification of agricultural statistics and for the dissemination of information regarding them.

10. The desirability of an international agreement to determine whether the status of movable property at sea in time of war shall rest on the domicile or the nationality of the owner.

Merchants are subject to the conflicts of differing nationalities. An international conference held in London in 1908 failed to reach an agreement.

11. The desirability of an international agreement to determine the cost of living.

The committee believes international action on this subject would be of high importance and might point the way to future harmonious action.

12. The desirability of an international conference of the kind of which order-notify bills of lading and of legislation for making the system more effective. In consequence of fraudulent practices, prolonged conferences have been held between American bankers and cotton shippers and representatives of European firms. A plan for validation of this class of bills has been elaborated, but international discussion would bring about still better understanding.

13. The desirability of international uniformity of action in the matter of consular protection. This was discussed at the Fourth International Conference of the American States in Buenos Aires in 1910.

Adoption of a standard form for all the republics would facilitate business.

The tremendous interest which is being taken in the forthcoming Fifth International Congress in America is indicated by the splendid personnel of the American honorary committee, headed as it is by the President of the United States, including leading Government officials, diplomatic representatives in the United States of the principal commercial nations, the Governors of the important States of the Union, the presidents of the leading commercial organizations and some sixty of the greatest business men in America.

WORKS OF ART BRING $700,000

PARIS, June 1.—At the continuation today of the sale of the works of art of Marquis Landolfo Carcano, the principal lots disposed of consisted of portraits.

A portrait by Rembrandt, supposed to be that of his sister, brought $80,000, while a portrait, "Belle Nani," by Veronese, fetched $35,000. A marble head of John the Baptist after his execution, sculptured by Rodin was sold for $238. The total realized in the two days' sale is $700,000.

Mr. Knoedler, who yesterday bid in for $105,000 Alexandre Regnaud's famous painting "Salome," which a group of patriotic citizens desired to purchase for the Louvre, says he informed the management of the Louvre before the sale that, in accordance with his custom, he would not bid against the museum when "Salome" was put up. In addition, Mr. Knoedler said he contributed $1000 to the patriotic fund raised to buy the painting for the Louvre and only intervened in the bidding when the sum passed that which the Louvre had at its disposal, and then with the express intention of reserving "Salome" for the Louvre.

Immediately after the picture was knocked down to him, Mr. Knoedler says he notified the representative of the Louvre at the sale that he would hold it at the disposal of the museum for two months at the same price he had paid for it, and would willingly agree to loan the painting for an exhibition to help raise the money required to purchase it from him.

The National Conference of Jewish Charities, which holds biennial sessions only, will meet this year just prior to the general conference.

The National Association of Public Relief Officials will meet on June 12.

The National Federation of Remedial Loan Associations will hold important meetings on June 13 and 14.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will hold a meeting on June 17.

The National Association of Societies for Organizing Charity meets on June 12 and 13.

The Federated Boys' Clubs of America meet on June 11 and 12.

The American National Red Cross will hold a meeting on Monday, June 17.

A great recreation congress, being the sixth annual meeting of the Playground and Recreation Association, will be held June 5 to 8.

Besides these there will be conventions or conferences of the Federation of Settlement Workers, the National Commission on the Church and Social Service of the Federal Council of Churches, the National Probation Association, and the National Conference on the Education of Dependents.

Backward and Delinquent Children.

As these thirteen groups contain practically all of the people of the United States interested or engaged in social service, it is expected that a large number of delegates will be in attendance here during the second and third weeks in June.

TO OVERHAUL MERRA.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—The Oceanic Steamship Company's liner Merrra, which arrived Tuesday from Honolulu, will be laid up for a couple of weeks to be overhauled.

The liner had been taken to the Union Iron Works in addition to overhauling all parts of the ship, the smokestacks will be cut down to their original height. The Merrra's place on the Honolulu run will be taken by the Steamer.

Spokane Legislator Victor in Remarkable Bout With Bruin.

SPokane, Wash., June 1.—Beating a wounded black bear, weighing 350 pounds, in an impromptu wrestling bout was the experience of H. E. Buchanan of Spokane, a member of the legislature and traveling auditor of the State Industrial Insurance Commission, while on the way to a mine in the mountains, seven miles from Metairie, Wash., a few days ago. Buchanan was bruised and scratched, but he was victorious.

He brought with him today the bear's paw as evidence of his prowess, also $15 in gold, the amount offered by a tavern-keeper for the first bear of the season.

The victor acknowledged that his prize is the result of luck rather than his knowledge of bears, as this is the first he ever had outside of a cage. Buchanan carried a small rifle, one shot from which laid the bear low, but he counted without his bow in running to the bear. Bruin grappled with the man and they rolled around in the snow until the animal reared on his hind legs, overpowered by the loss of blood. A knife thrust in a vital spot put the bear out of commission for all time.

CONFERENCE AS CLEARING HOUSE

Twelve National Bodies Will Figure in Charities and Correction Congress.

CLEVELAND, O., June 1.—The National Conference of Charities and Correction, which will meet in this city June 12 to 19, is fast becoming a conference of conferences. Already the program of the meeting to be held here embraces sub-programs of the meetings of twelve national bodies, all of which have to do with the betterment of conditions under which the people of the United States live or work.

The National Conference of Jewish Charities, which holds biennial sessions only, will meet this year just prior to the general conference.

The National Association of Public Relief Officials will meet on June 12.

The National Federation of Remedial Loan Associations will hold important meetings on June 13 and 14.

PIONEER DOCTOR, JOHN FIFE, DEAD

Widely Known Physician Laid to Rest in Northern Home.

RED BLUFF, June 1.—The funeral services of Dr. John Fife, a well-known physician who died Friday night, were held yesterday afternoon from the First Presbyterian church.

There were many floral offerings from friends residing in different parts of the state, several of which were from Oakland.

Dr. Fife was born near Ogden, Utah, January 8, 1860. His parents were journeying to California and had stopped over in Ogden, remaining a year.

In his boyhood Dr. Fife worked in a drug store in Carson City, Nev., for six years. He graduated from the university of New York in March, 1882, and in the same year opened an office in this city.

He is survived by a wife, Mrs. Minnie Fife; mother, Mrs. J. M. Brady, of Reno, Nev.; and three brothers, Adam, James and Dr. Joseph Fife of San Francisco.

PORTERVILLE ORANGE RANCH SELLS HIGH

PORTERVILLE, June 1.—All price records were broken this week when the 20-acre orange ranch belonging to McFadden Brothers was sold to J. G. Anderson of Seattle. The price paid for the 20 acres was $10,000, or $2000 an acre. There are ten acres of Washington navelis and ten acres of Valencia, both being five years old. The orchard is north of this city, being in the "frostless" orange belt.

SINGERS' VOICES CAUSE FIRE CALL

Bonfire of Leaguers and Solos Combine to Make Laddies Get Busy.

ALAMEDA, June 1.—Because some hardhearted, unromantic Alamedan does not know the difference between the dulcet soprano tones of the leading soloists of the Alameda Epworth League and the feminine shrieks for help, a fire alarm was turned in last night and a chemical engine rushed to the bonfire rally of the league. As the chemical crew up at the curb and the helmeted firemen asked the hose ready to play chemicals on fire and crowd alike, the soprano soloists were chanting "In the Good Old Summer Time." The base accompaniment of the fireman was very base, indeed. It wasn't a do, re, mi accompaniment either. It sounded more like dam-dam-dam, for the night was hot and the horse and the firemen were likewise hot.

Believing that the firemen had been charmed from the firehouse by the lovely moon, the cheerful bonfire and the elegant music, the soloists sang in double-quick time from "Good Old Summer Time" to "A Spanish Cavalier" and wound up with "Junita" as the chemical faded away around the corner. All this time the soloists, the bonfire and the assisting crowd were ignorant of the fact that they were the cause for the sudden jangling of the Court street firehouse bell and the hurried rush of sweating horses and perspiring firemen. The leaguers were at a party and evolved the idea of a bonfire rally. The members secured permission from Acting Fire Chief Millington to have the bonfire on a vacant lot on Versailles avenue, between Euclid and Central, where that could sing could resist the call to melody, inspired by the beautiful harvest moon and the splendid bonfire. Even those who couldn't sing are excusable for breaking out into all sorts of alarming and miscellaneous vocal efforts, but nevertheless the above mentioned hard-headed Alamedan, who wished to save the town from a conflagration, ring up the firehouse and say that a fire was raging and that women were evidently being roasted to death as he could hear the frantic screams for help.

MRS. RAWLINSON IS HOME FROM HOSPITAL

ALAMEDA, June 1.—Mrs. Jeanette Rawlinson, who was severely injured in a recent auto accident, in which her husband, Herbert Rawlinson, met his death, has been removed from the Roosevelt hospital to her home, 1509 Ninth street, Alameda.

Rawlinson will be confined to her bed for several weeks. Today, for the first time, she was allowed to receive a few of her closest friends. Mrs. Rawlinson is now aware of the death of her husband, and even though ill, is bearing up well.

METHODISTS TO VOTE ON SALE OF CHURCH

BERKELEY, June 1.—Members of the Trinity Methodist church will vote tomorrow whether or not to sell the church building to the city for $25,000 for the purpose of erecting a new structure. The church was originally built by the First Presbyterian church in this city, but was sold to the Trinity Methodist church in 1905. The church is a fine building and is well situated. The sale of the church is a matter of great importance to the community.

LOCAL MAN TO BUILD WALNUT CREEK SCHOOL

WALNUT CREEK, June 1.—At a special meeting of the board of trustees of the school district, the building of a new school was awarded to H. F. Smith, an Alameda contractor. The contract calls for a modern building to cost $14,000. There will be four rooms, with proper heating and ventilation facilities. The school will be of maple throughout, with a concrete basement. The exterior will be plaster and cement finish.

PIEDMONT NOTES

The firemen arrived at the scene and quickly extinguished the fire. No one was injured. The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Slander Suit by Belgian King Renews Interest in Queer Scandal

THE ROYAL FAMILY OF THE BELGIANS, WHO HAVE BEEN MADE TO SUFFER THROUGH MALICIOUS REPORTS WHICH HAVE BEEN CIRCULATED AT BRUSSELS.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, June 1.—The latest sensation in Europe is the criminal suit brought by King Albert of Belgium against the originators of a slanderous story which has been in circulation for some weeks.

Since the recent garden party held at Laeken, Calumnious rumors have been put into circulation that are detrimental to the harmony of the private family. It was declared that the queen of the Belgians surprised King Albert in the company of a lady of the chamber, and that the queen shot the woman dead with a revolver, firing eight times in the presence of the king.

It is stated that King Albert had no knowledge of these reports, although for several days military officers attached to the court had learned of them by telephone calls, both from Belgium and abroad. The officials held a consultation and agreed that it was best to acquiesce the king with the report. His majesty was astonished and very indignant, and he decided to prosecute the authors of the report and all persons repeating it.

Criminal proceedings have been instituted before the king's procurator against three persons, whose names are not given, for circulating slanderous reports.

According to the first story, the queen surprised the king in company with a lady of the chamber and killed the latter. The second report was to the effect that the queen had

TRUSTEES FACE WRITS OF MANDATE

The San Leandro Board Must Answer Toffelmier Plea Before Court.

SAN LEANDRO, June 1.—Alternative writs of mandate were served upon the five members of the board of city trustees, J. J. Olli, chairman; Fred Schmidt, J. C. Koenig, M. J. Anderson, and W. A. Rogers, by Constable Manuel Borge this afternoon. The writs were served in connection with the superior court on June 1 to show cause why they should not order a recount of the election held on April 12, 1911, in which the trustees were elected.

The writs were issued in connection with the election held on April 12, 1911, in which the trustees were elected. The writs were issued in connection with the election held on April 12, 1911, in which the trustees were elected.

ALVARADO ITEMS

ALVARADO, June 1.—Dr. J. H. Smith, of the city of Alvarado, was called out last night to extinguish a fire in the city of Alvarado. The fire was caused by a gas leak in a kitchen. The firemen arrived at the scene and quickly extinguished the fire. No one was injured. The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

ACTION OF BOARD CAUSES BIG STORM

Alameda Citizens to Hold Big Meeting to Protect Fire Chief Appointment.

ALAMEDA, June 1.—Dissatisfied with the police and fire commission's choice of a fire chief in the person of Frank J. Smith, a number of Park street business men who signed the petition of Assistant Fire Chief Frank Millington, have issued a call for an indignation meeting to be held in the council chamber of the city hall Monday night. In case the city administration refuses the use of the city hall the meeting, the leaders announce will be held on the city hall steps. Thomas McGrath, a Park street real estate operator, is the moving spirit in arranging for the meeting.

Smith is well thought of even by those opposed to his being given the chiefship, but the commission is accused of using poor judgment in not taking a chief from the department and giving officers and men of the department a chance to work up to the higher paid offices.

It is reported tonight that William Rhoades, one of the fire department drivers, will resign to show his disapproval of the commission's action.

An effort is being made to have the Board of Fire Underwriters intervene on behalf of First Assistant Chief Frank Millington, who was a candidate and presumably was the popular choice for the position.

AGED MAN WANDERS FROM INFIRMARY

ALAMEDA, June 1.—Hugh Seeley, an inmate of the county infirmary, left that institution yesterday and was found on Park street last night suffering from his infirmities. He was taken to the Emergency hospital, where he was given treatment. Later he was afforded lodging in the police station and was dismissed this morning.

Policeman Charles Keyes yesterday arrested Earl Bolt, D. J. Meacham, Tim Roberts and G. P. Schroeder, and booked them on the charge of driving on the wrong side of the street. The men were released upon depositing $5 bail each, and will appear in the police court for trial on June 4.

H. E. Ross, a driver for the Pacific Freight and Transfer company of Oakland, and Ah Yit, also of Oakland, were taken into custody by Policeman Anderson and charged with doing business without a license. Both men were later released, Ross upon the payment of the fee, and Yit on depositing $5 bail. The case of the Celestial will come up in the police court on June 4.

CARPENTER IS CUT WITH SAW IN FIGHT

ALAMEDA, June 1.—H. A. Childers, a carpenter of this city, was treated at the Emergency hospital late yesterday afternoon for a severed artery of the left wrist, the result of a clash with H. H. Gates and Chris Nelson. The two carpenters engaged in altercation work on the home of James K. Lynch, 1225 Sherman street. After treatment, Childers was able to depart on a motorbike with a friend Gates and Nelson claim that Childers attacked them.

The excitement of the melee, probably augmented by the loss of blood caused Childers to lose his balance and fall. The police patrol wagon to the hospital, where his injuries were attended by Health Officer Hieronymus and Dr. J. A. Riley. Later he was moved to his home at 1786 Ward street, Berkeley, where he resides at 1027 Walnut street, this city, and Nelson is a resident of Oakland, living at 3452 Champion street. No arrests were made.

MAY REORGANIZE BOARD OF TRADE

Succeeding Directors of Chamber of Commerce Plan to Renew Work.

BERKELEY, June 1.—The board of trade which relapsed from existence about a year ago when its members went into the Chamber of Commerce along with those of the Merchants' Exchange, may be reorganized. Steps in this direction will be taken at a meeting to be held Monday evening.

The Chamber of Commerce directors was sent a week ago by the secession of the directors, who had been chosen previously from the new members from the Board of Trade. Inharmonious in the directors caused their withdrawal and plans for the reorganization of the previous organization followed. Among those interested in the reorganization are Herman Mueller, Ed McNeill, A. Howard Herman, Charles Green, Dr. H. N. Rowell and others.

PEOPLE DEMAND CLOSING OF GIRLS' PITFALL

HOFFMAN CAFE IS OAKLAND'S SORE SPOT

Action of Tribune Condemning Hopkins' Resort Endorsed by League.

Commissioner Turner Taking Steps to Put Bars on Nefarious Dive.

Unqualified endorsement of the campaign which is being waged against the notorious Hoffman cafe by Fred C. Turner, commissioner of public health and safety, and THE TRIBUNE was given by the executive board of Oakland Center of the California Civic League at a meeting in the Key Route Inn Friday afternoon. The members present, including the president, Dr. Minora Kibbe, discussed with indignation the revelations concerning the malodorous dive on Seventh street, whose proprietor, William Hopkins, will be tried in the Superior Court this week on a charge of gross indecency brought by a young woman who was employed in the resort.

The board voted its endorsement of the crusade and also went on record as being opposed to the name of cafe as applied to establishments such as the Hoffman, where the serving of drinks is the principal business carried on. The members expressed the opinion that the term cafe is misleading when used by any other concern than a restaurant.

MAY CLOSE RESORT.
Hopkins will be cited to appear before the Oakland City Council to show cause why his notorious resort should not be closed as a menace to public morals. Commissioner of Public Health and Safety Fred C. Turner has asked that he will request the City Council to take action tomorrow morning to protect the city of Oakland from this nefarious place. It is believed that sufficient evidence has been gathered not only to close up "Hopple's dump," but to drive him out of Oakland.

"Hopple" is worried. He has cause. His past performance will not add lustre to his crown, if he ever gets one. For years he has been known as the proprietor of the most nefarious resorts that have ever infested the city of Oakland and threatened destruction to men and girls.

NO EXCEPTION TO RULE.
The resort on Seventh street is no exception to his rule. Rather it shows an appreciation of tricks learned in the past in houses of questionable repute. It is plain to be seen that from the old boulevard road house "Hopple" has studied his means. It is called. Each successful venture into this kind of a resort has shown a deep study into the method by which he can trick men and women into his place and lead them into the byways of the underworld.

It is a well known fact that he has his entertainers come in his Seventh street resort for practically the cost of the liquor that he can induce his girls to consume. He also serves the checks for them and they are led each day to drink, drink and to consume more and more of the expensive liquors and wines. The result is that at the end of the week the girls have no pay but a fine accumulation of checks is given them with the proprietor's compliments.

"JOKE" OF HIS CAREER.
Selling liquor after hours in defiance of the city laws does not hamper "Hopple." Rather he appreciates "drying the town" for certain as one of the best jokes of his "joke" career. Waiters have complained of that. But what is a waiter to "Hopple" since he can discharge one and hire another?

Girls may come and girls may go with "Hopple." When one who is beautiful enough to suit his purposes is forced downward until she seeks employment at his place, he can easily discharge her and make room for the more attractive. So it is with those who earnestly and conscientiously ask for work to live. If she is beautiful and willing, she is employed. If he is not, more suited to his needs can be had.

The realization that the City Council is at last to act will come like a breath of fresh air to the good people of Oakland. The hope that springs eternal in the human breast has long prayed that the Seventh street resort, the sore spot in the city of Oakland, will soon become ancient history and will be mentioned only with bated breath and averted eyes from what depths Oakland has climbed.

But there are others who fear that "Hopple" will not come from this city without the proper punishment of the law. His actions at the boulevard road house and his actions at the Hoffman have infested have marked him as a man that should be long and seriously watched by the police. The good people of the city devoutly wish that some of his nefarious actions may be traced to him so that criminal action may result.

HERE'S FINNEGAN READY FOR BUSINESS WITH HIS CHAIR
IT'S HAPPY SUNDAY MORNING FOR YOUTH WHO LIVES AGAIN

THIS IS WILLIAM FINNEGAN, READY FOR BUSINESS AND SEATED IN THE CHAIR PRESENTED TO HIM. DR. C. A. WILLIS IS STANDING BEHIND HIM.

Crippled but Undaunted News Dealer, No Longer Public Charge, and Will Be Selling Papers on Streets Tomorrow

This is a happy Sunday morning for William Finnegan, the young news dealer, for whom the public purse was opened at the request of THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE. This morning Finnegan has his invalid's tricycle, and tomorrow, resplendent in a new outfit of clothing and accessories, he will be selling TRIBUNES on the streets of Oakland, earning his own living.

Dr. C. A. Willis, superintendent of the county hospital, visited the office of THE TRIBUNE yesterday afternoon with Finnegan and announced that the youth was no longer a public charge.

Finnegan's eyes filled up. "I wish I knew how to express myself," he said. "Please write a letter for me to the public, telling them how much I appreciate the chance they have given me. I'll try my best to be worthy of their confidence."

Finnegan aroused the interest of the board of supervisors recently by writing from the county hospital that he did not want to be a public charge, as that he thought, despite the fact that he had lost both legs and had undergone 16 operations, he could still make his living if the board could see its way clear to buying him a wheel chair. Legal obstacles hindered such a plan, but Supervisor Joe Kelly passed the hat and THE TRIBUNE laid the case before its readers.

The result was a fund in round numbers of $170, of which $100 represented a check from Mrs. Emil Lehnhardt, enough to pay for the chair. The balance of the fund is being expended under the direction of Dr. Willis and Supervisor Kelly.

Rev. Father Edward P. Dempsey has been asked to aid in locating a suitable lodging place for Finnegan, who is without kith or kin. Tomorrow you will see Finnegan around the streets in his pneumatic-tired vehicle. If you were not a party to the fund, buy a paper from him and have the satisfaction of lending a helping hand to one whose courage is undaunted in the face of cruel adversity.

occupied for a year, and the police have little to work upon in their investigation. Whether some medical student had been using the building as a dissecting room or whether the child represents some tragedy which may have occurred in the lonely section near the Breakers cafe is in doubt.

Human Skull Found in Abandoned Beach Shack

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—In an abandoned shack on Forty-ninth avenue near the ocean beach early this morning there was found a human skull. The discovery was made by Jed Eaton of 1330 Forty-third avenue, who had been hired to do some cleaning in the place. It is understood that the building has not been occupied for a year, and the police have little to work upon in their investigation.

Oakland Woman Shares in Estate Left by Expressman

SACRAMENTO, June 1.—By the will of Bartholomew Ford, a Sacramento expressman, who died at the age of 80 years, died today for probate with the county clerk, his niece, Miss Kate Ford, of Oakland and his nephew, Patrick Ford, of Elmira, are made heirs to an estate of nearly $23,500. For thirty years Ford had his stand at Third and J streets in this city, amassing the small fortunes which that period by careful saving.

Double Tragedy May Grow Out of Mystery

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., June 1.—The first clue was secured by the authorities today as to the identity of the well dressed woman whose body was found in the surf below Phelan Park on the Cliff drive yesterday morning when Coroner Wendenford discovered a grip which she checked at the railroad station Thursday noon. Speculations bearing the mark of a San Jose official firm were found in the leather case. On a folded sheet of writing paper bearing neither address nor date was the following note:

"Dear Mary: Here's a Merry Xmas to you and best wishes for a happy New Year. From your friend, 'WILHELMINE LOWMYER'."

The detection who have been detailed to work on the case believe that the presence of the blood stains on the bench near the edge of the cliff and the blood stains that led from the bench to the trail near the brink of the precipice indicated the presence of a double tragedy.

24 Numbers on Train Clocks in Paris Now

PARIS, June 1.—To obviate the awkward a. m. and p. m. designations in the railroad and telegraph services the clocks of both of these utilities were changed today from the familiar one to twelve register to numerical running from one to twenty-four. The change was made from end to end of France.

In Paris the innovation caused some little confusion. Suburbanites, rushing to the municipal station, caught the popular 1:15, that carries a large majority of Parisians out of town for the Saturday half holiday, found that the train scheduled to start at fifteen minutes after 12. This schedule will be followed throughout the afternoon and evening, all the last train leaves at fifty minutes after 21 at night.

It is claimed by officials that the new order of recording time will result in greater accuracy and speed in dispatching both trains and telegrams. These claims are based on experiments made in the telegraph branch of the service.

Col. Orozco Attends Legislature Opening

CHIHUAHUA, June 1.—Colonel Pascual Orozco arrived here today to attend the opening session of the legislature. His presence was required to form a quorum. One train was run north from here today with many refugees aboard.

Struck by Auto and Breaks His Shoulder

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Geo. Flagg of 1945 Sutter street was run down by an automobile at Golden Gate avenue and Post street at 6 o'clock tonight and received a broken shoulder blade. He was picked up by G. W. Waugh and hurried in a taxicab to the Central Emergency hospital, where he was operated on by Dr. J. W. Brown.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—J. R. Gatten, assistant to president and traffic manager of the Quincy Western at Hartwell, Cal., has been appointed general manager of the Eureka and Palisade, and L. R. Gledhill has been appointed superintendent of the Eureka Nevada. Both came from the Eureka, Minn.

TO BEGIN SUIT TO DISSOLVE MEAT TRUST

Civil Suit Will Be Instituted by the Department of Justice.

To Show Connection Between Producing and Distributing Trust.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Within the coming week a civil suit for the dissolution of the meat trust will be instituted by the department of justice. Associated with this suit will be an action against a retail dealers' association, which is also a trust.

The object is to show a connection between the producing and distributing trust which held the meat supply of the American public in the hollow of its hand.

While the attorney-general would not state tonight where these twin actions would be brought, he intimated it would be in Chicago. With this object in view, Assistant Attorney-General Wickersham has made an abstract of the testimony adduced during the recent criminal trial held in Chicago.

It was announced at the department today that Wickersham will also have the advantage of recent investigations made by the department of agriculture and special representatives of Secretary Nagel.

The value of the reports is that they deal with the handling of meat products by the retailers' associations. Attorney-General Wickersham said today that he would be glad to utilize any information he might obtain from Congress.

Auto Thief Is Sent to Prison

Five Years for Fresno Man Who Took Machine Out of the State.

FRESNO, June 1.—For stealing an automobile belonging to S. A. Lines of this city and attempting to drive it to Salt Lake City to put it into rent service, J. A. McDaniel was today sentenced to serve five years in Folsom prison.

McDaniel, after leaving Fresno, was traced 1500 miles, traveling in the automobile with his wife. He crossed the deserts of southeastern California to Battle Mountain, Nev., where he was captured.

Editor Is Fined for Attacking Messenger

Stockton Man Pleads Guilty and Friends Intercede in His Behalf.

STOCKTON, June 1.—W. R. McIntosh, editor of the Business Farmer, a local farm periodical, pleaded guilty in the Superior Court this morning to the charge of assaulting C. E. Allington, a messenger boy, with a deadly weapon, and was fined $250 by Judge C. W. Norton. A stay of execution was granted until next Wednesday.

Friends of the editor interceded in his behalf and urged the court not to impose a prison sentence.

$40,000 VALUE OF CATTLE ON TRAIN

PORTERVILLE, June 1.—One of the largest cattle shipments of the present season left this station Wednesday when Ship Brothers, the cattle barons of the Fraser Valley country, and ex-Mayor Vaughn sent out a train load of stock to San Francisco, the total value of the being approximately $40,000.

Best prices are offered for the stock, what appears to be a brisk market, the stock sent yesterday being quoted at six cents. All of the cattlemen are shortening up on their strings in anticipation of high prices for hay and other roughage this fall.

Feed conditions have been good and the stock are in fair condition but taken all in all the cattlemen do not find them as profitable as the previous season.

KAISER HOAXED BY 'PLANTED' STATUES

Municipal Authorities of Corfu Show Enterprise, But Fail to Keep Still.

German Emperor Wanted to Find Ancient Art; He Found It.

(By COUNT VOL ELPHERG.)
BERLIN, June 1.—The details of how the kaiser was hoaxed at Corfu during his holiday by "discovering" statues which had been planted for his benefit by the municipal authorities, are being laughed at over here.

When the first intimation was received that the kaiser would visit Greece for his holiday the municipal authority met and several schemes were discussed for making his sojourn as pleasant as possible, but discarded as unsuitable. Then one of the councilors remarked that, as the kaiser took great interest in archaeology, "let us give him archaeology." This met with approval and was adopted after each member had been sworn to secrecy.

When the kaiser landed at Corfu he was met by the burgomaster and other officials and presented with an address of welcome, in which the burgomaster adroitly hinted at excavations which were in progress on the island, and suggested that the kaiser would probably like to visit the excavations. The kaiser was keenly interested and commanded the burgomaster to give him further details. He was so impressed with what he saw that he spent considerable time each day while on the island digging for historical and archaeological objects and to his great satisfaction unearthed some wonderful statues and marble slabs. His success is not surprising when it is explained that the enterprising municipality had ordered some German manufacturers who specialize in making antiquities to supply a number of objects which were carefully buried in the field where the excavation was being carried on.

Police Puzzled By Odd Tragedy

Man Just Discharged From the Hospital Is Found With Throat Cut.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Within a few short hours after he was discharged from the Central Emergency hospital James Teague was found in a lodging house at 1037 Folsom street with his throat cut from ear to ear. Whether Teague committed suicide or was murdered for the $100 which he had in his possession when he left the hospital is a matter which the police are investigating.

Teague had been a patient at the hospital for three days. He was suffering from alcoholism, and appeared to be a man of refinement. He was discharged at noon and appeared well and cheerful when he left the hospital. He was carrying a roll of bills which had been kept for him while he was under treatment.

His movements after leaving the hospital have not been traced, but he was found at 10 o'clock tonight with his money missing and his throat cut with a sharp pocket knife which was found beside him. He died in an ambulance en route to the Central Emergency hospital.

Neutrality Violation By I. W. W. Is Probed

Attorney-General Wickersham Directs That Inquiry Be Started.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Orders were issued by Attorney-General Wickersham today directing that the activities of the I. W. W. at San Diego be probed by the Federal grand jury, with special reference to acts of sedition and violation of the neutrality laws in connection with Mexico, alleged to have been committed by members of the I. W. W. now in San Diego.

'CHURCH OF GOD' HEAD MUST HAVE NEW TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, June 1.—The jury in Judge Willis' department of the superior court which heard the evidence against Gerhard Tufts Jr., founder of the "Church of God," who was accused of securing $17500 illegally by using a power of attorney given him by his wife, formerly of Fort Worth, Texas, reported that it could not agree and was discharged.

Jury was discharged that the bona fide contention was Tufts' intent in using the power of attorney, which his wife declared had been revoked. Tufts testified he secured the loan, but did not believe he had a right to use the power given him by his wife.

NEW REVERENDS LARK.
RIVERSIDE, June 1.—It is reported that the Salt Lake road is about to build a line through the back country district of Riverside county. The line will vary considerably in construction from San Bernardino to Los Angeles by way of Cucamonga, Palmdale, Lancaster, San Dimas, Orange and Arcadia.

CONFESSES TO MURDER OF 2 PERSONS

Jos. Miller Admits Having Beaten Women to Death With Hammer.

Afterward Shoots Man That He Believed to Be Rival for Her Affection.

SEATTLE, June 1.—Joseph Miller, aged 28, who beat Mrs. Edith Lassen, aged 48, to death with a hammer and afterward shot and killed George Felton, aged 30, whom he looked upon as his rival for Mrs. Lassen's affections, broke down in jail today and confessed the crimes.

He said he met Mrs. Lassen in Kansas City twelve years ago; that he had been her business partner in Seattle investing $1500 with her in three hotels. He quarreled with Mrs. Lassen yesterday over Felton and in anger beat her to death. He took all her money, $50, then went about town drinking heavily, and finally went to the Volney hotel and shot Felton to death.

Miller said he had repeatedly asked Mrs. Lassen to marry him, but she had refused, saying she had promised the judge who gave her the divorce from Lassen, who was a gambler, that she would not marry again. She had been three times married, once widowed, twice divorced.

Titanic Widow Arrives Home

Mrs. Hold, Sacramento, was Rescued Against Her Will.

SACRAMENTO, June 1.—Mrs. Stephen Hold, the only Sacramento survivor from the Titanic, who was rescued from the wreck, arrived here today on the overland limited. She is the widow of Captain and Mrs. W. H. Bradlee. Mrs. Hold was rescued from the ship after she had been in the water for several hours. She was rescued by a lifeboat, despite her efforts to remain on deck with her husband.

She states that the lifeboat carried no lanterns, and that during the night they burned shreds of clothing dipped in oil.

BOY SKATES ON NEW SIDEWALK; CAUSES ROW

SAN DIEGO, June 1.—Mrs. D. Dyrk, in a statement made to the district attorney's office, alleged that her son, who resides on Georgia street, had turned a garden hose on Charles Ford, a young man, who was skating on a new sidewalk. Mrs. Ford with an angry complaint charging Mrs. Dyrk with an act which was illegal.

According to the complaint, Mrs. Ford objects to children skating on the sidewalk, and she alleged that her son had been in the habit of turning a garden hose on the sidewalk, and that she had been in the habit of turning a garden hose on the sidewalk.

CHALMERS MAN ON WARREN OFFICER PREPARING OF CARS UPHOLDS CAR RECORD

Gives Pointers on the Attention
Which Should Be Given Before Touring.

"With the season of automobile touring at hand, numbers of people have asked me what preparations their cars should have for country touring," said I. do Jough, who is connected with the Pioneer Automobile Company, representatives of the Chalmers Motor Company.

"In every instance I have answered, 'Chiefly lubrication.' Of course, a car which is to be taken on an extensive tour should be looked over carefully. Be sure all adjustments are properly made and that no part of the mechanism is in need of attention. After that, touring without trouble or annoyance is almost entirely a matter of keeping the car clean and well lubricated.

"Too much attention cannot be given to the latter. Most of the troubles motorists have come from inattention to lubrication.

"When on the country road, a car naturally picks up more dirt than in city driving. The oil in the motor wears out sooner, and as a result the crank case should be drained and cleaned out at least every 500 to 600 miles. I should say in addition to this, a little fresh oil, as much as needed, should be put in the crank case every 100 miles on tour. Be sure also that the differential gears and the steering connections are well oiled. See that the transmission is always properly lubricated.

WORK THAT TAKES SHORT TIME.
"This work takes only a few minutes, but not only does it insure against trouble but it also saves wear on the car.

"The Chalmers Company is very urgent in the matter of lubrication, and all its instructions to owners accent the advisability of attention to oiling.

"In the first place, be sure your car has a good lubrication system. The Chalmers Company has found the best to be the constant level splash system with a simple and positive geared oil pump. This insures that oil will reach all working parts of the motor as long as there is oil in the crank case. And it is a great oil sight feed on the dash keeps the driver informed as to the flow of oil. I cannot speak too forcibly of the necessity of having a large and convenient oil sight feed. This index to lubrication has saved many a driver a great deal of trouble.

"Then, too, one should learn the exact location of all grease cups and oil holes. On Chalmers cars these are readily accessible. It is not necessary to climb over the car to lubricate. This is an important feature, for it is only human to neglect machinery which is hard to reach for, and neglect spells the end of satisfactory service.

"For the best results in touring, therefore, I would make this one important rule—Lubricate freely, and use Johnson grease."

S. MONEY PRINTERS.
MARCH AT NIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 1.—It is a small army in itself that marches, with boxes in hand, into the government printing shop, over at North Capitol and O streets, after the sun has set. In the winter season some of the 150 men work under the big mercury lights which illuminate the big red structure. Uncanny as it would be the faces of the printers and workmen under the greenish light of the mercury lamps and into the examples of the printer's art that soon find their way into every corner of the continent. While the printers are busy at their work, the half-dozen men in the bowels of the building are over feeding the large engines that drive the complicated machinery of the huge plant.

Takes the Packard and Lozier
Officials to Task Over Disputed Supremacy.

DETROIT, June 1.—"Here is an interesting and amusing controversy," says George D. Wilson, sales manager of the Warren Motor Car Company, in an interview here today. "Harvey Lozier of the Lozier Motor Company takes Henry B. Joy of the Packard very sharply to task for seeming to steal Lozier's thunder."

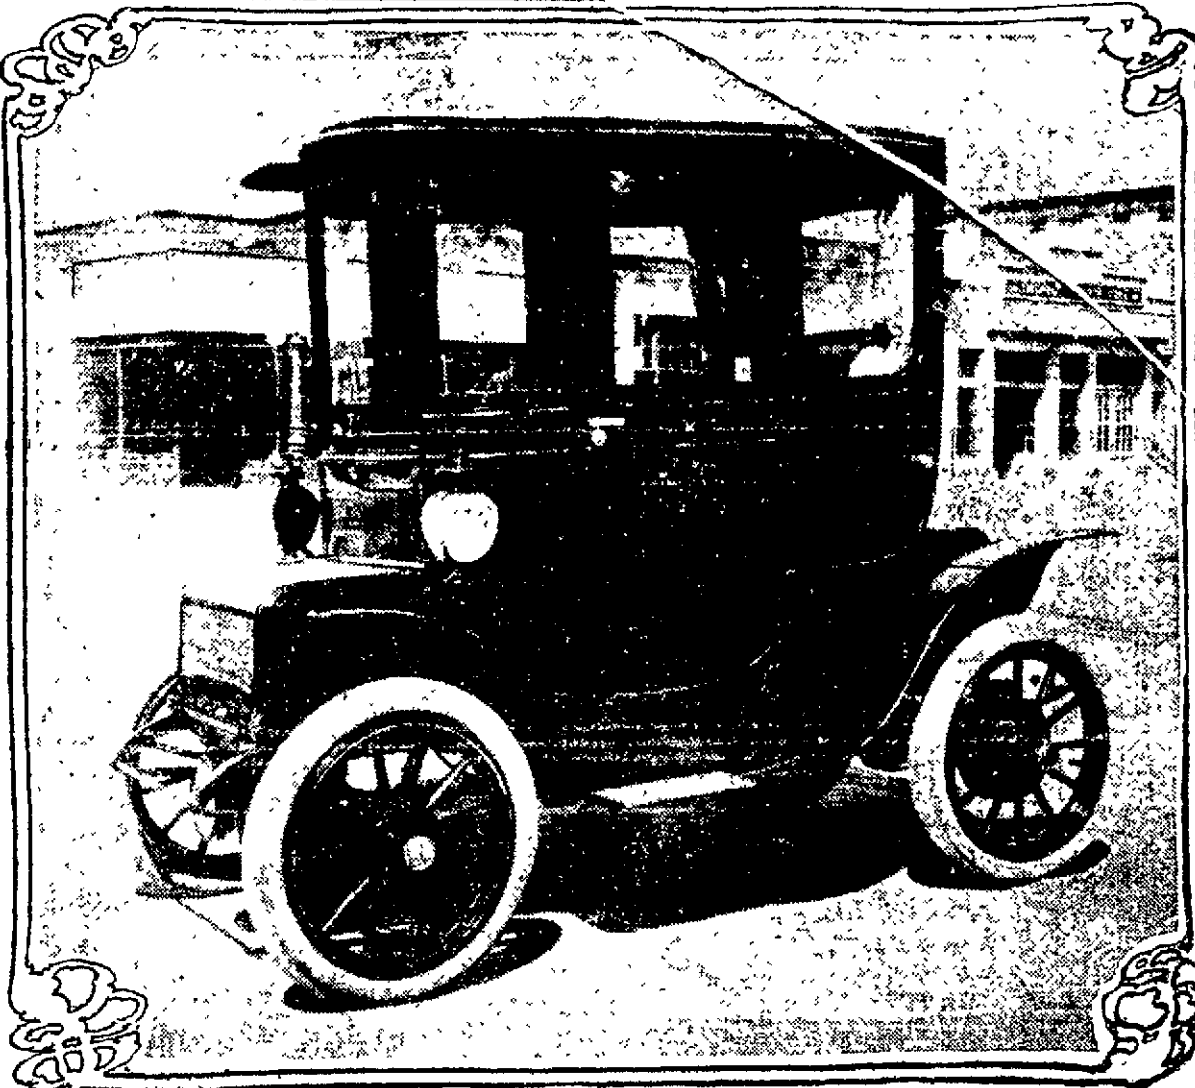

"You assert that the Packard will run the longest without mechanical attention. We submit that the Lozier has proven its ability to travel faster, farther and longer without mechanical attention than any other car in the world. The Lozier has, in officially conducted contests, repeatedly proven its power, stamina and endurance, and has demonstrated its right to recognition as possessing these features to a greater degree than any other motor car built."

"Such a discussion of relative merit engaged in by two of the most expensive cars made in this country should be seasoned with a little common sense. Let us look into the official records of the Automobile Association. On March 3 last under the auspices of the Matheson Sales Co. and the sanction of the A. A. A. at Oakland, Cal., a 30 horsepower Warren completed a mileage of 2,405 miles without a stop; two official observers testified to this. That is a world's record, recognized and declared by the A. A. A. More than that, with a stop to take waste out of the gasoline pipe, on two occasions, the Warren did 17,501 miles."

"That was not a 75-horsepower $5000 Packard or a Lozier, but a 30 horsepower, $1300 Warren. No man in the motor car trade should make sweeping claims until he has looked up the records of the American Automobile Association."

A Pennsylvania man reports the discovery on his farm of water worth $6 a gallon. This looks suspiciously like a case for the internal revenue agents.

TAHOE ROAD WILL SOON BE CLEARED

Buick Driver Says Highway Is Really Ready Now for Motorists.

F. E. Gross, of the Howard Automobile Company, accompanied by J. E. Sloan, Buick agent of Palo Alto and San Jose, and Bert Lawton, left San Francisco in a Buick model 35, fully equipped, who captured Lake Tahoe trophy for first automobile over the Sierra Nevada mountains in season of 1912, gives the following version of his trip:

rain in Auburn; snow at Towles; snowed constantly the rest of the trip, mixed with some rain the latter part.

"Ran entire distance from Towles to summit on low gear, ploughing through twelve to fourteen inches fresh snow. Struck first deep snow on Yuba river, near Spruce. From there to summit was from four to ten feet of old snow. Just above the summit struck a drift twenty feet deep. Our trip was made in one of the worst storms of the season; on return trip the snow was all off, only a few patches of old snow left, which will not last long.

"The remaining snow will be removed by a crew under the supervision of the state engineers. The road should be open for comfortable travel soon after June 1. The management of Lake Tahoe Tavern has spent a great deal of money making repairs from Truckee to the lake. Party royally entertained while at the lake by Mr. C. W. Nelson."

The trouble with those 8-cent pieces is that a whole lot of people we know will want two of 'em in change for a nickel.

FIRESTONE TIRES ON PATHFINDER

Ocean to Ocean Highway Car Chooses Equipment for Rigorous Trip.

A touring car, sent out by a Los Angeles newspaper, is now forging its way east from that city, in the interests of the proposed ocean to ocean highway. The results obtained will be of immense interest, as well as big value, not only in pathfinding, but fully as much in a car and tire testing way.

"It would be hard," says Carl Olson of Holmes and Olson, "to think of any more rigorous try out for tires than a trip of this character. There are not only the road-keeping qualities to be considered, but the sand, rock and clay—the climatic and weather conditions are of such wide variety that nothing but supremest material and construction could meet them successfully. Every condition of road, every kind of grade are bound to be encountered."

"It is a compliment to Firestone Tires that because of their accomplishment in like events in the past, they have been chosen as the equipment for this car."

REGAL AND KLINE CARS SELL FAST

Gus Renstrom Highly Elated
Over First Month's Business on This Side.

Gus L. Renstrom, the active manager of the Frank O. Renstrom Company's Oakland store, is highly elated over the big success he has had selling Regals and Klines on this side of the bay since their opening of the new branch a few weeks ago.

"I hardly anticipated any very great results the first month over here," said Renstrom, "but it is certainly gratifying the way business has been coming in. I have added several new salesmen to our force to meet the rush of business."

Mr. Heastle, who so successfully handled the service department in the San Francisco store, is looking after that end of the business in Oakland and is a proficient automobile mechanic.

It was partly through his efforts and style of taking care of customers that the firm received the nickname of the "house of service" under which they are so familiarly known in San Francisco.

A large repair shop is now in operation, which is connected with the salesrooms. The company is not spending money nor effort to make it one of the best in Oakland.

DOG KINDER THAN SPOUSE, REFUSED TO BITE

FERTH AMBOY, N. Y., June 1.—Mary Rubaba appeared before Justice Pickersgill and charged her husband with dragging her by the hair into the yard, where he tried to coax their vicious dog to attack her. She pleaded with the animal, the said, and it refused to obey Rubaba's orders to bite her.

In this rage, she charged, Rubaba beat the animal and renewed his attack on her until driven off by neighbors. He was arrested, committed to jail. He admitted beating his wife, giving as his excuse her refusal to wash dishes when he ordered her to.

'COP' TO A COUPLE TO STOP THE SPOONING

NEW YORK, June 1.—Spooning is more pleasant to participate in than to look upon, according to Park Commissioner Higgins of the Bronx. The matter of spooning in the parks has attracted the attention of the mayor's parks advisory board, and A. H. Spencer, the head of it, is trying to interest the different park commissioners in some plan to eliminate park love making. Commissioner Higgins said yesterday it was impossible to put a stop to spooning, but when it became so demonstrative as to attract the attention of passersby his blue lantern night watchman interfered. Spooning must be accepted as an established institution," said the Bronx commissioner. "No man with any romance in him would attempt to declare his affection in a stuffy apartment parlor when by going into a park he could get moonlight, quiet and seclusion. It would be foolish to attempt to stop spooning. I know when I was a young man I preferred an outdoor sitting to one indoors."

Park Commissioner Elliot of Queens said that while he did not favor love making in the parks in his borough he did not believe it could be stopped. He declared some of the members of the best families in his borough could not refrain from forsaking their lighted paths for the tree-shaded lanes. "Best and other parks," it would take you "any day for every couple," said the commissioner, "to put a stop to love making."

IMPROVING ROAD ON GREAT PACIFIC HIGHWAY

Multnomah County Section Is Undergoing Extensive Improvements.

The road officials of Multnomah county, Oregon, are making improvements upon that portion of the Pacific highway which lies within their jurisdiction and intend to make this stretch of the road test links three nations together one of the best in the state. In fact these officials recognizing the inestimable value of this great highway, hope to establish a standard of improvement that will be carried out all along the line.

The main portion of the Pacific highway in Multnomah county extends from the city limits of Portland south through Riverdale and Bearwood to a point near Oswego. It is one of the most heavily traveled thoroughfares in the state and the main traffic artery to Oregon City and the towns along the west side of the Willamette river.

SCENERY WITHOUT EQUAL

From the scenic point of view this highway is probably without equal in Oregon. It extends along the west bank of the Willamette through a thickly wooded section and follows an attractive course around mountain sides through a district that is improved with modern residences and summer homes. A magnificent stretch of straight macadam road lies between the Portland city limits and Riverdale—so straight and smooth that it is generally regarded in the light of a "speedway" by automobile enthusiasts.

It is the intention of the commission to make the rest of the road as perfect as this particular stretch and it is with this object in view that the present improvements are being undertaken. Wherever the road is poor the trouble will be eliminated by giving it a complete new surface of crushed rock. Nearly a mile of this work has already been finished and as it is proceeding at a rapid rate its completion early in June may be expected.

Not only Multnomah county is the Pacific highway receiving the attention it deserves at the hands of the local authorities. All through Oregon keen interest in this great project is being manifested in a practical manner.

NEGROES BEAT HER; MISS $100 IN SKIRT

ST. LOUIS, June 1.—Mrs. Mary McGuire, who was attacked by two negroes who were badly beaten in her home 1309 Wash street, Saturday night, was in a serious condition at the City Hospital Monday. She is suffering from several fractured ribs and a broken right arm, inflicted by the negroes, who attempted to rob her.

Mrs. McGuire, who is 65 years old and has been known as a recluse, has lived in the Wash street house since she was a child. She is a widow and has been married several years ago, when the ground on which it stood was bought by the city for a fine engine house. Her husband died 20 years ago, and she believes the robbery was attempted on the supposition that she had a large sum of money in the house.

One hundred dollars, sewed in the hem of Mrs. McGuire's skirt, escaped the notice of the robbers. She intends using the money to pay a note Monday, she says.

STRATFORD STODDARD CAR CREATES MUCH FAVOR

Sales Manager William H. Thompson of the Standard Motor Car Company, reports that the Stratford model of the Stoddard-Dayton car is creating much favorable comment; in fact, it is one of the most popular models of the season, holding the record sales in the company. The latest Stratford has been sold and delivered to T. G. King of Petaluma.

THE TAHOE TROPHY WINNING BUICK BUCKING SNOW DRIFTS IN THE HIGH SIERRAS.

STATISTICIANS GET THINGS DOWN FINE

NEW YORK, June 1.—Figures from the United States Department of Agriculture show that in 1855 the amount of labor expended in producing a bushel of corn in the United States was four hours and thirty-five minutes. Under modern conditions the amount of time required is only forty-one minutes.

With wheat the difference is even more marked. In 1855 three hours of labor were expended on each bushel of wheat, at present a bushel of wheat requires only ten minutes of labor. This changed condition, while dispersing labor from the country, has created a condition demanding more intelligence, wider knowledge and larger ability on the part of the farmer. To meet these new conditions the farming population needs greater educational opportunities.

The three fundamental and mothering occupations which nourish and sustain all the rest, it is maintained, are farming, making homes and teaching and training the young. By improving farming, the remaining two occupations will be benefited, because all three are interested. For example, more successful methods of agriculture will result in better living, better homes and more money available for training the young. The schools in the country will also be improved by more public spirit as well as by more money if agriculture is successful. The improvement of the schools will result in increased ability and will be one of the chief means of conservation and progress in rural communities.

CATTLE SHORTAGE THROUGHOUT WEST

Experts Say Past Severe Winter Has Been Large Factor.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 1.—Reason for high meat prices which have been reported from various portions of the country in recent weeks is found in the figures showing the market movement of livestock to the great packing centers of the middle west during April at the six leading markets including South St. Paul, Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis and Sioux City. Cattle supplies last month barely reached the totals for the same period in 1911 notwithstanding the month just closed had five Mondays and Tuesdays, the two days of the week when runs are heaviest.

MEAT PRICES ADVANCED

April witnessed some spectacular flights of prices at South St. Paul and at other points. The highest marks of the year in all departments having been set at about $15 a cwt. for a hundredweight made a new high mark for such stock at the local yards. The highest sale of beef during the month was registered at $7.85 overtopping anything bought at this market since January 1911. Sheep and lamb raised $1.25 and $1.50 moving at the highest have been made in line with the cost of stock on the hoof.

PASTURAL CONDITIONS

Pasture conditions in the northwest are good and the opportunity for feeding stock this season appears excellent. Cost of "finishing" stock to take back to the farm for fattening has shared in the general advancement, however, and many farmers are deterred by this fact from engaging extensively in the meat-making business this season. For those who do stockyard traders are predicting a profitable season basing their opinion on the very evident need of enlarged production.

The situation in the Pacific country will exert an unusual influence on the general business at livestock centers this season. President William Maguire of the St. Paul Union Stockyards Company who returned yesterday after an extended trip through North Dakota and Montana said: "I look for a reduction in the receipts from Montana in the cattle and sheep divisions there will be less of the stuff shipped from that state, as there seems to be a strong demand for breeding stock on the part of the new settlers who are filling up the country. Montana will continue to be a buyer of their class of stock for some time."

BAD WINTER OUT WEST

Along the same line C. O. Robinson of Chicago, head of the Clay Robinson & Co. firm which operates commission houses at the principal markets of the country, said: "I am convinced with Mr. Maguire, made similar statements. There has been a terrible winter in north eastern Wyoming, and stockmen in that section suffered appalling losses of cattle and sheep."

The first snow fell in October and there were occasional snowfalls until the month of March. The worst feature of the conditions there was the fact that the state had suffered two extremely dry summers and cattle were unable to secure food of any kind. It is estimated that the loss on cattle in this territory will reach 60 to 75 per cent.

In some instances growers found it necessary to cut down trees and feed their stock on whatever they could get through this means. The losses on horses and sheep will be equally as heavy.

WANT SCHOOL ENLARGED

ALAMEDA, June 1.—The Mothers' club of the Everett school, representatives from the North Side Improvement Club and the Board of Education met yesterday to discuss the proposition of an addition proposed to be constructed to the Everett school and the enlargement of the teaching force by another teacher. After considerable discussion it was decided to allow the school to remain as it is for another term when plans for the addition or construction of a new school will be taken up.

PRISON LIMP TAKES OLD MAN TO STATION

ST. LOUIS, June 1.—William Rodgers, a limping man, attracted the attention of Sergeant Matthews at Seventh and Market streets Monday afternoon. Rodgers is 72 years old, bent and feeble, but his limp was so characteristic that Matthews was moved to ask him how he had acquired the prison lockstep.

In prison, of course, said Rodgers. Rodgers questioned then reluctantly told his story. He was a farmer in Osage county when in 1873 he killed a neighbor and was sentenced to serve all years in the penitentiary. Seven years later he killed prison guard and was paroled from the original sentence so that he could be tried for the second case. At the trial it developed the guard had been brutal and Rodgers was acquitted. His parole was then revoked and he remained in prison until 1883 when Governor Crittenden pardoned him. In 1889 he was sent back to the penitentiary for larceny in Springfield and served two years. Later he was again sent to the penitentiary for felonious larceny in Phelps county. A fourth prison sentence was imposed on him for larceny in Clayton.

Matthews decided to take Rodgers to Central District station despite the latter's protest that he was trying to live down the past.

The Oakland

The Car With a Conscience and the Unit Power Plant
With Three Point Support

THE OAKLAND UNIT POWER PLANT—Enclosing motor, fly wheel, clutch and transmission—all in one housing.

Nearly everybody knows that an automobile is made up of five main units—the motor, clutch, transmission, driving shaft and rear axle.

Nearly everybody also knows that an automobile's power is in the motor.

But, very few persons realize how much of this power is wasted in the average automobile. It runs about like this:

The motor transmits the power by the crankshaft to the clutch (and wastes a little of it in the delivery); the clutch passes it to the transmission (and wastes a little of it); the transmission passes it to the driving shaft (and wastes a little); the driving shaft passes it to the rear wheels by the way of a set of bevel gears (and wastes a little of it).

By the time the motor has delivered its power to the rear wheels nearly a third of it has been dissipated in passing down where it is used.

We want everybody to know that the unit power plant has eliminated this excessive waste of power. It has not only materially decreased power losses, but has reduced friction to a minimum, therefore, wear, which, in turn, insures longer life to a car.

A unit power plant includes the motor, clutch and transmission in one housing—one unit—where the motor power is transmitted by one main shaft through the clutch and transmission to the driving shaft. The power is not lost because it is not passed from one housing to another by means of several pieces of shafting with universal joints necessary for proper alignment.

Unit power construction also insures perfect alignment, and gives you the maximum power and greater all-around efficiency. It makes for cleanliness and absolute silence. It is for these reasons that the unit power plant is used in Oakland construction.

The Oakland Car is true-tried and true. Time has proved it. Severe Oakland tests have provided it. More than twenty thousand owners testify to the car's worth.

OAKLAND MODELS INCLUDE:
Model "48"—Seven-Passenger Touring Car at $2850, by comparison with which higher-priced seven-passenger cars are found wanting and those of equal class measure far below the price set by this model.
Model "40"—Five-Passenger Touring Car at $1850. In this model there is brought out for the first time a car of superior design and construction, with sufficient power, at a medium price.
Model "40"—"Available" Roadster $1650. Remember, this is any motor car ever offered before in that it seats three persons side by side and allows the driver to give equal attention to his two guests.
Model "30"—Five-Passenger Touring Car, $1400. A car built to answer a large demand for a medium-priced machine, having sufficient power to take a party of five anywhere.
Oakland "Orion," $1200—The smartest 20-horsepower automobile on the market. Belongs in any garage where two or more cars are kept. Equipped with a 25-gallon gasoline tank.

The Oakland Company's business purpose is to give service and to sell cars. It will do its best to do both—they go hand in hand.

PROOF THAT PROVES SUPERIOR EXCELLENCE OF The Flanders Colonial Electric

25% more Flanders Electrics were registered in California last month than any other make.
40% more Flanders Electrics were registered from Northern California last month than all other makes combined.
15% more Flanders Electrics were registered last month than by its nearest competitor in the same territory for the combined months of March, April and May.
We have reason to be proud of the wonderful showing of this car. Never before in the history of the automobile industry has a new car acquired such prestige in so short a time. Announced last November, with deliveries not commencing until April, the Flanders in its first month registered 10% more cars in Northern California than its nearest competitor which has been in this market for three years.
This record means something because a majority decision is generally a wise one. Notice particularly in Northern California, where hills and general conditions are less favorable to an Electric, our lead is greatest. Flanders Electrics are "BUILT FOR THE HILLS" with excess power and ample brakes.
The Flanders expresses the ultimate in beauty and character of design, in refinement of appointments and finish, in luxury of comfort and ease of control.

These 1400 Women Are Setting Out to do Things.

MISS ESTELLE JENKYNs OF CHICAGO ILL. IS LEADING THE FEMININE AGGREGATION TO BATTLE, TO SHOW MAN THAT WOMEN CAN RUN STEAMSHIPS, BUILD SKYSCRAPERS OR LAY RAILROAD TRACKS, JUST AS WELL AS HE, AND HER FIRST STEP IS PORTRAITURE, OF WHICH THESE ARE SAMPLES.

"WOMAN can do most things man can do and a whole lot of things she can do better," was the declaration of M. Estelle Jenkins, a Chicago girl, when she started out with some other girls of the same mind to organize "The Woman's Federation." Sounds like a suffrage movement—but it isn't. It's just an association of 1,400 women photographers scattered all over the United States, but who are allied because of their art, and united because Miss Jenkins and a few others a year or two ago started to spread the gospel of "Woman Can Do."

Don't let the words "woman photographer" frighten you. This army is not made up of the "kodak girl" who bores her friends and stains her fingers and keeps herself broke of pocket money making more or less futile snapshots and poses.

Organization Requires Much Work.

And don't forget that we are elevating the art," is Miss Jenkins' frequent caution, and by that she means that the mutual work of this federation is the keeping its members sional photographers" held in Milwaukee in 1910, and that was made the occasion of cementing the bands of sisterhood. The gentler members of the craft were there in numbers, and the organization which before had been more or less a paper one became a fact.

Miss Jenkins, who had been secretary-treasurer of the federation, which was the successor of the "Circle of Thirty" started by the girls two years before, declared, when she saw the organization a recognized entity: "We have demonstrated that woman can do one thing—organize—as well as man, the first mission, and now I am going to prove she can do some things a whole lot better."

Her place as secretary-treasurer of the federation she gave over to Mabel Goodlander of Muncie, Ind., and began in an especial way her determination to push woman ahead in the profession.

"Home Portraiture" Her Specialty.

She selected the department of "home portraiture"—that's what the profession calls it—as being especially a woman's field, and her progress toward its perfection artistically the accompanying reprints of her sittings show. On the theory that a woman looks her best in her own home sitting in her favorite chair and surrounded by the furnishings which in a tasteful home blend naturally into the picture of the mistress, she began the study of lighting to the end that the light effects of the gallery might be reproduced in the home without taking off the roof or even interfering with the window drapery.

She discovered that some of the cherished traditions of the photographic studio as to lighting were just traditions and could be violated not only with impunity but with greater success in result. Her experiments, supplemented by the interchange of ideas that constantly goes on among the sisterhood of the federation, convinced her that the most successful portrait work can be done in the home rather than in the studio.

The often heard statement that "the best picture I have of baby is a kodak snapshot" struck Miss Jenkins with a professional force. Why should an amateur with an inferior camera be able to produce a picture that appealed to the mother more than the finished product of the studio? The answer was here.

Natural Portrait Most Appealing.

The amateur caught the child in a familiar pose in familiar surroundings, and the result—a natural portrait. Also the life has not been retouched out of it. The naturalness of the gallery portrait often is ruined by the self-consciousness of the subject "posing for a picture" in strange surroundings and under the stress of having to look pleasant.

A combination of the naturalness of the home pose with the excellence of the studio lenses and studio finish was the thing to be attained, and so the "home portraiture" ex-

ESTELLE JENKINS

"Then when you finally reach the operating room (well named) you find yourself posed with a head rest clamping at the back of your head and the photographer urging you to 'look pleasant' and you wish the operation were over so you could look and be natural once more."

Artist Needs Long Study.

To those who have experienced this ordeal home portraiture will most especially appeal. The artist takes her photographic outfit, which, by the way, is compact, to the home and amidst these familiar surroundings you sit for your portrait.

But while this simplifies matters for the sitter it necessitates years of study and training to enable the artist to portray intelligently that which is pleasing in the finished results. There are a number of requirements when it comes to considering the artist who is to undertake this home work.

"Of course there must be personality—then the love of human nature and the power of discerning and dissecting its every phase—the love of art and an understanding of what constitutes an attractive picture. Then, too, your ability to appeal to your subject so as to bring out in her expression the character in its most lovable phase, also to make her feel so interested and in sympathy with your work that unconsciously she not only assumes a natural and pleasing expression but an easy and graceful pose.

"We must also remember to make simplicity the keynote of all work—a picture that appeals is one that is simple; then, too, one must not have all the accessories stand out in bold relief so you can tell at a glance every detail in its composition."

Charm in the Indefinite.

That story we most appreciate is the one which leaves something to our imagination; and so with the picture or portrait; if we could distinguish every detail at first glance it would not hold our interest and possibly one look would suffice, but let there be a mysterious shadow—an indefinite something—in the picture and our interest is drawn and held to it by this charm.

They are legion who dispute our claims to photography as an art, their grounds for taking this stand being the mechanical process of using the lens to produce the negative; but truth to tell, a lens in the hands of a person without artistic temperament and inspiration and without a meager knowledge of the chemical process is the same as a brush and palette excellent likeness full of character as well. There is no doubt in my mind as to the popularity and success of this new departure in photography at no distant time."

in the hands of an unskilled painter. The difference between such a person and a photographic artist is as great as that between a portrait and a sign painter.

"The process is, of course, in a degree mechanical, but the artist must be at the camera and, by the way, most if not all the successful artist photographers have been proficient in oil or water color. The true artist with imagination can, through the medium of the lens, put into his or her work as much as can the artist with the brush."

"Retouching" No Longer Nightmare.

That much abused branch of photography, retouching, can almost if not entirely be dispensed with in home portraiture simply by manipulation of lens and light. Many times the subject of a picture has been disappointed in the finished work, because of over retouching, when the proofs were entirely satisfactory, the character lines and shadows having been nearly if not entirely eliminated instead of softened.

"The 'worked in' background also comes under this head—no matter how cleverly it may be executed there is something that tells you at a glance it is unreal. But the home picture requires none of this doctoring—you can place your subject in her favorite nook, beside her beloved piano or harp, surrounded by familiar objects she responds readily to your enthusiasm and you are enabled to achieve the most pleasing results."

"Home portraiture is a luxury beyond the purse of the multitude, but those who can afford it will find not only the satisfaction of having a natural and artistic picture but as abreast of all that is progressive, and encouraging those who have the talent to make new advances."

It took a great deal of work and energy and tact to perfect this organization, you may know, and the girls who pioneered the movement often were on the verge of despair, but finally there was a convention of "profes-

JACKSON'S

NEW YORK, June 1.—The habeas corpus proceedings looking toward the release of Harry K. Threw from the insane asylum at Middletown, where he was committed in 1910 after being adjudged insane at his second trial for the murder of Stanford White, will be heard before Justice Knapp of the New York Supreme Court on June 2. Both WILLIAM T. SHELDON, who has been retained by the state to fight Threw's outlaws, and CHARLES W. BROWN, the young Pittsburgher's counsel, expressed confidence today that the outcome of the case.

Great interest has been expressed in the present proceedings because of the fact that Threw's wife, the former Mrs. MARY J. SHELDON, is expected to bring about a

In addition to these interesting factors, the attorneys with the case have a recommendation for the most determined attempt to gain freedom for Thaw yet made by his family. It is said that the Thawas will spare no expense in the hire of alliterate to show that the young man is innocent and competent, and it is predicted that the hearing will drag along for weeks.

TO FIGHT THAW'S RELEASE.

The retention of former District Attorney Jerome for the Thaw case will be put in the way of Thaw's release. It was Jerome who handled the prosecution of Thaw for the commonwealth in his two trials in 1904, and the former district attorney, beside being conversant with the case, is also a person who is known to be strongly of the opinion that Thaw is insane and stupid, therefore, he kept in Matkewson.

Clarence J. Brown, counsel for Thaw, has been the recipient of a great deal of money offered to prove that the young man suffers to completely sane.

similar to one made in 1908 by Thaw. At that time Justice Mills decided that the slayer of Stanford White had no right to such a trial and his decision was later upheld by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

There appears to be little likelihood that the twenty-eight volumes of testimony taken at Thaw's two trials for murder by a commission for the purpose of publication at the present hearing. Both Mr. Jerome and Mr. Shearn have expressed their opinion that the public would not desire the famous case in court.

TO LENGTHEN WHARF.—The HAMMOND LUMBER COMPANY, June 1.—The Hammond Lumber Company at Terminal has taken out a permit for additions to the new wharf recently completed, to cost $150,000. The money will be used to fill in the space between the wharf and the bulkhead with piling and plank covering. The San Pedro Lumber Company has also taken out a permit to extend its wharf, to

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Regardless of race, creed or politics, twenty thousand men representing the business, manu-

The work accomplished by these men is observed with attention by the experts of the United States Bureau of Education.

Since this organization was established fourteen years ago, the public schools have been taken out of partisan politics and placed in charge of an independent board; school taxes have been increased

One of the pictures given in this way cost $3500, while another was worth $2000. The money was not distributed but raised from dues, from direct contributions, or from the proceeds of concert or picture.

Although these friends of the St. Louis school children are all very busy men, they find time to demonstrate their interest in education in a wide variety of ways. They arrange appropriate exercises, they help to commemorate the national holidays—Washington's Birthday, and Arbor, Flag, Memorial and Independence Days, the object being the inculcation of a broad American patriotism. They make the necessary arrangements for the annual school picnic, the Christmas festival and other school functions and exercises.

OAKLAND WINS WIDE FAME AS CITY OF HOMES

View of new residence park which has developed rapidly in the vicinity of Claremont Hotel, for the completion of which a building permit was granted last week.

BUILDING COST FOR SHORT WEEK TOTALS $214,973

Permit Is Granted for Completion of Immense Claremont Hotel

For five days ending Tuesday evening the record of building permits applied for at the city hall revealed an average as high as that of a full week. The total cost of contracts for the short period amounted to $214,973, the number of permits being 85. One of the most important items is that for the completion of the Claremont Hotel, the cost being $70,000.

Another good showing was made in one-story dwellings to be built, the number of permits being 30 and the cost, $54,625. There were but nine two-story dwellings as compared with the thirty of one-story.

The summary of building permits is as follows:

No. of	Cost
Class of Buildings
1-story dwellings	$54,625.00
2-story dwellings	2,500.00
3-story dwellings	80,000.00

NEW RESIDENCE SECTIONS ARE BUILT UP WITH MAGIC RAPIDITY

Various new residence sections of Oakland, embracing hundreds of new homes, have been entirely built within a few months. For many years the residence building was in the vacant areas of the close-in portions of the city, but immediately after the disaster of 1906 these sites were all improved with homes and then the movement toward the hills, which had begun in a timid fashion, took on remarkable activity.

Groups of homes, covering the area of a good-sized town, have sprung up in a dozen or more outlying districts, all the way from Claremont to the eastern edge of the city. Perhaps the territory covered has been greater in East Oakland than in any other part of the city. In the section immediately west of the Claremont Country Club more than a thousand dwellings were built within a year. Claremont Park is another illustration of the rapid growth of new residence districts. Other tracts in which improvement has been active are Rockridge, Claremont Manor, the Lakeside sections, East Piedmont Heights, Crocker Highlands, Fourth Avenue Terrace and Heights, Eastlawn, and within a short time Havenscourt will be in the same class as far as building activity is concerned.

Artistic variety is noticeable in the architecture of the new homes, and in several of the tracts building restrictions have served to maintain a high standard of construction.

NEW ROCK RIDGE TRACT ON MARKET

The Foothill Terrace Property Proves Attractive to Buyers.

That the latest choice foothill and marine view tract to be placed on the market in Oakland is the best that has been made available to the discriminating home-sites buyer is the confident assertion of Fred E. Reed, tract manager of the Lawrence Real Estate Company. The subdivision in question, which this firm placed on sale last Thursday, with a total of purchases the first day amounting to $212,000, is Rock Ridge Terrace. The tract commands the most sweeping views of the bay region to be obtained in any of the Rock Ridge properties. It also offers the greatest opportunities for the new owner to improve the tract.

The property line on the hills back of Rock Ridge Park and is easily accessible by the car line extension, which follows the northern boundary of the Claremont Country Club from Broadway through Claremont Manor Park direct to Rock Ridge Terrace.

The plan for the beautification of Rock Ridge as a whole is something which inspires only the most optimistic. The plan includes a reservoir into which the water will be pumped directly from the reservoir. It will be distributed by means of a canal.

KERMAN FARMER IS DEE-LIGHTED

Crops of Many Kinds Raised on the San Joaquin Lands.

Following is a letter from a recent purchaser of land at Kerman, San Joaquin valley:

"Looking over the entire country, it is evident that here in this sunny Kerman, the rewards of the rancher, the fruit grower, and the gardener are more certain than anywhere else in the country. One will search in vain the world round for another place where ample reward of energy and industry are coupled with so much, climatically, that contributes to the joy of living, and on the profits of a man has won."

The land is ready for the plow and will produce almost every conceivable crop. The peach, apricot, fig and grape, and all known varieties of grapes have made men rich in Kerman. The orange, lemon, and nut, yield enormous profits, while the Irish potato, watermelon, cantaloupe, peanut, tobacco, canary seed, small fruits, corn, and vegetable grow

MAY A MERRY MONTH IN CITY'S UPBUILDING

Really Business and General Improvement Cause for Optimism

FIGURES TELL STORY OF MAY PROGRESS IN OAKLAND

Building Permits, value, May, 1912	$1,204,734.25
Building Permits, value, May, 1911	$70,507.50
Gain	$1,134,226.75
Bank Clearings, May, 1912	$15,783,211.00
Bank Clearings, May, 1911	14,134,161.53
Gain	$1,649,049.47
Mortgages and Deeds of Trust, May, 1912	$9,867,162.94

In summing up the activities of the month of May Oakland real estate brokers find that the four weeks have been productive of brisk business in realty and financial circles, and that the city has progressed in many other ways.

Building and other improvements, including street paving and waterfront work, have been carried on with unusual vigor.

The cultivation of city parks has not been allowed to lag.

Long expected rains, needed to bring the spring to a close and allay the fears of summer drought, fell in copious showers, doing little damage in the farming sections and resulting in great benefit throughout the state.

During the month a large amount of buying and selling of "fringe" business property on and near Sixteenth street was reported, and work was started on more than a half dozen modern business buildings on Clay, Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth, at a total cost of about $500,000.

BUILDING COST DOUBLES.

The total cost of building construction in the city for the month was $1,204,734.25, building done in May, 1911, the figure for that month being $70,507.50. During the past week a permit was obtained for the completion of work on the Claremont hotel.

Home building in the various outlying districts has been progressing throughout the spring, the activity being favored by the absence of late rains. The construction of one-story cottages and bungalows is a feature of building enterprise in Oakland. The large number of dwellings of this size shows that the middle class inhabitants are increasing, adding to the population, which adds in the industrial upbuilding of the community and which is the mainstay of the city's merchants. In addition, there are many fine homes of wealthy citizens being built in the suburban sections, increasing the number of residence showplaces, which have been Oakland's boast.

INCOME PROPERTY DEMAND.

Really agents dealing in business property continue to report a demand for income holdings which has not yet been met by an adequate supply. This is a condition which is favorable to the city, in one respect, showing that there is no overbuilding or harmful boom inflation, and yet there is a certain substantial timidity on the part of property owners whose holdings are suitable for improvement by the erection of modern business structures. Better buildings on busy downtown sites are desirable, in the interest of a better general appearance of the city.

Several buildings are becoming more prosperous by purchasing sites and erecting modern structures. Many property owners, however, are overlooking opportunities by failing to build, or by building land at almost prohibitive figures.

A busy week in realty transactions is reported. Lending was brisk, the amount of mortgages being $15,783,211.00 and deeds $9,867,162.94, with a total of $25,650,373.94.

The "Oakland City Directory" of real estate men, attorneys, and other business property was reported.

Offer Richmond People

The beautiful tract of land known to all Richmond residents as the "Boyd Tract," adjoining the famous John Nicholl property, has been purchased by Burg Brothers, Inc., and subdivided into high-class residence lots. The tract has been named and will be to Richmond what Claremont and Northbrae are to Berkeley and what Piedmont is to Oakland.

GRAND VIEW TERRACE

Burg Brothers paid approximately $200,000 for the bare land—the highest price ever paid for any Richmond acreage—and will expend another $200,000 for improvements, which is a larger amount than has been expended for the improvements of all the other Richmond tracts combined.

Everyone in Richmond

who desires to live and have their home in an EXCLUSIVE and RESTRICTED neighborhood MUST BUY in GRAND VIEW TERRACE, as it is and will be the only strictly high class, fully improved and Restricted Residence Tract in Richmond.

All other tracts in and near Richmond have been sold without the necessary improvements and restriction to make them desirable for the better class of homes.

In Grand View Terrace

The lots have a frontage of from 25 to 100 feet. Every lot is put to the city grade. All streets will be all macadamized from curb to curb. Concrete curbs and concrete gutters will be put in. Water mains in front of every lot. Wide cement sidewalks. Shade trees and parking between the walks. Immense stone pillars at the entrance of the principal streets and avenues. Also a complete SEWER SYSTEM will be installed. All improvements are FREE to purchasers. A building restriction of from $1000 to $3000 will be strictly enforced.

No Interest Nor Taxes for 2 Years	LOTS $300 and up	A SMALL PAYMENT DOWN BALANCE AT $5.00 or more Per Month has an elevation of from 20 to 145 feet, and with an unsurpassed view in every direction. It is located only four blocks north of Macdonald avenue and four blocks east of Twenty-third street, with a large frontage on San Pablo avenue.

It will be but a few minutes' walk from Richmond's main business section, and within a few years the lots will be the most valuable in all of Richmond.

DON'T WAIT, BUY NOW

Many of Richmond's most prominent residents have already secured their lots in Grand View Terrace for their future home sites. Mr. E. J. Burg will erect a 16-room home on one of the knolls. This home will cost approximately $20,000. All of Richmond will want to live in Grand View Terrace when they see what a beautiful home tract it is.

STAGE BOOSTERS TO BUILD HALL

Citizens' Club Will Erect a Fine Structure and Do Work Themselves.

STAGE, June 1.—Under the name of the Citizens' Progressive Club of the annexed district, the association of citizens of this place formed to battle for annexation to Richmond, will perpetuate their organization and make of it a live promotion body to co-operate with all other associations which have been formed to carry Richmond along to the 50,000 population mark. The Citizens' Progressive Club will build a hall for its meetings using the labor of its members and putting in Sundays to do it. In the enthusiasm over the annexation victory $200 was subscribed toward this fund within fifteen minutes after the vote had been announced.

A committee consisting of S. Donaldson, Andrew Summers, H. H. Turley and Thomas Delaney has been appointed to attend all city council meetings. The members of the organization will haul the lumber for the new hall to the site on Wall street near Proctor avenue some time next week, and next Sunday will take off their coats and commence the erection of the structure, which will be 32x50 feet in dimensions. J. A. Sanford gives free use of a lot for the building for two years.

Ben Bourman is president of this Citizens' Progressive Club; G. W. Maddox, vice-president; S. Donaldson, secretary. Directors and other officers are H. H. Turley, Andrew Summers, Harry Ellis, Thomas Delaney, William Pickett, O. Deppew, J. Munday, P. Mahoney, J. H. Betts and W. H. Bedford.

CITY TO BUILD TUNNEL AND DOCK

Richmond Will Bore Hills to Reach It's West Side Waterfront.

RICHMOND, June 1.—Agent W. B. Trull of the Santa Fe Company has been requested by Mayor J. C. Owens to arrange a meeting between the city officials, including the council and the engineers, in charge of the plans for the proposed inner harbor, and the officials of the railroad company, for the purpose of seeing if it will be possible to arrange with the Santa Fe Company for wharfage rights and a roadway along the local waterfront from the proposed municipal tunnel and wharf to that of the railway company. Engineer P. A. Haviland, who has had charge of the compilation of the data for the project, has it completed, and several tentative plans are now being considered as to the location of the tunnel and wharf.

The most feasible plan in the estimation of the engineer is a tunnel and wharf paralleling that of the Santa Fe and that to do this a considerable concession will be necessary from the railroad company, which in turn would be benefited by the construction of a municipal roadway which would give access to its waterfront property for teams and automobiles. It is proposed by the city authorities to bore a tunnel through the west side hills and build a long municipal wharf, and there are several good locations to choose from. The project is one of great importance to this community, and will be submitted to a bond election at the same time that the inner harbor project is submitted to the voters, thus eliminating the cost of two special elections.

BUILD MANY FINE BERKELEY HOMES

Erection of Several Residences to Cost $10,000 or More Is Started.

BERKELEY, May 30.—The development of Berkeley as a city of homes will continue through the summer, according to the plans of contractors and owners of residence property. A number of new residences costing from $10,000 up are in course of erection while still others are projected.

F. L. and E. Shepard are building a two-story nine-room home on Hillside avenue, near Dwight way, to cost $12,000. The plans were drawn by Professor John Glen Howard of the University of California, while Benjamin Pearson has charge of the construction work. In the same block nearer to Dwight way M. B. Kern has begun the erection of a $10,000 residence on a 60-foot lot. It is to contain 10 rooms and be finished in cement. Professor Howard and Pearson are also the architect and contractor for this.

The residence of Professor William Popper of the university department of Semitic languages at the corner of the Alameda and San Jose avenues is nearing completion. The homes of E. W. Wenta and K. Q. Casbolt on the Alameda are well under way. A very beautiful home is to be built on Domingue avenue by Mrs. Charles McCroarty of Sacramento. John Hudson Thomas is at work on the plans and it is expected they will be ready for work to start next month. Thomas is preparing plans also for R. L. Randolph, who is to build on Vincente avenue. The forms are in place for the foundation of J. H. Spring's new $100,000 residence.

The erection of still another sorority house, to be in readiness for occupancy soon after the reopening of the University of California, was commenced this week on the north side of Le Conte avenue, west of Euclid. It will contain 40 rooms and will be leased by Morris Engle of San Francisco to the Alpha Chi Omega sorority. It will be two and a half stories high, set on a 50-foot lot. Alpha Chi Omega at present occupies a house at 1711 Euclid avenue.

The Berkeley Piano club is completing plans for a new clubhouse on Haste street. It will not be very large but will be of attractive design and artistic finish. The architecture is expected to be ready for occupancy by the time the club's fall season opens.

Among the building permits of recent issue have been the following: One-story five-room residence, north side of Lincoln street; Meyer & Treuter, owners and builders; $1500. One-story theater building, San Pablo avenue and Addison street; B. E. Underwood, owner; $12,000. One and one-half-story residence, west side of Jefferson street, 128 feet north of Bancroft way; O. Pool, owner and builder; $500. One-story five-room residence, north side of Wolsey street, between Duncan and Dana streets; W. P. Jones, owner and builder; $2500. The-story five-room residence, east side of Dana street, 24th foot north of Webster street; Alfred J. Anderson, owner; $2600.

Two-story nine-room residence, west side of Hillside avenue, 150 feet north of Dwight way; F. L. and E. Shepard, owners; $10,875.

Two-story 10-room residence, Hillside avenue, 100 feet north of Dwight way; M. B. Kerr, owner; $1900.

Addition to one-story building, Vine and Walnut streets; Wesley M. E. Church, owner; $2500.

Two-story seven-room residence, east side of Ward street, 200 feet east of Telegraph avenue; Shuman family, owners; $3750.

Two-story seven-room residence, north side of Webster street, 150 feet west of College avenue; Peaks-Munro Company, owner; $4000.

Remodel two-story building, north side of Allison way, 127 feet east of Shattuck avenue; Norris English, owner and builder; $500.

Two-story nine-room residence, east side of Shattuck avenue, 250 feet east of Marin avenue; F. F. Jewett, owner; $3800.

Three-story 20-room apartment house, south side of Durant avenue, 400 feet west of Elm street; B. F. Whitton, owner and builder; $7000.

HALF MILLION VISITORS TO SEE MEMORIAL UNVEILED

Ceremonies in Columbus' Honor to Surpass Imagination

WASHINGTON, June 1.—A ceremony that will surpass even a presidential inauguration in numbers of attendance, is scheduled to take place here this week when the $100,000 Columbus memorial is unveiled on Saturday, June 8. The celebration, which will commence with a parade of Columbus demonstrators on June 7 and terminate with a military band march by the Spanish War Veterans on Sunday, June 9, will be the most magnificent event since the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty. It is estimated that nearly half a million visitors from all parts of the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Philippines, will be present at the unveiling and to take part in the pageant that will precede the ceremony.

MAHMOUD FOUNTAIN. The memorial consists of a semi-circular fountain, 75 feet wide and 45 feet high, surmounted with a white marble statue of Columbus and other appropriate sculptures. The principal feature of the fountain is a stone shaft 100 feet high, surmounted by a globe representing the world. It forms a background for a statue of Columbus, who is represented as standing on the prow of a ship, with arms folded in an attitude of triumph. Just below the statue of Columbus is the figure of a ship, a female figure of beauty, typifying the spirit of discovery. The great base of the fountain will be directly beneath this figure. On the other side of the shaft are massive figures portraying the sculptor's idea of the new and old world. The new world is represented by the figure of an Indian reaching out his shoulder to take an arrow from his quiver. The old world is represented by the figure of a bearded, Caucasian of heroic proportions and thoughtful mien. The dome at the top of the shaft is intended to suggest the influence of Columbus on the growth of popular knowledge of the shape of the earth. It is supported by four American eagles, which stand at the corners of the top of the shaft, with wings partially extended. The rear of the shaft carries a medallion representing Ferdinand and Isabella, of Spain, and the group of figures is completed by two enormous lions which occupy the ends of the balustrade running from the center to the sides of the fountain.

AT BEAUTIFUL SITE. The monument, which was designed by Daniel H. Burnham, architect, and sculptured by Lorado Taft, both of Chicago, is placed directly in front of the Union station at Washington, the gateway to the national capital and facing the capitol which is only a few blocks distant. The memorial overlooks a wide, semi-circular plaza and a broad expanse of what some day will be beautiful parks, separating the Union station from the capitol and the senate office building.

The unveiling of this memorial to the famous Italian takes place four hundred and twenty years after he discovered America, the agitation for its erection was set afoot by the Catholic order of the Knights of Columbus several years ago. The subscriptions started by this order practically assured the success of the project and was later made secure by the appropriation of $100,000 by Congress. The coming ceremonies therefore are of extraordinary interest to this organization and it will be represented by fifty thousand uniformed men in the parade on Pennsylvania avenue on the day of the unveiling.

The military and naval pageants, with James A. Flaherty, the present supreme knight of the order as chief marshal, accompanied by aids selected from the various branches of the order. The regulation dress of the knights will be the conventional frock coat, dark gray trousers, silk hats, gray gloves and black shoes. The representation from each state of the union will carry the American flag and their state flag.

The public comfort committee is well prepared to take care of the expected throng. A bureau will be established at Union station in Washington, and guides will be provided all visitors, to insure that they are set down in desirable quarters. The detailed program for the unveiling ceremonies, including both the arrangements of the government and the Knights of Columbus, as made public today, is as follows:

PROGRAM FOR WEEK. Friday morning, June 7.—Pilgrimage of national officers of the Knights of Columbus, members of the order and visitors to the tomb of General Washington at Mount Vernon. Friday night.—Grand public reception at the Pan-American building. This big feature is being arranged by Hon. Cuno H. Rudolph, president of the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia. The President of the United States has been invited to head the receiving line. There will be music by a celebrated musical organization.

Saturday, June 8.—Grand pageant, followed by the unveiling ceremonies. Between the United States and the Knights of Columbus in the line of march there will be 20,000 other men in line, representatives of various civic and other bodies. Floats, depicting various phases of the life of Christopher Columbus, will be distributed throughout the Knights of Columbus section of the parade. Isaac Gans, chairman of the auto section, expects to have two thousand motor cars in the pageant, handsomely decorated with flags and flowers, and many of them carrying outstretched.

Saturday evening will be crowded with events of transcending interest. 1800 AT BANQUET. At the mammoth Convention Hall a grand public banquet will be held. The banquet will be participated in by the President of the United States and the distinguished men of the nation, representing all walks of life and all creeds. It will be a further tribute to the achievements of the celebrated discoverer. There are accommodations at the banquet for 1000 persons, and the decorations, menu, appointments, and program will be unique.

While the great banquet is in progress a wonderful program will be carried on at the Convention hall. The program will be illuminated from the United States Capitol to the White House, and along this historic way another auto parade will move, this time the cars to be equipped with a myriad of electric lights. The program is expected to be an event out of the ordinary in motor-dom. Following the auto parade there will be a fireworks display on the great acres surrounding the Washington monument.

Sunday, June 9, the public attention will be turned to more serious channels. The program will be held in the Convention hall, where a military field mass will take place on the Monument grounds, south of the White House. This ceremony will be participated in by Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Rensselaer, the new Papal delegate and other distinguished men of the hierarchy and clergy. The committee in charge of this event has arranged for seating accommodations for 10,000 persons.

In the evening, at 8 o'clock a grand motor concert will be held in Convention hall, when the program will be given by the United States Marine Band and a symphony orchestra of sixty pieces.

OPIUM MERCHANTS OF INDIA FEAR RUIN

BOMBAY, India, June 1.—The opium merchants of India claim that they are threatened with ruin because of the alleged disregard by China of the existing treaties, and have appealed to the government to save them. They assert that Chinese merchants refuse the delivery of opium which they had purchased because the provincial authorities decline to admit it.

Consequently the stocks of opium in India are accumulating to an unbearable degree. At the same time the protesting ones complain that the resumption of the cultivation of opium in China is unchecked.

ALAMEDA GIRL PAYS TOO MUCH FOR RING

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—On complaint of Miss Dorothy Herman of 2922 Lincoln avenue, Alameda, a warrant was issued in the police court today for the arrest of Carl Kramer of this city. The charge is obtaining money under false pretenses and Miss Herman alleges she was deceived out of $70 by Kramer, who sold her a ring.

FILES SUIT TO RECOVER RINGS FROM WOMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Arthur C. Raas of the wholesale liquor firm of Lyons & Raas filed suit today to recover two diamond rings and a purse, said to be in the possession of Marie Klein, the woman under arrest in San Rafael for a multitude of thefts. Miss Klein was taken into custody at San Anselmo with burglars tools in her possession and a lot of miscellaneous articles, said to have been stolen. Raas alleges that he employed the woman as a domestic, that she stole a diamond ring, valued at $450; a diamond and ruby ring, valued at $150; and a purse, valued at $150. He asserts that she has the property in her possession, but that she denies they belong to him, claiming that they are her own.

SPIRITUALISTS TO MEET. The Fraternal Circle of Spiritualism will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in Lincoln hall, 407 Thirteenth street. Rev. C. S. Ellis, spiritual leader, will deliver a short address. Messages will be given by Mrs. Amanda Smith, Mrs. Loewen, Mrs. Louise Knott, Mrs. Burnside, Mrs. Sarah Kelly and Mrs. Dwyer. The music will be supplied by Mrs. Watkins.
